100 KILLED IN MEXICAN TOWN

PEOPLE FLEE TO PUEBLA

That Place, with 110,000 Inhabitants, Is Also in Peril from Rioters.

POLICE IN CAPITAL DEFIED

Attacked If They Make Arrests—Disorders Reported from Various Parts of Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 30.—License rather than liberty seems to be growing out of the victory of the Maderists. On every hand is evidence of disorganization and lack of respect for the authorities and the law, while each day is seeing aggravation of the rapine and brigandage which are sweeping the interior.

It is believed that at least 100 persons have been killed.

That Cholula has practically been razed by a drunken horde calling themselves Maderistas is confirmed by to-day's dispatches. Drawn by its great pyramid, thousands of tourists visit Cholula annually. Recalling the sleepy little town, they will find it hard to reconcile its tropical inertia with the desperate fight that raged within its limits yesterday and last night. To-day the inhabitants of the place, men, women, and children, have sought refuge in Puebla after covering on foot the eight miles that separate the two cities.

Again dynamite has played a terrible rôle in the fighting. The facility with which a cap can be fitted to the end of a fuse and then thrust into a stick of dynamite, lighted, and tossed anywhere with ease, with little danger to the thrower, makes it a favorite weapon. Owing to their experience in the mines nearly all peons are familiar with the use of this terrible explosive.

In Cholula lighted sticks of dynamite were tossed through the windows of dwellings, to explode within, wrecking the house and either killing the inmates or burying them beneath the débris. Fires started in a dozen places and still are blazing unrestrained.

Refugees estimate that sixty dead are lying on the pavement around the principal plaza, where the fighting was the hottest. It is impossible to calculate the deaths within the houses.

The trouble arose when a Maderist force approached the city and asked permission to enter. Fearing disorder, the Federal commander of the garrison of some forty men requested that the Maderists camp outside the city. This suggestion was answered by a demand on the part of the Maderists for the surrender of the town. The commander, when thoroughly convined that the object of the band was to loot, defended the place until he was obliged to retire by the force of superior numbers and with most of his command dead. The citizens fought side by side with the Federals, and many lost their lives on the firing line, defending their homes.

All the refugees report the conduct of the Federals, a small fragment of Diaz's army, as having been heroic in the extreme.

When the soldiers were forced to retire riot reigned supreme. The better class residents hurried together a few belongings and started in the night to walk over the rocky hills to Puebla.

In the meantime Puebla, with 110,000 souls, waited in abject fear, expecting a similar fate. For days Puebla has been threatened by mobs. Demonstrations in honor of Madero have nearly all ended in lawlessness in some form or other. The storekeepers have closed their shops and barred their doors before nightfall. People have been afraid to venture in the streets.

Yesterday was the saint's day of Maximo Serdar, one of those who lost their lives in the first fight for Madero. Permission was asked of the Jefe Politico to hold a demonstration at his tomb. On account of the danger of disorder the permission was refused, and then the populace took the law in their own hands and held a great manifestation in the cemetery, ending in a parade at night in which windows were broken and pedestrians assaulted.

Then came the news of the attack on Cholula, and the lower classes assumed a more defiant attitude. Two Maderist leaders, who were known to have little control over the men they commanded, rode into the town and demanded that their forces be allowed to enter, as there was no barracks for them. Knowing what the outcome would be the authorities refused, and more fuel was added to the fire. The Maderists left in a huff ,and, it is feared, will try to march on the city.

To make the almost chaotic conditions worse Provisional Governor Izunza resigned at the moment when the situation was almost delicate. Thanks to the orders of the commander of the military zone that the soldiers should use ball catridges the minute the situa-

NEW DRUG FROM TOAD POISON

Johns Hopkins Professor Discovers Heart Stimulant, Naming It Bufogin.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 30.—Poison from the tropical toad has been declared by Dr. John Abel of Johns Hopkins University and Dr. David Macht, a powerful stimulant to heart action. They have made the discovery by experimenting, and they call the new drug bufogin. In a statement of the discovery the doctors say:

"The marked action of bufogin on the heart, its constrictive action, and its powerful stimulative action on the cardio-inhibitory centre compel us to class this drug with the most effective of the digitalis series. The fluid is obtained from the gland behind the ear of the bufo agua, the largest of tropical toads found in South America."

The Hopkins scientists experimented on bullfrogs from Montego Bay, Jamaica. The doctors have milked as many as sixty toads at a time, using curved forceps to which is attached a bowl to catch the venom. The aboriginal tribes of South America used the venom from the bufo agua to poison their arrow tips. So far the tests or experiments have been confined to animals, with satisfactory results.

From the earliest times the toad has been regarded as a venomous animal and the Chinese have long used a preparation derived from toad skin which they call senso. This senso is similar to digitalis, which is a powder or tincture made from the leaves of the fox glove. Senso, however, is from fifty to one hundred times more powerful than digitalis.

CALLS PASTORS IN CONTEMPT

Judge Threatens Prosecution for Action in Criticising Cox Case.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 30.—"The members of the Methodist Ministers' Association of Cincinnati have committed contempt of court and will be held liable for prosecution for this reason," said Judge William L. Dickson of the Hamilton County Common Pleas Court to-day. He had reference to the resolutions passed yesterday by the association and in which they took exception to the ruling of his court in the case of the State of Ohio versus George B. Cox.

On the other hand, ministers said to-night that they will be glad to face the court on contempt charges. The Rev. C. W. Blodgett says there is no such thing as justice in the country.

"The ministers have committed contempt in that they issued a set of resolutions which may prejudice the minds of Judges in this case, which is still unsettled," said Judge Dickson. "I shall send these resolutions to the Bar Association, where they will be read over and where the contempt charges will in all likelihood be drawn up and later presented to the court.. I have been told to-day that the ministers consulted with several attorneys before they drew up and passed their resolutions. I have also been told that they were informed by local lawyers that it would in no sense be contempt to pass them. However, these pastors should have known, and they did know, that the Cox case is not yet settled. I do not care for myself, but I think the court has a right to protect other judges from being prejudiced, as such resolutions would prejudice them."

The ministers say that while Judge Dickson could and did find the law to let Cox out of his troubles, nevertheless, there was a big principle at stake, and one which should never have been allowed to go by without a trial of the defendant.

Judge Dickson said that the ministers should study their bibles more and let the law alone, because none of them could ever be lawyers.

RACE TO SEE TAFT FIRST.

Col. Goethals and Arosemena Hurrying to Washington on Special Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 30.—Because Col. George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, differed with customs Inspectors about a trivial part of his baggage, Carlos C. Arosemena, Minister of Public Works in Panama and nephew of the President of that republic, is twelve hours ahead of the American in a race to Washington.

Col. Goethals, who arrived here from the Canal Zone last night, came to the United States for the purpose of suppressing gambling in Panama. He thought the best way to do this was to obtain drastic action by President Taft, and was en route to Washington to urge the Chief Executive to bring to bear all pressure possible. That is said to have been what Arosemena wanted to prevent. He quickly complied with the customs regulations and took an early morning train to Washington.

Col. Goethals found he could not get a through train before night. He says gambling is threatening the whole social fabric in the Canal Zone and that it can be suppressed by rigorous measures, which the Panama Government seemingly is not disposed to enforce.

PROTEST TO BALDWIN WORKS

Labor Unions Threaten Strike Following Discharge of 1,200 Men.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—The District Council of the Allied Locomotive Builders Union at a meeting to-night decided to send a delegation to the officials of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, to "protest against discrimination against union men in the Baldwin works, and to demand the reinstatement of the 1,200 men discharged by the company on Friday."

It was persistently rumored that strike votes were being taken at the meeting of the locals held during the day and that the vote was overwhelmingly in favor of striking. No officer of the unions would verify that, however, and all said that for the present the employes of the Baldwin plant do not wish to talk strike, as they believe that they can settle their troubles with the management amicably.

If representatives of the council fail to accomplish their purpose, and to obtain from the Baldwin Company a pledge not to discriminate against union men, the council is to hold a special meeting at once, and special meetings of the locals will be called and a strike vote taken.

TAFT AND LAURIER TO SPEAK.

Will Be Guests of Port Huron Business Association on Same Day.

PORT HURON, Mich., May 30.—The Young Men's Business Association of Port Huron has received the acceptance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Premier of Canada, to visit Port Huron in September the same day that President Taft will be here.

In view of the general interest in the pending reciprocity treaty the announcement that President Taft and Premier Laurier are to be here on the same day has received extraordinary attention.

GARROS NOW AT PISA IN PARIS-TURIN RACE

LATTER STALLED AT ALASSIO

GENOA, May 30.—Roland Garros, the French aviator, is now leading in the great Paris-Rome-Turin race for prizes aggregating $100,000. He reached Pisa this evening and will remain there until dawn, when he starts for Rome.

Garros's successful rival in the first stage of the contest, André Beaumont, who beat him to Nice, met with a series of misfortunes to-day and is stalled at Alassio, about midway between Nice and Genoa.

Frey, the German representative, has got as far as Genoa, reaching this city shortly after 6 o'clock this evening.

From Nice to Genoa Garros was saluted all along the coast by soldiers' bugles, cannon shots, and cheers from the crowds. When he arrived here the enthusiasm was almost indescribable. All manner of craft flung out their flags and bunting. The whistles of steamers joined in the chorus of cheers. Thousands of persons surrounded Garros and his aeroplane. The French and Italian flags and later the flowers with which the spectators decorated the machine were torn off to be kept as mementos of a splendid flight. Eventually troops were obliged to intervene to protect the airman.

The departure of Garros for Pisa was the signal for fresh demonstrations, and the air rang with cries of "Viva Garros!" "Viva Francia!" Arriving at Pisa, Garros landed on the estate of the King, the Cascine di San Rossore. Practically all the inhabitants of Pisa, Leghorn, and the surrounding towns invaded the place, and Garros was almost suffocated by the enthusiastic people, who swept down upon him like an avalanche, bore him to earth, and finally carried him on their shoulders in triumph, while women covered him with flowers.

Garros, though a Frenchman, is entered in the present 1,300-mile event under the Moissant American management and uses an American-designed machine.

The aviator, in telling of his experiences, said that he encountered extremely stormy weather and several times was in danger of being capsized. He seemed, however, to be in good physical condition.

Frey, who left Avignon at 5:30 this morning, made an excellent flight to Nice, and finally reached Genoa in a state of exhaustion. He promptly retired to rest, and will start at the earliest moment to-morrow with the ardent desire of catching up with the leader.

Beaumont was stalled at Nice for the greater part of the day. He worked with feverish haste to put his machine in order, and, after several unsatisfactory trials, set a straight course for Genoa. He was compelled to descend at Alassio, where he stopped over night.

Kimmerling, who landed last evening at Brignoles, remained there during the day. He tried a new machine, but put it aside as unsatisfactory and sent for two others from Lyons. Probably he will not be able to continue the journey before to-morrow afternoon or Thursday. Kimmerling tried to start from Brignoles this afternoon with a wheezing motor. He had gone only about 300 feet when he dived straight to the ground with a terrific crash. As the crowd rushed up to his assistance the aviator stepped out of the debris unscratched.

Manissero's machine was capsized by an air flurry at Coligny, a small town in the French department of Ain. A wing of his aeroplane was split, but Manissero was not injured.

In consequence of an accident at Celles-sur-Ource, in the French Department of Aube, the American aviator Weyman announced his withdrawal from the race.

Gaget has also given up the contest.

Bathiat, on his way to Dijon, was brought to a standstill for the day at Frolois, a short distance from his destination, by a storm.

The Italian battleships Regina Elena, Vittorio Emanuele III., and Umberto, and a number of torpedo-boats were to-day scattered along the coast from Genoa to the French frontier and to Pisa for the purpose of aiding the airmen if necessary. The Mayors of the villages along the coast ordered boatmen to be ready to render assistance should any of the aviators fall into the sea. Everywhere along the coast the greatest excitement prevailed.

NICE, May 30.—The Franco-Italian air race is being followed here, the starting point on the second stage of the flight, with something like the interest shown in the historic French Grand Prix automobile events, with the added thrill of a contest through space.

Large crowds went this morning to the aerodrome to get a peep at Garros and Beaumont, the victors in the contest yesterday. As the airmen wheeled out their machines and prepared, as Garros said, to "negotiate" Italy, both were in good spirits. Beaumont, however, was greatly disappointed when he found the oil conductor of his machine clogged and had to return the monoplane to its shed.

In the meantime Garros had jumped to his seat, started the propeller, and was speeding with his machine toward Cape Ferret. He passed over the sea, hugging the coast until he disappeared from view in the haze.

Arriving from Avignon, the German airman Frey immediately cleaned his motor, and this afternoon followed on the heels of Garros.

TO HELP AT CORONATION.

Dukes and Others Chosen by King—Jobs for Roberts and Kitchener.

LONDON, May 30.—The official regulations to govern the coronation are being gradually concluded.

The King to-day made a number of special appointments of high officials. The Duke of Northumberland, the Duke of Fife, the Duke of Abercorn, and the Earl of Crawford were appointed respectively High Steward of England, High Constable of England, High Constable of Ireland, and Deputy Steward of Scotland.

Among the bearers of the Royal regalia appear the names of Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, who are to carry the second and third swords, while the Duke of Roxburghe is appointed to carry the Steward's staff.

The police have issued elaborate regulations to control the crowds on coronation day.

With the constant arrival of foreign guests, receptions, dinners, and balls are being held at ducal houses and others daily. The coming three weeks will be a whirl of social excitement. The Duke and Duchess of Norfolk gave a dinner and reception to-night in honor of the Colonial Premiers.

AUGUST BELMONT HURT ON POLO FIELD

BLUE RIBBON MATCH TO-DAY

August Belmont, Sr., who appeared as a polo player again yesterday for the first time since the accident, a year ago, in which he broke several ribs, was thrown by his pony in a practice game at Meadow Brook, on the field on which England and America will battle to-day for the international polo championship.

Mr. Belmont and several other members of the Meadow Brook Club were having a practice game when he met with his injury. He was coming down the field fast after the ball when his pony stumbled and threw him. He clung to the reins and the pony was brought to a stop, but the animal in jumping around struck Mr. Belmont's left arm with one of his hoofs.

The other players hurried to Mr. Belmont's aid and he was picked up in a dazed condition and assisted to the clubhouse. A physician was called, who found that no bones were broken, but that Mr. Belmont's arm was considerably bruised. He afterward was sent to his home in Hempstead.

The huge quadrangle on which to-day's match will be played, is all ready for the scurry and dashes of the ponies, the big grandstands on the east and west sides await an enthusiastic and fashionable crowd, while in the stables, munching the best of oats, stamp and neigh fourscore of the finest and most expensive polo ponies in the world, the pick of America, England, Ireland, India, Australia, and the Argentine.

The odds on the final result of the best two in three matches are heavy on the American side, 4 to 1, and even 5 to 1 being offered against the chances of the International cup leaving these shores at least for the present year. American team-work is expected to overthrow any individual work and brilliancy which the English players may possess, while experts predicted last night that the visitors would find themselves out-ponied, as well as outplayed.

Nevertheless, some of the finest polo ever seen on this side of the water is anticipated, while in addition to being closely followed by thousands of enthusiasts, the matches are looked upon as the crowning social event of the Spring season. Polo followers from half a world over will be back of the white sideboards this afternoon, watching every stroke, every plunge for the white-painted wooden ball, every ride-off, and the concentrated team work by both sides.

Back of these experts, massed tier on tier in boxes and on benches, will be the greater part of the social register of New York, with a fair sprinkling of New Haven, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, and Chicago society. Official recognition will also accompany the matches with the anticipated presence to-day of George Von L. Meyer, Secretary of the Navy, a polo player himself, and for several years a member of the team of the Myopia Hunt Club of Hamilton, Mass.

The officials of the Polo Association, together with Harry Payne Whitney and J. M. Waterbury of the American team, strolled over the field yesterday accompanied by several of the English team. The final grass cutting was in progress and a score of men were plugging up little holes with soft loam, otherwise the field was in grand shape. No pony has trod this piece of turf for a week or more and the broad expanse from the top of the grandstand looks like an enlarged billiard table.

These grandstands have been gaily decorated with the colors of the two nations, that on the west bearing the American flags, together with the light blue and white of the Meadowbrook team. Across on the east side recognition is given the visitors, and with the British flag is mingled the dark blue and white of the Hurlingham Club, from which Captain J. Hardress Lloyd and his teammates play.

The English ponies came over from the Rockaway Hunt Club yesterday afternoon in what was a cavalcade of horses and grooms, followed by teams carrying blankets, saddles, and harness. During the matches the ponies will have temporary stables on either side of the field.

The two teams have gone outside of New York for officials, and Joshua Crane, Jr., of the Dedham Polo Club, near Boston, and one time coach of the Harvard football team, will hold sway as referee and inflict whatever penalties are necessary. Captain F. W. Barrett of England and lately from India, and who was withdrawn as back from the challenging team last week, will be one of the umpires, and C. R. Snowden, one of Philadelphia's best players.

The programme for to-day's contest will be found in detail on the sporting page of THE TIMES.

DIES WHILE DINING.

Patrons of Silsbe's restaurant at 509 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, were startled last night, when a man who was dining with friends at one of the tables in the centre of the room uttered a cry of pain and fell to the floor.

He was Sigmund Jacobson, a jeweller, of 140 West 112th Street, Manhattan. He quickly became unconscious. He was carried to a side room and died there before the arrival of Ambulance Surgeon Robinson from the Brooklyn Hospital.

According to the doctor, Mr. Jacobson's death was due to acute indigestion. His body was taken to the Adams Street police station. Mr. Jacobson had been at the table about three-quarters of an hour and the attack came when he was practically at the end of the meal. He was a bachelor.

SHUT UP WIFE'S BODY MONTHS IN HIS FLAT

The body of a woman, half immersed in water and dead for many months, was found late on Monday afternoon in a four-room apartment in the model tenement house at 511 East Seventy-eighth Street, in which it had been locked at least since February last. Yesterday the police succeeded in identifying the body as that of Lillian Scheib, wife of Henry A. Scheib, a chauffeur, and after questioning Scheib closely and hearing many contradictory and some false statements they are detaining him as a suspicious person.

The police are working on suspicion that the woman was murdered. A suspicious circumstance surrounding the finding of the body was that, although it was in the bathtub, there was no evidence that the woman had died in trying to take a bath. A man's shirt had been drawn over her head, and a gingham apron and a bath towel had been tied about her body. The shirt's size was 14½. It bore the laundry mark "73-14-T. B.," and this same laundry mark was found upon men's No. 15 collars found in the flat, and upon other No. 15 men's collars found in Scheib's room in Amsterdam Avenue.

A pair of woman's bath slippers were found beside the stove in the kitchen. No supply of women's clthes was fund in the apartment such as a woman would normally be expected to have in her home, although a few bits of lingerie were found in a traveling case.

The peculiar actions of and contradictory stories told by the husband served to arouse still further the suspicions of the police.

Coroner Hellenstein and Coroner's Physician Lehane found nearly all the vital organs in such a state that it would be practically impossible to determine whether death was due to drowning, poison, asphyxiation, or a blow. An early report spread soon after the body was discovered that powerful chemicals had been mixed with the water in the bathtub to destroy evidence of crime was ridiculed both by the police and the Coroner's Physician, although samples of the water have been sent to Prof. Larkin of Columbia University for analysis, along with such parts of the woman's lungs and stomach as remained.

All the police could find out from Daniel Smith, caretaker of the tenement, and Edward McCurley, the Superintendent, was that on Sept. 9 last Scheib and the dead woman applied for a four-room apartment. The tenement is one of those owned by the City and Suburban Homes Company. The couple rented Apartment 23, which is on the ground floor, for $4 a week.

One of the rules of the tenement is that tenants must furnish suitable references. As such reference Scheib wrote out on the blank provided that he was married to Lillian Scheib, that he was an American, and that he had just come from 247 West Forty-eighth Street.

The officials in charge of the tenement concluded yesterday that they must have liked the looks of the couple a great deal, as they did not think to look this reference up. The Scheibs moved in on Sept. 10.

They paid their rent regularly, and the other tenants grew to know and to like them. Twice the Superintendent was called in to repair the heating apparatus. He said he always knew them as a loving couple, and often saw them strolling in the vicinity of the new Jefferson Park, which is being blasted down from a huge boulder along the East River front.

In December—according to the memory of Supt. McCurley, and perhaps a little later, according to Caretaker Smith—Mrs. Scheib suddenly dropped out of sight. Scheib gave it out that they had had a falling out and that she had gone to Cleveland to visit her family and would be back in a few weeks. Shortly thereafter, he said, he was finding it too lonesome without her, and would take a room somewhere else, but would like to keep the apartment, so as to have it ready for her upon her return.

Still Paid the Rent.

Scheib also dropped out of sight. Yet he sent the rent money every week until May 19, when he failed to make the usual remittance. Then the caretaker concluded that he had given up the place permanently. For four months the Superintendent had received complaints from the apartment above that of the Scheibs about a disagreeable odor, and he had searched in vain for the cause of it.

On Monday last Dan Smith entered the apartment and looked around. The bathroom door was closed, there was a deep coating of dust over everything, but the rooms were in order. Upon returning to the office the woman bookkeeper suggested that she look the place over with him, and the two went back together. The woman opened the bathroom door and ran out screaming. Smith merely glanced in and telephoned for the police.

Supt. McCurley examined the premises carefully. He said yesterday that from all appearances the woman had died while bathing. His first conclusion was that it was the body of Scheib himself, and that was also the conclusion of Detective Scully, who was the first policeman to arrive.

Late Monday night Detectives Ownes, McMahon, Holmes, and McGee from Second Deputy Dougherty's new squad were assigned to the case. Early yesterday morning they took Harry A. Scheib into custody as he drove into the automobile garage of Cimiotti Brothers, at 112th Street and Broadway, in an automobile owned by George Wyeth, a capitalist interested in accounting machines, who lives at 2,881 Broadway.

Scheib at first denied his identity, declaring that his name was Smith and that he knew nothing of the East Seventy-eighth Street place. He said also, according to the police, that he knew nothing whatever of any young women. They searched his pockets and produced a letter signed "May." This confused him slightly, and he admitted that he was Scheib and had lived in East Seventy-eighth Street, but that his wife had left him after a quarrel and had not come back to him.

Said He Revisited Apartment.

He declared also that he had paid the rent personally, while he kept away from the apartment, and had visited it on April 15 to get a coat which he had left there on departing in February. The last time he had seen his wife, he said, was on February 2, when she called up a girl named Craham in an apartment house

REEF STILL GRIPS VIRGINIA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, May 30.—The Cuban coastwise steamer Julian Alonzo arrived to-night with Lamont Dominick and the Virginia's steward aboard. Mr. Dominick is leaving for New York in the morning. The steward returns to-morrow on board the Julian Alonzo with supplies for the Virginia.

Mr. Benedict and party remain aboard the Virginia, which is not leaking and is in no apparent danger, though all efforts to pull her off are so far futile.

Merritt Chapman's relief ship ordered arrives from Norfolk on Sunday, when efforts to pull her off will be renewed.

The yacht is hung amidships on a coral reef.

Arranges for Audience to Hungarian Premier—Report of Death Denied.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 31.—Rumors reached here last night from Paris that Emperor Francis Joseph had died suddenly.

A dispatch from Vienna, received at about midnight, however, gave a semi-official statement that the improvement in the Emperor's condition continued. He has been driving for hours daily.

The Emperor, according to this dispatch, intends to grant a farewell audience to-day to the Hungarian Premier.

HELD FOR POLYGAMY.

Cambridge Police Arrest Mormon Who Fled to Utah to Escape Charge.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 30.—Peter Dugresne, a Mormon, who is alleged to have married Mary Lane here in 1899 and Josephine Perry two years later, and who fled to Utah when he was indicted on a polygamy charge, is under arrest here.

The police say that soon after Dugresne reached Utah he was arrested for larceny and sentenced to a long term of imprisonment. He was released ten days ago and came directly back to Cambridge.

WANTS TO ENTER ASYLUM.

Col. Ward's Son Loses Memory and Applies to San Francisco Hospital.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—John M. Ward, son of Col. Francis M. Ward, Commissioner of Public Works of Buffalo, N. Y., applied for admission to the insanity division of the receiving hospital yesterday.

Mr. Ward said he lost his memory while en route from Buffalo to Seattle and that he had no knowledge of how he had reached Oakland. He feared that in another lapse of memory he might do harm to himself or others.

Mr. Ward was advised there was no means by which he could be received at the hospital unless a complaint charging insanity were sworn to.

MOB ASKS MAYOR TO RESIGN.

Oklahoma Executive Had Declined to Make Way for Successor.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 30.—Following a meeting here yesterday, more than 1,000 men marched to the City Hall and demanded the resignation of Mayor Lackey, who with the City Council has refused to vacate his office in favor of the newly elected Mayor and the City Commissioners.

A message from Whit M. Grant, the successful Mayoralty candidate in the recent election, asking the angry crowd to await the decision of the court, brought an end to the disturbance.

PITTSBURG COUNCILS END.

Old Regime of Two Chambers Makes Way for a Smaller Body.

PITTSBURG, May 30.—Smiling and seemingly with no regret at being deprived of office, Pittsburg Councils last night went out of existence The meeting was the passing of the old régime of the large two chamber Councils, composed of representatives from each ward. Now they are to give way to a small compact body of nine men, appointed first for seven months, then to be elected by the people of the city at large. This was made possible by the passage of an act in the closing days of the Legislature last week.

It is true that the Councilmen hold over until their successors are appointed, but as Gov. John K. Tener may name the nine Councilmen to-day or to-morrow, last night's session was considered as the Councilmen's last appearance.

MRS. BULL'S VISIONS.

Brooklyn Witness Again to Testify About Her Alleged Delusions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALFRED, Me., May 30.—When the hearing in Mrs. Olea Bull Vaughn's contest against the will of her mother, Mrs. Ole Bull, is resumed to-morrow, Miss Sivi E. Swanander of Brooklyn, N. Y., will be recalled to the witness stand.

Miss Swanander has already testified as to alleged delusions that Mrs. Bull had concerning deceased persons, among whom were Swami Vivekananda of India, Ole Bull, her husband; Edwina, her daughter's child, and Mr. and Mrs. Thorp, her parents.

Miss Swanander said that Mrs. Bull claimed to have been visited by the spirits of these persons, and that she had bought gifts for herself at their request. The Swami Vivekananda, she said, was described as standing under a tree in full bloom, and the child Edwina as appearing in a pink radiance.

Mrs. Edith Swanander, the mother of Miss Swanander, will also give testimony.

RAHWAY FACTORY BURNED.

A Dozen Firemen Overcome in Fighting Blaze in Royal Company's Plant.

RAHWAY, N. J., May 30.—A fire started at 12 o'clock to-day in the Royal Manufacturing Company's plant here. The loss will be $30,000. It was discovered in the picking department, which was filled with inflammable waste undergoing the operation of having the oil extracted, and the building was a roaring furnace when the firemen arrived. By hard work they succeeded in saving the oil building, which was licked by the flames, as well as the boiler house and Storehouse 2. The fire was confined to Storehouse 1. A dozen firemen were overcome by smoke.

The wind carried sparks to the roofs of residences along Grand and Bridge Streets. The chemical engine company extinguished six fires while the other firemen were fighting the Royal Manufacting Company blaze.

TOBACCO DECISION MEETS WITH FAVOR

COMPANY IS READY TO OBEY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The passing of a day since the handing down of the Supreme Court's decision in the Tobacco Trust case has done little in the way of crystallizing opinion in Washington as to the ultimate effects of that dictum. Perhaps the fact that the day was a holiday was partly responsible for the little interest shown, though the decision of the Standard Oil case two weeks ago, along largely identical lines, probably explains the failure of many men to delve into the 18,000 words of yesterday's closely reasoned decision.

To-day, instead of summarizing in a few sentences their impression of the whole decision, as was so readily done after the decision of the Standard Oil case, public men content themselves with pointing out particular phases of the decision which they consider wise or dangerous, leaving the balance to be struck at a later date. This simple exercise of prudence seems on the face of it to indicate a suspension of judgment that can hardly fail to carry back to the earlier trust decision, while the absence of the sharp criticism that was at once directed against that decision suggests that the Chief Justice's "rule of reason" may now appear more reasonable to his critics than it at first did.

The Chief Justice himself in his opinion yesterday declared that the case was far more sweeping than the Standard Oil case, and the point he made is now making its impression, that while the "reasonable" interpretation may let certain acts stand as lawful in the light of reason, it also arms the court with the terrible weapon of reason with which to go behind all forms of technical obedience of the law to punish its essential violation, no matter how skillfully it may be disguised.

"Reasonable" Doubly Effective.

In other words opponents of oppression by trusts are now finding consolation in the Chief Justice's declaration that the "reasonable" interpretation of the anti-trust act cuts both ways—that while it excludes from the operation of the law certain restraints of trade apparently in conflict with the letter of the law, it brings directly before the bar of justice a multitude of acts too numerous to mention, legal in form and technically correct, which yet by their connection with other acts tend inevitably to violations of the statute. The Chief Justice discusses this point at length in connection with a mass of complicated facts set forth by the testimony. Says his decision:

> But the difficulties which arise from the complexity of the particular dealings which are here involved and the situation they produce, we think, grows out of a plain misconception of both the letter and the spirit of the Anti-Trust act. We say of the letter because, while seeking by a narrow rule of the letter to include things which it is deemed would otherwise be excluded, the contention really destroys the great purpose of the act, since it renders it impossible to apply the law to a multitude of wrongful acts which would come within the scope of its remedial purposes by resort to a reasonable construction, although they would not be within its reach by a too narrow and unreasonable adherence to the strict letter.

The mere narration of the dealings of the Tobacco Trust, says the Chief Justice, shows what harm would come to the public by a literal interpretation of the statute. The need of interpretation at all, he points out, arises from the fact that the language of the statute is general, and the generalness of the language he gives as one of its strong points. He says:

> That is to say, it was held that, in view of the general language of the statute and the public policy which it manifested, there was no possibility of frustrating that policy by resorting to any disguise or subterfuge of form, since resort to reason rendered it impossible to escape by any indirection the prohibitions of the statute.

Lower Court's Burden.

The suggestion, however, is not satisfying all the critics of the court. Many still point to the enormous burden the decision throws upon the lower court that must guide the defendant to a rehabilitation in harmony with the law. And while the Supreme Court's unfailing determination to go behind forms to reach the substance is not questioned, men are asking in all seriousness, What will be the remedy if after the lower court has accepted a plan of reorganization, the plan should be utilized in a way to result in further infractions of the law? How far would immunity be accorded because the plan had already met with judicial approval before the case comes up?

In connection with this burden on the lower court attention is again being called to President Taft's message on the same subject when he deprecated amending the statute by the insertion of the word "unreasonable," which has since been read into the language by the court. Said the President:

> It has been proposed, however, that the word "reasonable" should be made a part of the statute, and then that it should be left to the court to say what is reasonable restraint of trade, what is a reasonable suppression of competition, what is a reasonable monopoly. I venture to think that this is to put into the hands of the court a power impossible to exercise on any consistent principle which will insure the uniformity of decision essential to best judgment. It is to thrust upon the courts a burden they have no precedents to enable them to carry, and to give them a power approaching the arbitrary, the abuse of which might involve our whole judicial system in disaster.

Would Seize Trusts' Goods.

Judge E. H. Madison, insurgent Representative in Congress from Kansas, said to-day in regretting that the Supreme Court had not ordered the immediate dissolution of the trusts held to be unlawful, that what seemed to be a forgotten section of the Anti-Trust law still gives the Attorney General a great opportunity. According to Mr. Madison, the products of an illegal combination in inter-State trade are contraband and liable to seizure and sale by the Government. He would have the oil and tobacco of the two trusts thus seized and sold.

"The thing which friends of the enforcement of the Sherman Anti-Trust law will most regret about the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust decisions," said Mr. Madison, "is the failure of the Supreme Court to hand down a decree effectually and at once ending the combinations which it denounces as unlawful in unmeasured terms. The Court in effect so far as the exercise of its injunctive powers is concerned, practically licenses those combinations to continue their unlawful combination for six months. Such a judgment will not discourage them, but simply lend hope that during this period they may devise schemes that will enable them to evade the law for another long period.

"This will particularly apply to the Standard Oil Company, upon which the will of the court is removed during this period. The Circuit Court ordered the dissolution of the trust in thirty days and until dissolved it was enjoined from engaging in inter-State commerce. That sort of decree had real teeth in it. If it had been upheld by the Supreme Court the dissolution would have occurred by now and the trust would have understood it was really under the condemnation of the law. Dealing with trusts by gentle taps on the wrists will accomplish nothing.

Favors Personal Prosecutions.

"There is a great opportunity before Attorney General Wickersham—the greatest that has come to any Attorney General since the enactment of the Sherman law. The highest court in the land has held that the actions of John D. and William Rockefeller and their associates, and H. B. Duke, T. F. Ryan and their associates were clearly in violation of law. Those still living could be, and should be, prosecuted. Every gallon of oil moving to-day in inter-State commerce and every pound of tobacco is outlawed under the provisions of Section 6 of the Sherman law and can be seized and forfeited to the United States. Mr. Wickersham can if he desires make these combinations, and the men who continue them, feel the heavy hand of the law they have persistently violated. That is the only way they will ever learn to respect it."

The only instance of a prison sentence under the Sherman law was, it is asserted, in the case of the United States against the Naval Stores Company and others, in 1909. The defendants were indicted and found guilty of monopolizing and restraining inter-State trade under the Sherman law, and Judge Sheppard, United States Circuit Judge, Southern District of Georgia, imposed sentence, sending two of the defendants to jail, as well as fining them and three others $17,500.

The Sherman law gives the trial judges the option of imposing prison sentence; that is, the judge may send an individual convicted under the anti-trust act to jail, but he does not have to do so.

CABINET MEMBER'S OPINION.

"Rule of Reason" Not New and Once Concurred in by Justice Harlan.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—That the Government means to formulate its anti-trust policies in accord with the "rule of reason" as laid down by the Supreme Court in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust decisions, notwithstanding the vigorous dissents of Associate Justice Harlan and the large number of bills introduced in the Senate to amend the Sherman Anti-trust law, was made evident to-day.

Administration officials, after a day's consideration and study of the Tobacco decision and a thorough comparison with the Standard Oil decision, were agreed that the "rule of reason" is no new feature of the Supreme Court's interpretation of the law, and one member of the Cabinet, whose views have always been regarded as reflecting those of the Administration, made a comprehensive statement to that effect. The statement was attributed to "an official close to the Administration." It follows, in part:

"Justice Harlan in his dissenting opinion in the tobacco case objects vigorously to the application in the construction of the act of Congress of the 'rule of reason,' to which attention was called by the Chief Justice in his opinion in the Standard Oil case, and again in the tobacco case. Justice Harlan declares that to insert by construction the word 'unreasonable' or 'undue' in the Sherman act is judicial legislation.

"Congress, he says, has in language so clear and simple that there is no room whatever for construction signified its purpose to forbid every restraint of trade in whatever form, to whatever extent, whereas the court under the Chief Justice's opinion inserts in the law words which make Congress say that it means only to prohibit 'undue' restraint of trade. This he objects to as amounting to a reading into the act by judicial legislation of an exception not placed there by the lawmaking branch of the Government, and this, he contends, the court cannot and ought not to do.

Cites a Precedent.

"But Justice Harlan has not always regarded the judicial function as excluding the right to interpret statutes in the light of reason and to refuse a literal application to the words of the act where that would involve a manifest wrong. In the case of Church of the Holy Trinity against United States, the court had under consideration the act of Congress known as the Alien Immigration act, passed Feb. 26, 1885.

"The Church of the Holy Trinity in New York had made a contract with the Rev. E. Walpole Warren, an alien residing in England, to remove to New York and enter into its service as its rector and pastor for a compensation to be paid to him; and because of that contract an action was brought against the church by the United States to recover the penalty prescribed for a violation of this act. Justice Brewer wrote the opinion of the court, in which all the other Justices, including Justice Harlan, concurred. He premised by conceding 'that the act of the corporation is within the letter of this section, for the relation of rector to his church is one of service and implies labor on the one side, with compensation on the other.'

"He further noted that certain specific exceptions made in the act in which clergymen were not included strengthened the idea that every other kind of labor and service was intended to be reached by the statute. Yet notwithstanding all of that, it was said that that court could not think that Congress intended to denounce with penalties a transaction like the employment of a Chrstian minister.

What Justice Brewer Said.

"'It is a familiar rule,' said Justice Brewer, 'that a thing may be within the letter of the statute and yet not within the statute, because not within its spirit, nor within the intention of its makers. This has been often asserted and the reports are full of cases illustrating its application. This is not the substitution of the will of the judge for that of the legislator, for frequently words of general meaning are used in a statute, words broad enough to include an act in question, and yet a consideration of the whole legislation, or of the circumstances surrounding its enactment, or of the absurd results which follow from giving such broad meaning to the words, makes it unreasonable to believe that the legislator intended to include the particular act.'

"The whole of this opinion constituted in effect an argument that a literal construction should not be given to the statute, but a reasonable interpretation, not the 'rule of the letter which kills.' The court which occurred in that opinion included Chief Justice Fuller and Associate Justices Brewer and Brown. These jurists deliberately adjudged that a case, which concededly was within the express language of the statute, was not controlled by it, because the acts complained of, although within the letter, were not within the intention of Congress.

"This was nothing more or less than applying to the construction and application of statute the rule of construction invoked by the Chief Justice in the Standard Oil case, namely, that of examining the case by the light of reason, lest the literal construction and application of the law should bring about the very destruction and restraint of all trade and commerce which it is the purpose of the statute to prevent.

The Joint Traffic Case.

"Or, as was said in the Joint Traffic case by Justice Peckham himself, 'the act of Congress must have a reasonable construction or else there scarcely would be an agreement or contract among business men that could not be said to have indirectly or remotely some bearing on inter-State commerce and possibly to restrain it.'

"The decision in the case of the Church of the Holy Trinity clearly demonstrates that no new principle is introduced by the rule of construction adopted by the court in both the Standard Oil and the tobacco cases, but that the same rule was applied there which often has been applied before of reading general words in a statute by the light of the reason for the enactment of the statute, the history of the evil which gave rise to the legislation, and the purpose for which the legislation was enacted; and the further duty to give to the words of a statute, if possible, an interpretation which, while accomplishing the result which the statute was enacted to bring about, will avoid the untoward consequences which would necessarily follow a narrow and literal interpretation of its meaning."

TOBACCO TRUST WILL OBEY.

Readjustment of Business to be in Good Faith, Says Its Counsel.

The Tobacco Trust is prepared to take its medicine. In accordance with the directions of the United States Supreme Court, it will set itself in good faith to readjust its business so as to meet the approval of the Circuit Court of the Second New York District. This was announced yesterday by W. W. Fuller, Chief Counsel of the American Tobacco Company, at the conclusion of a prolonged conference held in the offices of the American Cigar Company, 111 Fifth Avenue.

James B. Duke, the President, and other leading officials of the trust met yesterday morning Mr. Fuller and De Lancey Nicoll, and went over the situation for several hours. They had hanging over them the threat that if the trust could not satisfy the United States courts within the time set for dissolution a receiver for the corporation would be appointed. No details of their conference were given out, but at its conclusion Mr. Fuller said:

"The Supreme Court of the United States has in this case given to the Sherman anti-trust law, as the court says in its opinion, a 'more comprehensive application than has been affixed to it in any previous decision,' and has held that the American Tobacco Company is embraced in the provisions of that law. My clients will, of course, obey the law as now interpreted, and will in good faith undertake the readjustment of their business and affairs in such manner as shall be directed by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, to which the Supreme Court has committed the case for such direction."

The work of splitting up the business of the trust, which was formed by the consolidation of eighty-six companies and has a combined capitalization of $450,395,890, into such concerns as will meet the approval of the Federal courts will necessarily be difficult and complex, and no statement was made yesterday as to the general lines that will be followed. Mr. Fuller was asked whether it was likely that there will be anything further made public in the near future, and declared that this did not at present seem likely.

It was pointed out yesterday by James C. McReynolds, who was Special Prosecutor for the United States Government in the Tobacco Trust case, that one effect of the decisions of the Supreme Court is to strengthen the hands of the courts to issue injunctions against corporations infringing the Sherman Anti-Trust act.

Up to the present decision there had been some doubt as to the application of the Sherman act, and the lower courts were unwilling to issue preliminary injunctions that would interfere with the business of a corporation, but now, when a case can be brought the facts of which are similar to those of the Tobacco and Standard Oil cases, the courts will be able to act freely, with the certainty that they are following the rulings of the highest court.

Mr. McReynolds was inclined to think that too much comment had been used about the word "unreasonable," and declared that in the Tobacco Trust case the question of reasonableness had never entered into the consideration of the prosecution.

SUBSIDIARIES NOT WORRIED.

Reorganization to be a Complicated Affair, J. B. Moos Says.

CHICAGO, May 30.—Joseph B. Moos, President of the J. & B. Moos Company, the principal Chicago defendants in the Tobacco Trust suit, said to-day that in his opinion the principal result of the United States Supreme Court decision will be a strict definition of exactly what the Sherman law prohibits and what it allows.

"That in reality," said Mr. Moos, "is the real bone of contention. We will do everything we can possibly do to help the court reorganize our business. This will be a complicated and tedious thing, and will require a vast amount of labor.

"Personally I don't think the decision will affect the business of any of the subsidiary companies."

DECISION PLEASES GOULD.

Forsees Boom—Bache Thinks Court Should Have Been Clearer.

George J. Gould, who went to the North German Lloyd pier, Hoboken, yesterday to see his family off to Europe on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, said that in his opinion business would be better all over the country, now that the decisions have been handed down in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Trust cases.

"Business men know now," said Mr. Gould, "where they stand, whereas before these decisions were rendered they were in doubt. I am for the United States Supreme Court every time. In 120 years it has never been wrong. Everywhere the apprehension of business men is at an end and a boom in prosperity is surely in sight and should commence without delay."

Asked regarding the United States Steel investigation, Mr. Gould said:

"I don't think that the Steel Trust has done anything to be prosecuted for. I recognize the cut in steel prices as a good thing. The steel business has been moving along rather sluggishly, and in order to meet your customers you must reduce prices in any business. Moving around is a good thing for all businesses."

Speaking of conditions generally, Mr. Gould said that the crop outlook was excellent and the indications were for much better railroad earnings. The upheaval in the steel business was only a natural result of healthy competition, and in his opinion, meant a betterment for the producer and the consumer.

Mrs. Gould will go with her children, Gloria and Edith, to Paris to wait for Mr. Gould, who will cross on his yacht Atalanta.

Jules S. Bache, the banker, sailed on the Cecilie for a five weeks' trip. He said that business prospects looked very good to him.

"I think that the decision of the United States Supreme Court," said Mr. Bache, "might have been made clearer. The tobacco decision was better than the Standard Oil decision in that the Tobacco Trust is ordered to reorganize and to present its plans of reorganization to the Government before putting them into effect, while the Standard Oil is told to reorganize and if the Government doesn't like the arrangements when completed there will have to be another reorganization."

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gates also were among the Cecilie's passengers.

TOBACCO FACTORIES BUSY.

Can't Reduce Output, Officials Say, but May Affect Business System.

RICHMOND, Va., May 30.—The Supreme Court's decision in the tobacco case is viewed with little concern by the operating officials of the American Tobacco Company's factories here.

"It cannot reduce our output," said one official to-day, "as the demand for cigars, cigarettes, chewing tobacco, and even for snuff is increasing.

"Manufacturing must go on, but it seems probable that under the required reorganization we may be inconvenienced by having a clumsier and more extensive system, with separated companies, increased bookkeeping, more officers, and other features not in harmony with modern and scientific business methods."

DIRECTOR G. W. ELKINS'S VIEW.

Thinks the Decision Will Clarify the Business Situation.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—The decision of the Supreme Court in the Tobacco Trust case will clarify the business situation and prove an immediate boon to business generally, in the opinion of George W. Elkins, who is one of the large holders of stock in the American Tobacco Company, and one of its Directors. After reading the Supreme Court decision, Mr. Elkins, at his home in Elkins Park today, said:

"At the regular meeting of the tobacco company Directors, which will be held to-morrow in New York, I am quite sure steps will be taken to work out, in conjunction with the Circuit Court, a plan of readjustment that will be in full compliance with the Supreme Court's mandate. Just on what lines that plan will be predicated I cannot, of course, now say.

"I am strongly in favor of a national corporation act, which will, as near as can possibly be done, define the exact business limitations of corporations doing an inter-State business."

LITTLE EFFECT IN LONDON.

Prices of American Securities a Fraction Higher.

LONDON, May 30.—The decision of the United States Supreme Court holding the American Tobacco Company to be a combination in restraint of trade and a monopoly in violation of law had little effect on American securities here to-day, and prices opened a fraction higher.

Other influences, however, affected the specialties. The cut in steel prices sent United States Steel shares 1 point below parity, but these losses were partly recovered by noon.

New York buying of Canadian Pacific shares caused a spurt of 3 points, while Union Pacific jumped 1½ points. The rest of the market hardened in sympathy.

IMMENSE OUTING TRAFFIC.

All New York Seemed to Strive Yesterday to Get Into the Suburbs.

Such skies as blessed the countless excursion parties yesterday may not have been the best possible in the light of an impending water famine, but they were perfect for holiday purposes. Although it seemed as though plenty of people had stayed in town to see the parade and to keep New York moving, a glance at the piers and railroad stations would have convinced one that almost everybody was bent on getting outside Manhattan.

Shortly after breakfast time the Coney Island boat had about all they could carry, and a heavy business was done by the lines running to Glen Island, Long Branch, Sea Gate and Atlantic Highlands. Special trips up the Hudson had been arranged for the day, and tempting advertisements had told of how far you could go and how much you could see for how little.

West Point seemed to be the great objective on the Hudson, and the Grand Republic could not make room for all who wanted to sail away in it. Not only the big river steamers but the municipal ferryboats carried a record traffic. At South Ferry it looked as though all New York were bent on going to Staten Island.

At the New York Central a very heavy traffic was reported last night, and in the evening it was found necessary to run special trains, some of them in sections. From the Pennsylvania Station more than 6,000 people made the Long Island trip alone.

ROW AT GARIBALDI STATUE.

Before sunrise yesterday members of the Italian Socialistic Federation were at the statue of Giuseppe Garibaldi, in Washington Square, tying a wreath to the hilt of the half-drawn sword of the great liberator. Then they tied a placard to Garibaldi's wrist with an inscription in Italian informing all who cared to read, or who could read it, that the Socialists of the Italian colony of New York honored themselves in honoring Garibaldi, who fought for a free Italy and a republican form of Government.

The Italian Socialists were congratulating themselves that they had gotten ahead of the Italo-American Mutual Benevolent Association, which each year places a large wreath on the pedestal of the Garibaldi Statue.

At noon the Italo-American Mutual Benevolent Association, all wearing white caps and with a band at their head playing the Italian royal march, entered the park from the Thompson Street entrance.

Policemen allowed one man to climb upon the statue and take down the wreath and the placards.

There were loud cries from the Socialists, and the police started to drive them away. Some stopped to argue and one policeman beat them with his fists.

FINDS NO FAULT WITH SERVICE COMMISSION

FOR NEW SUBWAY METHODS

Would Have City Determine Routes Without Consulting Companies That Might Operate Them.

John N. Carlisle, who was commissioned by Gov. Dix to investigate the Public Service Commission of this district, has commended it in all points in his report, which he sent to the Governor yesterday. He has condemned the proposal for the consolidation of the two Public Service Commissions and also the suggestion for the re-establishment of a Rapid Transit Commission appointed by the municipal authorities. He has expressed the opinion that public officials should determine the routes of new subways without consulting the companies that would presumably operate them, and that thereby the delays caused by the present system would be largely avoided.

The absence of criticism from Mr. Carlisle's report has aroused interest, because it was generally assumed that he had been sent to provide the Governor with an excuse for radical recommendations with regard to the present commissions. In his first message to the Legislature the Governor called attention to the increase in the expenditure of the local commission and then declared that before long he would have recommendations to make with regard to both bodies. Mr. Carlisle was at one time Chairman of the Executive Committee of the State Democratic Committee. He was appointed to the Public Service Commission of the Second District by Gov. Hughes to fill out an unexpired term and was replaced last Winter by W. A. Huppuch, former partner of Gov. Dix.

No Critics Appeared.

Mr. Carlisle begins his report by pointing out that he publicly invited all persons having any grievance against the Public Service Commission in this city to appear at a hearing in the Engineering Societies Building on April 4. No one responded. Then he entered on a personal examination of the commission, examining employes under oath and conferring with practically all the operating officials of the Public Service Corporations of the city and all persons or associations who wrote to him. He was assisted by two expert accountants from the Controller's office and by W. P. Coleman, an expert accountant in the employ of the Public Service Commission of the Second District.

As to the suggested substitution of one State-wide commission for the present two commissions Mr. Carlisle says:

> In my judgment this should not be done. The great volume of work now in the hands of both commissions is taking their entire time and attention, and such a law would only lead to delay in carrying out the provisions of the act. As all public service corporations now are required to submit any franchise procured by them for approval, to procure consent for the exercise of any rights under any franchise, and to secure approval before issuing any stocks or bonds or certificates of indebtedness for a longer period than one year, the corporations subject to such control are entitled to prompt action upon applications of this character.
> In New York City there are comparatively few corporations, but all with large capital, while under the control of the Second District there are a large number of corporations, 1,187, of smaller capitalization, but all requiring supervision and all having applications to be submitted for approval.
>
> The work of the commission in the City of New York is in a sense different from the work of the up-State commission, in that the commission in the City of New York is dealing with a very large population in a small area, where congested conditions frequently arise and require prompt attention by persons acquainted with local conditions.
> I thoroughly believe that consolidation of the commissions would result in great delay in the work intrusted to them, which would seriously affect the corporations under their control, and would be detrimental to the service which such corporations are required to render to the public at large. The saving in cost would be small, because, if the Commissioners, all of whom are now giving their entire attention, were reduced in number, other persons would have to be employed to do the work which they are now doing, and in the end the reduction in cost would be trivial compared with the outcome of the work.

Passing on to consider the proposal to take the power of the old Rapid Transit Commission out of the hands of the Public Service Commission and intrust it to a separate body, Mr. Carlisle points out that the present commission has on hand a comprehensive plan for the building of new subways which they hope soon to carry out. He says:

> An attempt at this time, when the work has progressed so far, to change the personnel of the commission would result in further delay in subway construction, and I do not believe would be tolerated by the people of New York, who are so greatly in need of additional facilities.

Would Revise Railroad Law.

Mr. Carlise would, however, have further revision of the railroad law, which he declares is in many ways inconsistent with the Public Service Commissions law. In particular he speaks of the grade-crossing provisions, saying:

> The grade crossing provisions of the railroad law particularly require amendment. There can never be any comprehensive eliminations of the present grade crossings in the City of New York under the present statute, as nothing can be done until the State appropriates one-quarter of the expense of elimination, and no order can be made eliminating a crossing until the money is actually appropriated. The appropriations for the City of New York have been very small, and have not permitted a comprehensive plan to be laid out. There should be placed in the general law provisions somewhat similar to the special grade crossing acts heretofore passed affecting New York, Buffalo, and other cities, whereby the city officials and the railroads can adopt a comprehensive plan covering a number of years and then proceed to work out the details.

Mr. Carlisle says that to-day it is generally recognized that public supervision has come to stay. At first the work of the New York commission was experimental, and created some friction, especially as to how far the Commissioners should make orders affecting management and operation. This friction, he thinks, has greatly decreased, operating officials and the commission having come to understand each other. He says:

> The great trouble is that the people of the City of New York have expected too much from the commission. No body of men, no matter how powerful, nor how numerous, can ever solve all the problems relating to the methods and operations of public service corporations in the City of New York. There will always be complaints, just and unjust, filed against the companies under their supervision, upon which the commission must act, and those unsuccessful in securing the objects they desire will always feel aggrieved.

Considers Our Subway Problem.

Mr. Carlisle devotes a good deal of space to the transit problem in this city and considers the criticisms over the delay in determining new subway routes in the light of history. He points out that one new building now being erected on Broadway will house enough people to block the Subway for more than half an hour if they all attempted to travel simultaneously, and that this is only one of a large number of skyscrapers now under construction. He goes on:

> During the rush hours of the day there are no words that can fittingly describe what the children, women, and men of New York have to submit to, and every month these conditions are growing worse. There is no other city in the world where such congestion exists or would be tolerated, and the people of the city are properly demanding of their officials that permanent relief be devised and put in operation.

At the same time Mr. Carlisle is not prepared to say that the public is justified in putting the blame for the delay on the Public Service Commission. He enumerates the various proposals put forward, and declares that many persons, who have given the question full consideration, believe that public officials should begin construction and not wait until the entire question of operation has been settled as well. Mr. Carlisle sympathizes with this view, saying:

> Undoubtedly the question as to the route is a very important one in connection with an operating company, but my own opinion is that the public officials, in order to give to the people of New York a comprehensive and adequate subway system, should themselves determine where such a system should be built and should require the operating company to comply with the routes laid out by them, and not permit the operating company to fix the routes themselves. Similar delays will always result in connection with subway construction unless the public officials take the bull by the horns, lay out the routes which they believe are best suited to the people of New York, commence construction promptly, and then procure operators.
>
> The view that no operator can be procured is in my opinion absurd. The great congestion of population in New York will make any subway operation very profitable upon any kind of fair terms. The only fair criticism that can be laid against the commission in connection with the delay is that after they had laid out the Triborough route they were apparently willing to postpone action and negotiate for a change of route to suit the demands of proposed operators.

What the Commission Has Done.

At the same time Mr. Carlisle thinks that full credit should be given to the commission for the great works that have been undertaken or in progress in the city more or less under its supervision since July 1, 1907, all of which he believes relieve in some degree the conditions now existing. These he enumerates as the Pennsylvania tubes and new station, New York Central Station, Steinway tunnel, McAdoo tunnels, initiation McAdoo extension to Grand Central Station, Queensboro Bridge, Manhattan Bridge, Atlantic Avenue Subway and elevation of Long Island Railroad, Brighton Beach depression, Bay Ridge and East New York elevation and depression of Long Island Railroad, connecting railroad joining Long Island and Pennsylvania Railroads with New Haven Railroad across Ward's Island (certificates issued and plans well under way,) New York & Westchester Railroad (under construction in the Bronx,) municipal ferry to Staten Island, Brooklyn extension of Interborough Subway, Van Cortlandt Park extension of Interborough Subway in the Bronx, Centre Street Subway (uncompleted,) Fourth Avenue (Brooklyn) Subway (under construction,) through transportation over Brooklyn Bridge, largely abolishing terminal congestion; 25 per cent. increase of capacity of Interborough Subway by ordering side-door cars, improved signals, and lengthening stations; improvement of surface and rapid transit traffic through the city by service orders, and rehabilitation of track and rolling stock through all surface lines.

Mr. Carlisle has devoted a good deal of space to salaries and general expenditures of the New York board and finds nothing amiss. The contribution of the city to its maintenance for 1910 was $1,208,010, but for 1911 the amount asked for is only $985,193.

The average salary paid to the Public Service Commission employes is shown to be less than to those of the Finance Department and the Law Department, though more than to those of the Water Supply Department. The engineering cost to the commission of the construction of the Brooklyn loop was 6 per cent. of the entire cost and is likely to be the same for the Fourth Avenue Subway, whereas the engineering cost of the Pennsylvania tunnels was 5.8 per cent., of the Boston Subway, 9.9 per cent., and of the East Boston tunnel 6 per cent. The expense of making plans for the Triborough Subway Mr. Carlisle estimates at 0.37 per cent., whereas it cost 0.7 per cent. to prepare plans for the Pennsylvania tunnels.

SHUT UP WIFE'S BODY MONTHS IN HIS FLAT

at 2881 Broadway. He said that later that night he found in his apartment a note, which read:

> LILLIAN.

Scheib could not produce the note. He said in explaining it that two years ago he had a job at Amityville, where he had to work many hours a day because the man he worked for had motor boats as well as automobiles and frequently went out on evening boat trips. His wife did not like this at all, he insisted, and always accused him of having too many opportunities to meet other women. Finally she left him, he declared, and he returned to New York and searched until he found her at the home of a friend. Then they went to the model tenement to see if they could not get along together.

All went well for a short time, but then she began to accuse him of having women friends, he said. So he decided that if she ever went away again to let her go, and make no effort whatever to find her, giving her a chance to come back of her own will.

On this ground he excused his inaction after his wife's disappearance and also his policy of paying the rent just as if he had occupied the flat.

Late last night the police questioned Albert Minor, who said he rented the front room of his four-room flat at 993 Amsterdam Avenue to Scheib, whom he knew well, some time in February. He said Scheib had told him he was married, but that his wife had undergone an operation at the German Hospital and had gone to stay with her folks in Springfield, Mass. He paid for the room a week in advance and promised to bring his trunk the next day.

This, however, he did not do, Minor told the police. He never brought to the place anything more than the clothes he had on him and two shirts and a collar or two. Mr. Minor said the police were at liberty to look through the bureau in which Scheib kept his effects—such as they were.

Find Letters From Women.

> Hotel Empire, New York,
> April 24, 1911.
>
> Dear Harry: Was sorry that May and I couldn't get home from Brooklyn in time to see you. Kindly try your best to get down to-night, Monday, if only for a few minutes. Come between 8 and 8:30 o'clock, and we will wait for you. If you can, bring the car down. I wish you would.
> ETHEL.
> P. S.—Please excuse errors, as a slip of the hand is no fault of the person.

In another envelope, which was badly worn, was a letter signed Anna, which read in part:

> I read a telegram from my sister this morning stating that my mother is very sick, and that I should come home, so I am taking the first train. I tried to get you on the 'phone this morning, but you were not around.
>
> I don't feel envious of your wife, but I am glad you can see me, too. Your wife is very lucky in having you. O, dear, I don't know what I am driving at, so I won't try any further. You told me that you enjoyed yourself Sunday night, but I want to have you tell me again, so do in your next letter.

The letter was very affectionate throughout. It was postmarked at Station H, New York, at 11 A. M., April 19.

Following a suggestion indicated in the letter signed "Ethel," detectives from the Central Office interviewed Miss Ethel Mullin at the home of her parents, 635 Ninth Avenue. Miss Mullin said that she and her friend, May Flannery, met Scheib four months ago, and that while he had been attentive since that time he had never mentioned to her that he was married. He took her out, but always brought her back home early, she said, and this was corroborated by the girl's mother, who added that her daughter had written to him just once, and this with her consent.

A badly worn letter was addressed to William Allen, from H. S. Allen, his brother, at Avalon, Catalina Island. It was dated March 22, 1911, and inclosed $40 sent in response to a night lettergram from Allen, asking for the money. The letter said that this was all the brother could raise, and that he was sorry his brother was out of work, with a sick wife in the great city.

At the Cimiotti Garage it was learned that Scheib had never been known there as Allen, but that a William Allen had once worked there, and had recently dropped out of sight. Those in charge of the garage were at a loss to know how Allen's mail came into the possession of Scheib.

It was declared that Scheib very frequently borrowed from the other chauffeurs "for medical attendance for his sick wife."

At 2,881 Broadway, where Scheib said his wife had called up a friend on Feb. 2, it was found that a young girl was acquainted with both Mr. and Mrs. Scheib. She told the police that she had never received the telephone call mentioned, but that the next day Scheib himself had called and had asked her many times if his wife had called her and if she was trying to find out about his affairs.

At this house Scheib's employer, Mr. Wyeth, lived. He said he had hired Scheib last October. The chauffeur had never taken the automobile out for joy rides, so far as he was aware.

Scheib frequently told him of his sick wife and the operation in the German Hospital, accompanying his recitals with requests for loans. According to the understanding of Mr. Wyeth, Mrs. Scheib was a talented girl of good parentage whose mother had died shortly after her birth, and whose father, John Glover, resided at Springfield, Mass. Miss Glover, preceding her marriage, attended Wellesley College, and became actively interested in the suffragist movement.

SAYS BLEASE TOOK BRIBES.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 30.—Denouncing Gov. Cole Blease of South Carolina and announcing his purpose to attempt to have him indicted, Thomas B. Felder, a prominent lawyer of Atlanta this afternoon explained why a warrant had been sworn out for him in South Carolina on a charge of attempted bribery. A South Carolina official is en route to Atlanta with the warrant, and Felder will probably be arrested to-morrow. He will fight extradition.

The warrant was sworn out at the instance of Gov. Blease, who charges that Felder tried to bribe H. H. Evans, a member of the Board of Directors of the State Dispensary of South Carolina, and that he conspired to cheat and defraud the State.

Felder, who was attorney for the old Dispensary Commission of South Carolina, charges that he has in his possession evidence that Gov. Blease, while State Senator, received $4,000 from one liquor house for using his influence in its behalf, and that he received many thousands from other liquor dealers. He declares that the charge against him has been prompted by Gov. Blease.

GOSSIP MOTIVE FOR SUICIDE.

Girl Left Note to Man She Accused of Talking About Her.

Tenants in the lodging house at 262 South Fourth Street, Williamsburg, were startled by the report of a pistol shot last night and found Sophie Peterson, a factory girl, dying in her room. A revolver lay beside her and she had a wound in the right temple.

Dr. Rosenberg came from the Eastern District Hospital, but when he arrived the girl was dead. A note was on the bureau in the room addressed, the police say, to Matthew Zetto of 74 Richardson Street. The girl accused Zetto of having told stories about her and declared that for this reason she intended to end her life.

tion seemed to be getting beyond control and by the posting of heavily armed squads on the church towers and at other points of vantage the night was passed without a serious outbreak. Fearing the entry of a band from Cholula, a heavy guard was stationed at the penitentiary, which, being just outside the city on the Cholula Road, would be the first point of attack.

Puebla could defend itself if all the soldiers would remain loyal, but owing to the present situation it is hard to tell which leader is to be obeyed.

The disorders in San Luis Potosi continue. Dr. Jesus Sanchez, a member of a family among the most prominent in Northern Mexico, on returning home yesterday, was approached by a Maderist guard, who demanded a sum of money for the 'cause." The doctor promised to give the money on his arrival at his house, not carrying the amount with him. On reaching home he found a Maderist trying to enter the room in which were the women of the family, whereupon the doctor shot the man dead. The news quickly spread and friends had to spirit the entire family away to save their lives from mob violence.

At Tampico last night a mob attacked the jail and were met by rifle fire from the guards. Seven were killed and twelve wounded. Reports of minor disturbances are coming in from all parts of the country.

In Mexico City the police are no longer respected, and it is almost impossible to make arrests. If a policeman attempts to take a member of the lower class to jail he is surrounded by a band of hoodlums and the prisoner is spirited away. Often the policeman is beaten with clubs.

FLIGHT OF CIENTIFICOS.

Two Newspaper Men on Their Way Here and May Go to Europe.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 30.—Rosendo Pineda and Luis del Toro, two of the best known "Cientificos" of Mexico, the downfall of which party came with the triumph of the Madero revolution, passed through San Antonio yesterday en route for New York, whence, it is reported, they will sail for Europe. While here they registered at a hotel under assumed names.

Pineda was editor of El Debate, the foremost Cientifico organ in Mexico. He was a stanch adherent of Diaz and Corral, especially Corral, who is said to have financed the paper.

Del Toro was sub-editor and chief writer of the paper, the anti-Madero articles in which are said to have brought it into disfavor with the new administration.

Whether or not the two men were implicated in any plot is not known, but it is hinted that they feared arrest in Mexico and started for New York as soon as news came that Madero would go to Mexico City.

DIAZ LEAVES MEXICO TO-DAY.

Consuls at Vera Cruz Pay Their Respects to Him—He Is Much Better.

VERA CRUZ, May 30.—The Consular Corps, representing sixteen countries and headed by United States Consul William Canada, Dean of the corps, paid their respects to Gen. Diaz this morning. The ex-President greeted all most cordially and had a pleasant word for each.

Gen. Diaz, accompanied by Señora Diaz, Porfirio Diaz, Jr., and his wife, five grandchildren, and other members of the family, will go aboard the steamer Ypiranga to-morrow afternoon. The steamer will sail for Spain the same night or the following day.

Those who have visited the ex-President report that he is much improved physically. The swelling in his face has disappeared, and all danger of blood poisoning, with which he was threatened, has passed.

MEXICAN LYNCHED IN TEXAS.

Shouted "Viva Diaz!" While Others Celebrated Madero's Victory.

EL PASO, May 30.—A dispatch from Barstow, Texas, reports the lynching of a Mexican for shouting "Viva Diaz!" The Mexican was surrounded by Americans and Mexicans and shot.

No arrests were made.

TRAVEL STILL PRECARIOUS.

Train from Mexico City to San Antonio Frequently Stopped.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., May 30.—J. Loubens, proprietor of a large grocery store in Mexico City, arrived from the Mexican capital to-day. He says travel in Mexico is not as safe with peace declared as it was four months ago.

Leaving Mexico City last Wednesday Mr. Loubens and his wife had not proceeded two hours on their journey when insurrectos stopped the train and held it up all night. They went through the train looking for men who had been connected with the Diaz Government, and in some cases taking valuables.

The next morning the train proceeded to Irapuato. Two hours after leaving there insurrectos stopped it at Gonzales and held it for five hours.

AMERICANS HONOR MADERO.

Dinner to Him to be Given by El Paso Chamber of Commerce To-night.

Special to The New York Times.

JUAREZ, May 30.—Francisco I. Madero, Jr., went into American territory to-day for the first time since the capture of Juarez. The occasion was a luncheon in his honor at the home of F. Wells Brown, a well-known citizen of El Paso.

To-morrow night Madero will again visit El Paso, this time as the guest of honor at a dinner given by the El Paso Chamber of Commerce. On Thursday night he will attend a dance in this city and on Friday he goes to El Paso to take a train for Eagle Pass, where a special train will be waiting to take him to the City of Mexico.

Señor Madero, when seen at his home here this evening, said there was no news to be given out, adding that he was busy getting ready for his journey.

MRS. HIBBARD ON THE STAGE

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 30.—Mrs. George A. Hibbard, widow of the ex-Mayor of Boston, has decided to take up the stage professionally. She will make her début at the Majestic Theatre next Monday evening in "The Chorus Lady." She will assume the rôle of the show girl, who plays a conspicuous part in the second act. It is the show girl who smokes cigarettes and tells about her diamonds and automobiles, and when asked what salary she receives remarks that it is $18 per.

It is a clever character bit, and those who have seen Mrs. Hibbard at rehearsals say she gives the lines and business with the true spirit of a comedienne. Mrs. Hibbard will have her own name on the playbills.

For many years Mrs. Hibbard has been interested in private theatricals. She has always been considered among the best of the amateurs of Boston. She is an excellent reader and possesses comedy instincts. A year ago, when the Woman's Professional Club gave "Peg Woffington" at the Park Theatre Mrs. Hibbard assumed the title role and won generous applause. She also has portrayed the character of Lady Teazle in "School for Scandal."

Ex-Mayor Hibbard, who died shortly after his term of office expired, was a comparatively poor man. He was for a long time postmaster of Boston.

EULOGIES FOR TOM JOHNSON.

Henry George, Jr., and Other Friends Speak at a Meeting in His Memory.

Congressman Henry George, Jr., whose father inspired the late Tom L. Johnson in his activities for the public welfare, delivered a eulogy to Mr. Johnson's memory last night in the hall of the Ethical Culture Society. The Congressman, who knew Mr. Johnson well, said that he had been the greatest Mayor of the best-governed city in the world and that he was made the victim of traitors who were once his friends. He said that Mr. Johnson died broken hearted, but facing defeat like a man, and that it was only after Mr. Johnson's death that the people of Cleveland realized that a really great man had been among them.

The meeting was held in memory of Mr. Johnson. Lawson Purdy, Tax Commissioner, presided, and among the speakers were ex-Congressman John De Witt Warner, Mrs. Edward W. Bemis, formerly of Cleveland; ex-Congressman Robert Baker, Tenement House Commissioner John J. Murphy, Dr. John L. Elliott, Miss Grace Isabel Colbron, and John Sherwin Crosby, President of the New York Single Tax League.

On the platform were the Presidents of various single tax leagues.

Tax Commissioner Purdy said that he was entitled to speak as a personal friend of Mr. Johnson, whom he had known and admired for many years. He said that one of Mr. Johnson's most distinguishing marks was that he never allowed any private interests to swerve him from his public duty. He said Mr. Johnson at one time had many special privileges, but never once allowed them to influence his vote or his views.

EXERCISES IN ELEVENTH AV.

Children Brought There to Sing In Memoriam of Little Ones Killed.

The De Witt Clinton Park in Eleventh Avenue was noisy yesterday afternoon with the voices of many children, most of them small girls, who had gone there to spend the afternoon at the invitation of the West Side Children's Playground and Recreation Conference. H. G. Schneider, a Bronx school teacher, led them in singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and gave the signal for cheers.

Mr. Schneider is much interested in the abolition of the New York Central tracks from Eleventh Avenue, so he called the festivities yesterday memorial services in honor of the little lives that have been lost on "Death Avenue." He is also back of the movement that has placed a tablet in Public School 51 in honor of Martin H. Ray, for forty-three years teacher and Principal there. So he referred to the gathering in the park as a memorial to Mr. Ray.

Inasmuch as Senator O'Gorman, a former pupil of Ray's, was unable to unveil the tablet yesterday all ceremonies relating to the Principal were postponed until late in June, when the Senator will be able to attend.

CATHOLIC LOVE OF COUNTRY.

French Aid in Revolution Largely Attributed to Father Carroll.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 30.—Memorial Day was celebrated here by a large parade of the parochial school children and the men of the Church of the Immaculate Conception and the presentation of a silk flag to the parochial school by the Holy Name Society of Montclair.

In accepting the flag for the parochial school, the Rev. William A. Brothers, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, strongly condemned the State for failure to provide the support of the parochial schools.

"There is one blemish on our otherwise glorious flag," he said, "one star where the lustre is obscured. That is the taxation of the Catholics for the support of the public schools. Taxation without representation is admittedly unjust."

Turning to Mayor Hinck, the Rev. Father Brothers said: "What would Montclair do if the 550 pupils who attend the parochial school were turned over to the public schools next September? The tax budget would go up $20,000. The Catholics are saving the State millions of dollars every year by supporting their own schools.

"A certain organization has spread throughout the United States the impression that it is the only patriotic society. We don't think it necessary to worship the flag to be loyal. Wherever the cross of Christ stands over the door you will find the very essence of patriotism and love of country. The Catholic Church stands for progressive civilization founded on a love of God and country.

"Here is a piece of history which has never been published, but which can be verified by reference to the National Archives at Washington. In the darkest days of the War of the Revolution, the Rev. Father Carroll, a brother of the richest man in the country at that time, was asked by Gen. Washington to intercede with France to aid the Colonists in their struggle against England. Father Carroll went himself to Rome, where he put his case before the Pope. The head of the Catholic Church sent a special Embassy to intercede with the French Government, and as a result troops that rendered valuable aid in the fight for independence were sent here. Benjamin Franklin, also sent by Gen. Washington, was in France at the time, and to Franklin was accorded all the credit for this achievement."

LIVED ON GRASS IN WOODS.

Escaped Patient from Asylum Fought His Captors Fiercely.

Subsisting in the woods north of Patchogue, L. I., for five days on grass and the bark of threes, John G. Ingerman, who escaped five days ago from the State Hospital for the Insane at Central Islip, L. I., was recaptured yesterday. Though in a starving condition and much weakened by exposure, he fought his captors fiercely, and it was not until they had bound his hands and feet that they were able to put him in a wagon. He was taken back to the State Hospital.

About noon yesterday Seward F. Raynor, Albert Stegman and Ralph Richmond, three teamsters, were sitting in the woods eating their midday meal during the noon hour, when Ingerman appeared. He was emaciated, his clothes were in tatters, and he was covered with cuts and bruises from bushes and brambles. The workmen recognized the escaped hospital patient from descriptions which had been posted. They were his captors.

CHEERS OF 200,000 FOR MARCHING ARMY

VETERANS OUT IN FORCE

Thinning Ranks March and Salute, Undaunted by the Passing of Half a Century.

Under a sky that could not have breathed a more kindly benediction, the memories of the Civil War passed up Riverside Drive yesterday morning in a great Memorial Day parade past the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument. There Maj. Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, himself a memory of that war, a sturdy one still, reviewed them with a proud eye that had surveyed Gettysburg and many another field, yet had never seen a finer sight than this of the thinned ranks of his old comrades, still warring bravely with time.

Carrying their battered and torn battleflags, they came slowly into view from under the trees around a bend in the road, saluted with slow doffing of caps and trembling hands as they approached the reviewing stand, and faded away again under the trees. Each year they come from under the trees and fade away around the bend in the road, each year their ranks a little thinner.

Despite the fine weather there were considerably less than 1,000 veterans in the line of march that formed at Seventy-second Street and marched to Ninety-first Street; but their sons and grandsons—yes, and their great-grandsons and great-granddaughters, too, in 150 military, semi-military and civic organizations—swelled the total number of marchers to more than 20,000. It took more than an hour and a half for the column to file past the reviewing stand.

200,000 to Cheer Them.

Though the hearts of the 200,000 men, women and children who crowded at both sides of the drive were plainly with the few survivors of war days, their pride and applause were awakened no less by the stalwart National Guardsmen and regulars who have taken on the national defense from them as a heritage, and the 3,000 American Boy Scouts who are eager to displace the National Guardsmen and regulars, and recklessly to champion a course of world-war for the Stars and Stripes.

A dense throng of men, women, and children, with flags and badges and sashes of red, white and blue, gathered under the trees around the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument long before 8:30 A. M. The monument was draped with four great flags and surrounded with floral wreathes placed there by the Grand Army posts.

At 9 o'clock there floated westward in Eighty-ninth Street the first strains of martial music. Presently they hove in sight a brilliant red-coated band in white helmets, with flashing silver and brass instruments. Behind this marched the Veteran Corps of Artillery, in black coats, with white shoulder straps and white trousers, and black hussar caps topped with towering red aigrettes. The corps, which served as a special guard of honor to Gen. Sickles, the reviewing officer, consisted of sons and descendants of veterans of the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812. It was organized in 1790 and has been in service ever since. It still wears its ancient uniform, although the last Revolutionary soldier died at the age of 109 in 1864, and the last veteran of 1812 at the age of 105 years four years ago. Col. Asa Bird Gardiner is head of the corps, but Major Charles Elliot Warren commanded it yesterday as it filed past the reviewing stand.

Ten minutes later, with another blare of trumpets, the Old Guard band and the Old Guard itself, the special escort to Gen. Sickles, came into sight around the bend in Riverside Drive just south of the reviewing stand, each man resplendent in white swallow-tail, with gold belt and shoulder straps and blue trousers; and each pompous, if not cool, under a black fur shako.

On the Reviewing Stand.

With the Old Guard was Gen. Sickles in a carriage with Gen. George B. Loud, Chairman of the Memorial Day Committee, and Mrs. Nielson Daly and Miss Erlanger Wilmerding. Gen. Sickles was assisted to the stand, where he was joined by his staff, composed of Gen. Julius H. Stahl, Gen. James Grant Wilson, Gen. Horace Porter, Gen. Anson G. McCook, Gen. John T. Lockman, Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, Gen. Nicholas W. Day, Justice James A. Blanchard, Justice Vernon M. Davis, Henry Clews, and Abraham Lawrence.

"Come here, Loud!" shouted Gen. Sickles. "I want you by my side. Now, let 'em come!"

And come they did, headed by a glittering platoon of mounted police under Lieut. David McCarthy of the Traffic Squad. Behind these shone the white uniformed sailors and marines from the navy yard. In front of them rode Lieut. Commander T. C. Hart, with his ensign, I. C. Kidd, as adjutant.

After the marines marched the First Division of the National Guard, led by Major Gen. Charles F. Roe, and beginning with Squadron A. Then a blue corps of Coast Artillery, under Capt. John F. Ryan, with six gun carriages and field pieces; next a Field Hospital squad. The Seventh Regiment under Col. Daniel Appleton, in gray and white uniform, and the Twelfth under Col. George R. Dyer marched close behind.

Then came a drum-major, alone and unaided, fully 6½ feet high, and behind him the Seventy-first Regiment under Col. William Bates.

So dazzling was the show they made that they quite addled and bewildered a poor and unmilitary yellow dog that somehow got entangled in the line of march in front of the reviewing stand just then. The dog dodged madly between some fifty pairs of parading white legs before he dodged in the way of a well-aimed blue leg owned by Chief Inspector Schmittberger. Then, amid the plaudits of the throng the dog got out of the line of march.

The music and the marching slowed down after the gallant militiamen had passed the stand. In the distance, with the green trees of the park as a background, could be seen the approaching Grand Army Veterans. In the van slowly rode Col. Matthew Jennings, the Grand Marshal, with an aid de camp at each side of him. Behind the Grand Marshal rode his staff, the Past Grand Marshals, Assistant Adjutant Generals, and aids, with the Grand Army flag aflutter. Near it rode two negro veterans of the war.

Behind this guard of honor to the Grand Marshal marched many small veterans of an unborn war of 1961 or thereabouts who are at present studying music, foot ball, arithmetic, and the arts of peace at Public School 21. Headed by their band, they strode along, very short legs in very long trousers, pride in each bosom and a leftward glance and salute in each eye.

The Grand Army.

Then passed the first of the marching Grand Army posts—Gen. James McQuade Post 559, under Commander Isidore Isaacs. The number of marchers in the Grand Army posts grew smaller and smaller. Phil Kearny Post 8 had just enough old men left to man the two flags and flash the salute with bare sabre and a try at the old martial dash. But the caps were doffed slowly. Just behind these came Dahlgren-Powell Post 113, where one veteran who was lame led another who could not see. But both doffed their caps and raised their hands and marched on.

Three veteran color sergeants, carrying big flags, accompanied by three great-grandson color sergeants carrying little flags, strode proudly at the head of Veteran Post 436. Behind the color sergeants the ranks of the old comrades were sadly depleted, and had to be filled in by half a dozen granddaughters and great-granddaughters of departed men of war, looking neither fierce nor martial in their dainty white dresses and red-white-and-blue sashes. John E. Bendix Post 402 marched bravely past, bearing a faded and torn battle flag to explain why they couldn't march faster or in greater numbers. The throng cheered them till they faded out of view around the bend in the Drive.

Perhaps the most applause, however, fell to the lot of the Zouave posts that followed in the second division of the parade—the Veteran Zouave Association under Col. Frederick L. Schaefer, in their picturesque garb of faded blue bloomers or ante-bellum harem-skirts, and red fezzes, and the Second Duryee Zouaves, in their equally faded red bloomers and blue coats. The Anderson Zouaves followed under Capt. Charles E. Morse, halting of step but still of martial spirit. They looked as if they had just at that moment come out of a terrible raking fire, and looked the more terrible because they were so feeble and few.

Equally odd but less terrible were the men of Cameron Post 79 in plaids, with bagpipes shrilly piping "Yankee Doodle," in Scotch, and a leopard-clad drummer scattering headache and deafness gratuitously. Two negro posts, in the midst of which marched a handsome negro girl aglow in a dizzying dress of red, white and blue, came in for much applause, as did the Helen Bixby Tent of the Daughters of Veterans following a flag that bore Farragut's terse, if not dainty and ladylike command:

"Damn the torpedoes! Go ahead!"

The Grand Army division ended with a few veterans in carriages, that method of travel being better calculated to the powers, though not to the spirit, of the men than marching in the bright sunlight.

Spanish War Veterans.

The Spanish War Veterans came next, led by Major Daniel J. Murphy as marshal. There wasn't much of the age-worn or tattered and torn about these marchers. A few little fellows that toddled beside their daddies, taking three steps to their sires' one, looked no less chipped as to their shoulders. Theodore Roosevelt Camp 1, and New York City Camp 23, consisting of police and firemen of the city who are Spanish War veterans, came in for much applause.

After the Spanish War Veterans came the Army and Navy Union garrisons and then the semi-military organizations led by the Knights of Columbus in black uniforms, red, white, and blue shoulder straps, and brilliant gold-fringed plumes. The Garde de Lafayette, under Capt. Xavier Lemonier, carrying its own French flag beside the National colors, was also roundly cheered. Then came the khaki-clad battalion of American Boy Scouts—fierce little fellows, carrying big muskets.

In the Red Cross Division of the Boy Scouts marched also a company of Girl Scoutesses—or, as one of the scouts whispered basely to a policeman near the reviewing stand, "Girl Skoits."

The parade wound up with the civic division, led by the John Wanamaker Commercial Institute Cadets and brought up in the rear by the cadets of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum. The end of the column passed the reviewing stand an hour and a half after the beginning. Gen. Sickles, who had sat so erectly on his high stool that he appeared from the street to be standing throughout the parade, raised his hand in salute as stiffly and solemnly to the youngest of the Boy Scouts and the last of the orphan cadets as to the oldest and most war-worn of the Grand Army veterans. Then he himself turned in for the day, and, leaning on the arm of Gen. Loud, descended from the stand to his carriage. The throng cheered him again and again as, doffing his hat and waving it on all sides, he drove away.

The exercises concluded with hymns by high school pupils around the monument and a brief memorial address by Gen. Loud. Farragut Post, No. 75, attended as a guard of honor, and its bugler, Edward Fitzgerald, standing at the top of the monument steps, sounded taps for the departed veterans. Then all the veterans were surrounded and grabbed up by sons and daughters and grandchildren, forced to capitulate and lay aside their martial bearing, and taken captive back home. Some of them said they would return next year.

TAFT AN ENEMY OF WAR.

Speaks at Arlington on Lesson to be Drawn from Memorial Day.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Under the shaded arches of the Arlington National Cemetery President Taft spoke to-day, not so much as the friend of peace but the enemy of war. Fully 10,000 people crowded about the speakers' stand. It was probably the most impressive and most largely attended Memorial Day celebration Washington has seen.

"Far be it from me," said the President, "to minimize in any way by these suggestions the debt we owe to the men buried here, who carried on the successful struggle that resulted in the abolition of the cancer of slavery, and which seemed ineradicable save by such an awful slaughter of the brightest and bravest and best of the Nation's youth and manhood.

"I shall not stop to discuss whether it might have been possible to accomplish the same great reform by milder methods. Whether that be true or not, the supreme sacrifice of these men, who lie about us, in the cause of advancing humanity can never be lessened or obscured by such a suggestion. But the thought at which I would but hint this morning is that even in the hallowed presence of these dead, whose ideals of patriotism and love of their countrymen it needed a war to make everlastingly evident, we should abate no effort and should strain every nerve and avail ourselves of every honorable possible device to avoid war in the future.

"I am not blind to the aid in creating sturdy manhood that the military discipline we see in the standing armies of Europe and in the regular army of this country furnishes, nor do I deny the incidental benefits that may grow out of the exigencies and sequelae of war. But when the book of life is written the awful horrors of either internecine or international strife far outweigh the benefits that may be traced to it.

"Let us leave this beautiful city of the National dead, therefore, with the deepest gratitude to the men whose valorous deeds we celebrate, and whose memories we cherish, with the tenderest appreciation of the value of the examples they set, but with a determination in every way possible, consistent with honesty and manly and National self-restraint, to avoid the necessity for the display of that supreme self-sacrifice that we commemorate to-day in them."

It was not so long ago, the President said, when an insult by one man to another in the same social class could only be wiped out in blood, and it took more moral courage to avoid a duel than to fight one. But we have progressed away from that idea, he said.

"If that be true now, why may it not be true in the near future of nations? Why will it not show more patriotism and more love of country to refuse to go to war for an insult and to submit to the arbitrament of a peaceful tribunal, than to subject a whole people to the misery and suffering and burden of heavy cost of a National war, however glossed over by the excitement and ambitions and glory of a successful conquest."

GETTYSBURG, Penn., May 30.—Thousands gathered on the battlefield of Gettysburg to-day to pay their annual tribute of respect to the memory of those who fought and fell here forty-eight years ago. The ceremonies in the National Cemetery followed a parade of military and civic organizations. Over the 4,000 graves school children and veterans scattered flowers, a salute was fired, and taps sounded.

BOSTON, May 30.—In Boston every Grand Army post held special services. As usual the colored veterans decorated the monument of Col. Robert Gould Shaw, the Massachusetts soldier who was killed at Fort Wagner as he led his negro troopers in a charge against a Confederate entrenchment.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 30.—The observance of Memorial Day throughout Connecticut was notable to-day for the larger part taken in the exercises by school children. Throughout the past year, in all cities of Connecticut, frequent patriotic talks have been made to the classes in the schools by prominent veterans, outlining to the children the significance of the day, and in effect turning over to the younger generation the observance of the day.

CHICAGO, May 30.—Civil war veterans, 2,000 strong, sang "John Brown's Body," "Marching Through Georgia," and other war time songs as they led the Memorial Day parade to-day up to the point of review. The crowds first cheered, and then joined in the songs. The line of march was scarcely two miles long. The old fellows kept at it bravely to the end, as it was said this would be the last Decoration Day parade of Chicago veterans.

The ranks were reviewed by Gov. Deneen and Mayor Carter H. Harrison.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 30.—The Blue and the Gray in many cities and villages of the far South joined to-day to honor the memory of soldiers who were killed and buried on Dixie battlefields. Exercises consisted principally in decorating the graves, speechmaking and unveiling of tablets and shafts.

At Andersonville, Ga., exercises were held at the National Cemetery under the auspices of the G. A. R. in Georgia and North Carolina and the Woman's Relief Corps. Flowers and flags were placed on each of the 13,722 graves. Mrs. Isabel Worrell Ball, of Washington, D. C., made the principal address. A tablet to the patriotic work of the women was unveiled at Prison Park.

ACCIDENTS TO VETERANS.

Six Survivors of the War Dead or Dying from Injuries.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 30.—Six veterans of the civil war were victims of violence either accidental or self-inflicted to-day in and about Pittsburg. At Kittanning James Summerville, 73, marching in the rear of the Memorial Day procession, was knocked down by a runaway horse that was frightened by an automobile. He was kicked by the horse, and the wagon tongue fractured his skull.

At Beaver Falls Henry B. Ewing, 76 years old, and with failing sight, thought he was walking into the smoking-room of the City Hall after he had marched with his comrades, but mistook the door and walked into the cellar, falling 15 feet down the stairs.

William A. Kelly fell from a train near West Newton and his mangled body was found after he had been missed by his comrades.

Sylvester Perkins of Greenville, Penn., was run down by an automobile at Jefferson, Ohio.

Jacob Ranker of this city, who went boating after he had marched in the morning, fell asleep in his boat, which capsized, and he was drowned.

G. A. R. VISITOR ROBBED.

Found Congenial Friends Who Took All but His Medals.

Wearing his G. A. R. uniform and the medals he had won, Charles Williams, about 70 years old, appeared at the East Twenty-second Street Police Station late last night and told how he had been robbed of his $100 gold watch and $25.

Williams, who lives at Newtown, Conn., came to this city yesterday for the parade. After the parade he walked around the city until he found himself in a saloon at Fourteenth Street and First Avenue. For some time the old man chatted with a number of new found friends and spent a congenial evening. When it became time for him to go to the Grand Central Station some four or five men volunteered to accompany him.

They escorted him a short way up First Avenue, when Williams said he was not feeling well. His friends led him into a doorway and robbed him. They left his medals, which were of bronze. Williams had no money left.

ROOSEVELT AGAINST DO-NOTHING POLICY

HE'D SOON OUST LORIMER

Would Have No Arbitration Treaty That Is Opposed to This Country's Vital Interests.

Fully 5,000 persons collected at Grant's Tomb yesterday afternoon to hear Col. Theodore Roosevelt deliver the Memorial Day address to the members of U. S. Grant Post 327 of Brooklyn. He spoke for more than an hour and by the time he got through had expressed an emphatic opinion on many public questions of the day. Perhaps the most notable part of his address was that in which he advised the veterans and other hearers not to let the Constitution be used, as it has been in the past, as an argument for a "do-nothing" policy in public matters.

"I haven't come here to praise you civil war veterans," Col. Roosevelt began. "You don't need any praise from any one. But I want to draw certain lessons from your conduct of fifty years ago. I took part in a little war which came after your big war. It was all the war there was, and it was not our fault that there wasn't war enough to go around."

"I want to tell you a story which Gen. Frederick Grant here told me about his father while we were riding up here just now," Col. Roosevelt continued. "After the fierce Fort Gibson fight of the Vicksburg campaign, Gen. U. S. Grant, according to the story, rode along the firing line and reached a regiment the members of which, as soon as they saw him, indulged in the American habit, which all men in public life so acutely dread. They shouted: 'Speech! Speech!' Grant hesitated for a moment. Then he gave voice to one sentence:

"'Men,' he said, 'you have done a good day's work to-day. To-morrow you must do a better one.'

"There spoke old Unconditional Surrender Grant, and in this present day of ours we have got to take that sentence as our motto in our unending fight for civic righteousness. Our work is to obtain social and economic justice between man and man. We must stand for peace. But we must stand for genuine peace.

"And we can't have genuine peace if we don't behave with self-respect. I don't want to attack weak nations. But I don't want to put myself in the position of having to ask stronger nations not to hurt us. I want to make all the stronger nations ask us not to hurt them. I want a first-class navy; and I don't want this country to make any arbitration treaty which is against its vital interests and which it will have ultimately to break.

"There are certain questions which we Americans would never think of arbitrating. One is the Monroe Doctrine and another is the allowing of vast quantities of Asiatics to come here. We have got to stand out against agreeing to do these dangerous things, no matter what the short-sighted false-peace advocates say.

"Another thing we musn't have in this country is what I call flintlock legislation. When you veterans went to the civil war you admired your fathers and grandfathers who had fought in the Revolutionary War. But you didn't carry flintlock guns just because they carried flintlock guns. We to-day in the same way, if there were another war, should retain your spirit, but we shouldn't go to the war with your old black powder and your muzzle-loading Springfield muskets.

"Now, I want you to apply this truth to civil life, and you will see instantly what I mean by flintlock legislation. We must respect and imitate the virtues of the framers of the Constitution. But we musn't make ourselves the slaves of the limitations of their age.

"I want this Nation to have a workmen's compensation act, and I want this Nation also to be able to control monopolistic Inter-State corporations. For us to fail to control monopolistic corporations because the framers of our Constitution, who lived 125 years ago, didn't say anything about it in the Constitution is absurd.

"We must face the needs of the present just as you faced the needs of your present fifty years ago. Don't you remember how many people before the war asked you to be true to the Constitution by not taking any action? It was a great cry in Buchanan's Administration. Of course, there are certain foolish creatures of great wealth who say that these doctrines of mine are revolutionary. But, as a matter of fact, the really revolutionary men, the dynamiters, hate and dread me much more than they hate and dread the real conservatives, because they know that I won't let the Constitution stand in the way of punishing them if they do wrong.

"As a matter of fact, what I really want is to see the people masters of themselves. I want to see the people control the United States Senate, and I want to see the United States Senate disinfect itself of Lorimer.

"Most of all, I want to see the people of this country cultivate efficiency, and not merely good intentions."

40,000 CHEER ROOSEVELT.

Ovation for the Colonel at the Lincoln Statue Unveiling in Newark.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt participated in the unveiling of the bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln yesterday in Newark in the presence of about 40,000 persons. The dedication ceremony was on the plaza of the Essex County Court House. The speaker got a noisy welcome. He held his silk hat high above his head and bowed vigorously. In the course of his speech the Colonel proclaimed the need of Lincoln's progressive spirit in the legislation of the day.

"The greed of consciencelees wealth must be checked," he said, "and the Anarchist must be repressed. We must stand for clean politics and clean business or prove recreant to the spirit of Lincoln."

The Colonel touched upon the rights of capital and labor, reiterating some of the thoughts he expressed a few weeks ago respecting "dynamiters." Of this he said:

"It is our business to help wage-earners—to help him in every legitimate way—and it is our business to put a stop to murderous violence, even if it is indulged in nominally to help achieve those ends."

On his way from New York Col. Roosevelt stopped in front of Town Hall at Harrison, N. J., where he was warmly greeted by more than 5,000 persons. The children of the Holy Cross parochial school and the public schools, all carrying American flags, were lined up along the curbs of Harrison Avenue.

SICKLES TELLS OF WAR DAYS.

Veteran Gives Some Reminiscences at the Carnegie Hall Meeting.

An old soldier leaned over from one of the boxes in the first tier at Carnegie Hall last night and told the big audience there of the gathering fifty years ago of his five regiments of volunteers on Staten Island, and of the things Lincoln said to him. The soldier was Major General Sickles and the hall was filled with those who had come for the closing services of Memorial Day, as observed by the Grand Army of the Republic. He waved his hand toward Gov. Dix, who was presiding on the platform below, and had his tribute to pay to the memory of that other John A. Dix of another generation.

Gen. Sickles was not down on the programme for a speech, and it was after the services were well under way that some one saw him in the box. The detection was followed by cheers from all parts of the house and then they fell silent to hear him.

"All honor to New York for this splendid display of patriotism," he said, "for such a celebration as this will serve to show the young men that this is not an ungrateful republic. The nation that forgets the hero who has defended it in time of trouble, deserves no defenders, and will call in vain for volunteers."

Then Gen. Sickles told how the organization of his own regiments had been met with suspicion by some of the newspapers of the day, which predicted that such a rabid Democrat would go over to Jefferson Davis once he was South of the Mason and Dixon line.

"But I had gathered those volunteers at Lincoln's request," he said, "and I laid the matter before him. It almost seemed, if that was the way people were going to talk, as though I would better disband the men then and there. But President Lincoln bade me gon on. He told me that if the Union hoped to be saved, it could not depend on one party alone, and that, within the army, promotions and recognitions of merit would be made in no spirit of partisanship. So my five regiments went off to the war, and President Lincoln was as good as his word."

Gen. George B. Loud spoke with great feeling of the tendency to supplant the veterans of the civil war by putting younger men in their places in the Government.

"Absolutely appalling to me," he said, "is the waning sympathy for and the growing antipathy to those in public service to whom the people of the country are indebted more than to any or all others that we have a Government at all or one of our liking. The schemes and devices, brutal and merciless, in some cases, that are resorted to by appointing powers to drive the old soldier out of the little place that he may hold in the departments are a constant source of worry and distress to me.

"Don't be in a hurry for them to get off the earth, for the earth wants them and is yawning for them. More than 3,000 passed beyond in April. It is such a little time more that you will have the old soldiers here. Don't be in a hurry."

In his brief speech Gov. Dix suggested that the best way for this generation to honor the services of those who died for the Union would be by such devotion to State and country as would in some degree contribute to the perpetuation of the Nation.

Before the musical part of the programme was reached, Gen. Sickles, reminded by something which Gen. Loud had said, called down from his box the announcement of his plans for another reunion, to come on June 21. At that time he wants to have the surviving soldiers of his command at New Dorp, S. I., the old camping ground when he was organizing his brigade in 1861.

Boy Scouts to Show Off To-day.

More than 500 Boy Scouts of America will assemble at the Van Cortlandt mansion, in Van Cortlandt Park, at 10 o'clock this morning, under Scout Commissioner Lorillard Spencer, Jr., to engage in various activities. Many members of Squadron A and the Naval Militia will be at the park to work with the boys. The boys will play Indian, build bridges, play games, and engaged in athletic events.

Blue Serges for Men—at Saks'

Blue serges are an institution. Their popularity has so consistently withstood years of fabric innovations, that if they failed to materialize any season, men would be in a quandary to find a substitute.

However, they are altogether too staple for that. Fabrics may come and go, but blue serge is a permanent institution in the Republic of Clothes. And at Saks' it has lost none of its attraction for men who are ultra conservative nor for those who subordinate preference to style.

We have tailored it so close to perfection, that more men than ever are investing in a blue serge this season. They are influenced not only by the popularity of blue serge, but by the very apparent distinctiveness which a blue serge acquires from passing through our hands.

Made by labor that acknowledges no superior in designing, cutting, tailoring nor even in sewing on buttons, Saks-made blue serges, as well as Saks-made clothes in all other fabrics, continue to be more distinctive, more individual and certainly better made than those productions which are sold by retailers who do not make clothes, but who are merely distributors for an alien output.

ARBITRATION QUERY IS DODGED BY GREY

British Foreign Secretary Says Full Draft of Treaty Has Only Just Arrived.

DELAY ON THIS SIDE LIKELY

Germany's Action May Prevent the Senate from Getting the Conventions at This Session.

LONDON, May 30.—Rowland Hunt, Unionist Member of Parliament for the Ludlow Division of Shropshire, who has made it his special business to bait Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, on the subject of President Taft's arbitration proposal, returned to the charge in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Mr. Hunt suggested that the great expectations which had been raised by the President's original offer had been whittled away, as ratification by the Senate of every arbitration proposal was required, and the plan could no longer be regarded as the basis for a treaty of unrestricted arbitration.

"May we hope," he asked, "that in the future the government will not allow itself to be bamboozled by foreign powers?"

Sir Edward Grey, as on a previous occasion, declined to comment on the proposed treaty until he had thoroughly digested it.

"The full text of the draft of the treaty has only just been received and I have not yet seen it," Sir Edward said. "I intend to pay it the compliment of giving it my full consideration before I make any detailed comment concerning it."

The Foreign Secretary added that he did not know what Mr. Hunt's expectations were, but the time to decide whether these had been disappointed would be when the treaty was concluded. The draft of the treaty was of a tentative character and would form the subject of discussions on the part of the two governments. After consideration the British government would make its suggestions to the United States Government, which was the author of the treaty. Sir Edward declined to debate the matter until the discussions between the two governments had been concluded.

BERLIN, May 30.—The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung leads off its issue of to-day with an announcement of the steps that Germany has taken toward arbitration.

"After the United States indicated to Germany her readiness to negotiate a broader arbitration treaty with the other powers as well as England," the paper says, "Germany expressed a wish to see the draft of the arbitration proposal and also indicated her readiness to take up the study of the proposition. The draft of the treaty will arrive here within a short time."

To this statement can be added the semi-official expression of opinion that Germany, like Great Britain and France, is most sympathetic toward President Taft's arbitration proposal. Leading newspapers like the Frankfort Zeitung welcome the news of the suggested arbitration treaty, though they find that the project is open to improvement on some important points.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Germany's expressed willingness to enter into negotiations for a general arbitration treaty will probably result in a considerable extension of the time necessary to consummate the fabric of treaties.

It is assumed that each of the four powers engaged in the task of treaty making will insist upon knowing just what the others are doing at every step, in order to make sure that no one power obtains any undue advantage, and this will immensely complicate the work of securing final agreements. This may make it impossible to get the treaties before the Senate at the present session.

Other powers are expected to follow Germany's example.

Cloudbursts with Hail Cause Much Damage—Crops Ruined.

BERLIN, May 30.—Cloudbursts, accompanied by heavy hail, caused great damage in South Germany to-day.

Six houses in a village in Baden were swept away by the floods and twelve persons were drowned. Four persons were drowned near Heidelberg, where a mill was washed away.

Eight inches of rain fell at various places in the south, destroying the fruit trees and crops and killing birds by the wholesale.

Jail for ex-Governor of Moscow.

MOSCOW, May 30.—Major Gen. Rheinbot was to-day sentenced by the Senate Tribunal to imprisonment for one year an dthe loss of his civil rights for the misappropriation of Government funds in the course of his term as Governor of Moscow. Among the charges in the indictment it was alleged that in the General's term of less than two years in the Governorship he paid "extraordinary rewards" to the police amounting to $150,000.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

LONDON, May 30.—The hearing of the suit of "Irene Osgood," the American authoress, for a judicial separation from her husband, Robert Harborough Sherard, the English author, was ended this afternoon. Judgment was reserved. The Judge twice attempted to arrange a settlement of the case but failed.

TEHERAN, May 30.—The National Council to-day adopted a proposal of the Minister of Finance, investing W. Morgan Shuster, the American financier who was recently appointed Treasurer General of Persia, with most extensive powers for the control of the finances of the country.

CHRISTIANIA, May 30.—Herbert H. D. Peirce, the retiring American Minister, who leaves here to-morrow for the United States, was received in audience by the King to-day and presented his letters of recall. The Minister and Mrs. Peirce entertained the King and Queen at dinner to-night.

COLON, May 30.—The cornerstone of the Masonic Temple was laid here to-day with impressive ceremonies. American Masons turned out in large numbers and marched through Colon to the site of their new building.

AVIATOR HARMON BACK.

Europeans, He Says, Are Outstripping Americans in Building Aerial Craft.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday from Europe on the North German Lloyd liner Kronpriz Wilhelm was Clifford Harmon, the aviator, who left here recently on the Mauretania and spent only seven days on the other side. He said that he had made two short flights at Hendon, near London, while abroad.

"They are too fast for us over there," Mr. Harmon remarked. "They are flying every day and have big machines. We have nothing here that can compete with the French machines now. I don't know what the future will bring forth."

With regard to his own plans, he said he was going to make experiments with water planes. "I have got a big Farman biplane," said he, "and to that I shall add a hydroplane attachment and also a catamaran to enable me to rise from water or land and also fly over land or water with perfect safety. Grahame-White constructed some of the parts of the water plane, and I have also brought over some French mechanics to construct parts. I am going to carry out my experiments at Greenwich, Conn., and hope to be ready for the tests in July or August."

Mr. Harmon said he was on the aviation field at Issy-les-Moulinea, near Paris, when the French War Minister Berteaux was killed. "I sat near the starting place," he said, "and saw Train circle the field. The power stopped when he was over a group of mounted officers, numbering about 100, and he thought the space in the rear was clear. In making the sweep the blades mowed down Premier Monis and the War Minister and his party."

Capt. Nierich of the Kronpris Wilhelm said that on Sunday at 1:30 P. M. the liner passed an iceberg about five miles to the north of her course in latitude 42:24 north and longitude 50:20 west.

Owing to a heavy fog the vessel was delayed six hours, as she was reduced down to a speed of ten knots for five hours.

Mrs. Elisha Dyer returned from her annual trip abroad on the Kronprinz Wilhelm and was met at the pier by Col. Elisha Dyer.

WILSON BORN A DEMOCRAT.

Later Found He Could Be Nothing Else, He Declares—Won't Discuss 1912.

DURHAM, N. C., May 30.—Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey was the commencement orator at Chapel Hill to-day, when the University of North Carolina closed its one hundred and sixteenth year. An immense crowd was present. Gov. Wilson discussed Democracy.

"The Nation," said he, "will no longer make unconditional land grants and franchises and place in the hands of a few the resources of this great Nation. I am two kinds of Democrat. I was born a Democrat, and when I grew up I became convinced that this was the only thing to be."

Gov. Wilson declared that among Republican stand-patters, the only variety of Republican which can be defined, the theory is that Government must be ministered for those who have most at stake. To such a principle, he added, every intelligent man must be opposed; "the interested man can never originate impartial legislation."

Asked as to his Presidential candidacy, he said:

IN HONOR OF THOMAS PAINE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, May 30.—Descendants of the Huguenots who founded New Rochelle in 1688, and admirers of Thomas Paine, the author-patriot, assembled at the old Paine house, now known as the Deveaux House, on North Avenue this afternoon to do honor to their memory.

The principal feature of the exercises was the presentation to the Huguenot Association of New Rochelle of a portrait of Gen. Benjamin Bonneville, which has been hung in the Deveaux House among Huguenot relics.

Gen. Bonneville was a native of New Rochelle and the adopted son of Paine. Paine willed to the Bonneville family his farm, which was presented to him by the State of New York for his services to the Union. It is now a part of Quaker Ridge Park, a new residential tract which was recently sold by John H. Ranger to the New York Central Realty Company for more than $1,000,000.

GEN. KLEIGELS WANTS DUEL.

Ex-Governor of Kieff Challenges Brother of Premier Stolypin.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 30.—Gen. Kleigels, ex-Governor General of Kieff, has challenged Alexander Stolypin, a leading political writer of The Novoe Vremya, and brother of the Premier, to a duel on account of an article which appeared in that paper with reference to the trial of Col. von Liarliarski, founder of the Northeastern Siberian Company, who is charged, in conjunction with his stepson, with having forged a will, whereby they would become legatees of the estate of Prince Oginsky.

The article in question satirized Gen. Kleigels for taking advantage of an antiquated law permitting high functionaries, who are subpoenaed as witnesses, to be heard at home. The entire Court of Assizes, the jury, nineteen persons implicated in the case, and twenty-five lawyers, altogether more than 100 persons, were forced to make the journey to Kleigels's suburban villa.

The Kleigels episode attracted wide attention in society, particularly as other witnesses of high rank, Senator Maximovich, Baron Budberg, who is head of the Emperor's private Chancellery, and Prince Peter Sviatopolk-Mirsky, ex-Minister of the Interior, declined to follow the example set by Gen. Kleigels. Senator Maximovich left a sickbed to appear in open court.

Guests of Ambassador Reid.

LONDON, May 30.—The American Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid entertained at dinner this evening a large party of diplomats and other distinguished persons. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft and Miss Taft, Prof. H. C. Emery of Yale, Frederick Hale, the Russian Ambassador and Countess Benckendorff, the Austrian and German Ambassadors, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe, the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, Lord and Lady Lansdowne, Lord and Lady Ripon, Lord Roberts and his daughters, and Lord Kitchener.

NEW YORK WICKED, QUITS HIS PULPIT

HE CAN'T SLEEP FOR IT

Endless Din of Traffic Made Necessary by the Vicious and Shouts of the Depraved Keep Him Awake.

The wickedness of New York City is one of the reasons assigned by the Rev. Nathaniel Thomas Hafer, pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, Patchen and Greene Avenues, Brooklyn, in his letter to his congregation resigning his charge. The Rev. Mr. Hafer resigns to go to the Ferry Street Baptist Church, Detroit. His letter caused much comment. Mr. Hafer said afterward to a reporter:

"I said New York was a wicked city, and I stick to it. I said Detroit would be pleasanter to work in and I believe it. I was born in Michigan, so was my wife. We are used to Michigan ways, and, frankly, we don't like New York.

"All cities are wicked. But I doubt if there is any wickeder city on the American continent than New York. I know something about big cities, too. I was in Boston for some time, and I studied a few years at the University of Chicago.

"One of the reasons I think New York is wicked is that I see what a hold the liquor interests have on this city. The saloons do just as they please. The closing hours are disregarded. On weekdays the saloons sell drinks surreptitiously all night. On Sunday the saloonkeepers make a mockery of the laws of the State.

"At all hours of the night—and Saturday night and Sunday night are as bad, if not worse than any nights of the week—there are heard the shouts and songs of drunken men passing the church. Carousing and bestiality and profanation come forth and boast their hold on this city from every one of the many saloons which disfigure this closely populated part of Brooklyn.

"Yes, I said in my letter of resignation that there was no joy in living in this Tammany-ruled city. I believe the liquor and allied evil interests do control it through the Tammany organization and its dependent machines in this and other boroughs of the city.

"But it was not a question of my running away, wen I am needed to fight the good fight against these evils as I see them. I cannot fight effectively here. I am used to getting my sleep and cannot do my best work if I am kept awake all night by roaring elevated trains running to minister to the errands of the wicked and by the shouts and songs of the drunken and depraved, by the rattling of brewery trucks over hard pavements.

"I feel I can do better work in Detroit, which is a cleaner, sweeter city, where I will have the inspiration of the companionship of my parents the last years of their sanctified lives, and where I can do my duty as a son, as well as perform my ministerial functions. Parental ties and accustomed scenes draw me more than evil conditions here drive me away.

"The force of evil are strong here, however, as I said before. Reporters have been sent to ridicule me by newspapers, following my letter of resignation in which I spoke my mind about conditions here. I fear to talk lest I be misrepresented. Efforts have been made to stir up neighborhood feeling against me my spreading reports that I have called my neighbors noisy, and referred to this part of Brooklyn as a wilderness of wickedness."

The church which Mr. Hafer is leaving appears to have needed a coat of paint for several years, and also to require extensive repairs to the structure itself.

TO REVIVE VOLT VICTIMS.

Head of Electric Light Association Says Better Method Is Needed.

Thirty-six hundred delegates of the National Electric Light Association gathered in this city yesterday for their annual convention, in the Engineering Societies Building, in West Thirty-ninth Street. John Purroy Mitchel, president of the Board of Aldermen, delivered a speech of welcome.

"Your organization comprises 1,500 companies, has a membership of 8,500, and represents an invested capital of a billion and a half dollars," Mr. Mitchel said.

President W. W. Freeman of the association recommended that electricity experts and physicians try to find some way of curing or reviving persons suffering from electric shock. The present means of reviving people from electric shock, he said, are very unsatisfactory.

Taft Can't Accept Western Home.

WASHINGTON, May 30. — President Taft in a letter to Gov. Eberhart of Minnesota, declining with thanks the offer of a site for a Presidential Summer home at Wayzata, on the shores of Lake Minnetonka, explains that Congress alone has authority to provide an official Summer White House. The President will, therefore, spend the Summer at Beverly, Mass.

HORSES AND RIDERS FALL AT DEVON SHOW

ANIMALS A FINE DISPLAY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 30.—Exciting incidents marked the seventh annual Devon Horse Show which opened to-day, both inside the ring and out. Several jumpers misjudged the take-off and both horses and riders went down amid a mass of rails. Then there was a runaway on the road parallel to the field which for a while threatened to be serious in its results. Oswald Chew's harness horse became unmanageable, broke away from its groom, and caused men, women, and children standing by the rail side to flee in every direction. A mounted policeman caught the refractory animal as it was galloping toward Berwyn.

Before four classes had been judged in the morning Frank Buster, whose mount was A. J. A. Devereaux's brown gelding The Judge, took off too short and crashed through the rail fence. Horse and rider went down. Buster had a miraculous escape, as in the fall The Judge's hoofs grazed his head by the fraction of an inch.

The competition in the ring was keen. The morning was devoted to the breeding classes. That interest in the horse has not flagged in this section of the country, despite the inroads made by the automobile, was manifest. It was the largest morning crowd that has attended a horse show in this vicinity for many years, and was a healthy tribute to the breeder and his stock. Brood mares with foal at foot, yearlings, 2-year-olds, and then the sires were shown in rapid succession. The sleek-looking brood mares, the spirited yearlings full of life, and the prancing stallions made an attractive display of fine horse flesh. These classes were one of the distinctive features of the first day's show.

As the programme teemed with novelties, the huge polo field on which the show was held was completely fringed with spectators. These from the countryside came in all manner of conveyances, from the two-wheeled car to the family brake. Society motored to the field, and many parked their cars on the far side of the ring and used them as points of vantage to view the jumping events. The grandstand and boxes proved inadequate to accommdate the crowd.

KILLED HER INSULTER.

Mrs. Smith Tells of Trouble That Led Husband to Kill Employe.

NEWFANE, Vt., May 30.—The declaration that her husband, Caspar M. Smith, shot at Daniel C. Mundell after the latter had threatened to kill him, was made by Mrs. Amanda Louise Smith to-day when the taking of the testimony was begun in the trial of Smith, charged with the murder of Mundell, at Wardsboro. Mundell's death was caused by a bullet wound in the head.

Mrs. Smith testified that her husband, who is a young farmer, had employed Mundell during the maple sugar-making season, and that while Smith was making a week's trip selling syrup, Mundell urged her to leave her husband and go away with him. Mundell, she said, told her that "it would be a good scheme to poison Smith to get him out of the way."

On the night of the shooting, Mrs. Smith testified, Smith came home from his sugar-selling trip unexpectedly, and ordered Mundell to leave the house. Mundell, she said, attacked her husband with a stick of wood, and Smith seized a revolver from a shelf. She heard three shots, but did not see her husband fire, as she ran out to the barn and hid in the hay.

KILLS 16-YEAR-OLD WIFE.

Farmer Wedded Her Only Four Months Ago—Strychnine Found in Body.

STATESVILLE, N. C., May 30.—Confessing to the murder of his sixteen-year-old-wife to whom he was married four months ago, Reuben Combs, a young farmer of Stony Point, Iredell County, was committed to jail without bail to-day by a cororner's jury.

Combs contended his wife wandered from her room while asleep and that he found her dead body on a lot. Strychine was found in her stomach.

ALL SAINTS' CORNERSTONE.

Auxiliary Bishop at Ceremony for New Brooklyn Church.

The cornerstone of the new Queen of All Saints' Roman Catholic Church, at Lafayette and Vanderbilt Avenues, was laid yesterday by the Right Rev. George W. Mundelein, auxiliary Bishop of Brooklyn. The edifice will take the place of St. John's Chapel, which adjoins Bishop McDonnell's residence in Greene Avenue. The chapel building is part of the proposed great Cathedral begun by the late Bishop Loughlin, the plan being abandoned for lack of funds to complete its construction.

For many years past St. John's Chapel has been the parish church of a congregation which has grown to such a size that the present edifice has become inadequate. There are about 4,000 members in the parish, where originally there were 200.

Plans for the new church include the construction of a school modeled somewhat after the Sans Chappelle in Paris, with the school part of the building facing in Lafayette Avenue. The cost will be $400,000.

CHILDREN AMID GANGSTERS.

May Day Party Happens Into a Fierce Fight Near Central Park.

Half a hundred children, who had been having a May day in Central Park, had just left the park by the West Sixty-sixth Street entrance on their way homeward yesterday afternoon, when rival west side gangs started to settle a dispute over a ball game with bottles and stones.

The children were between the gangs and many missiles fell among them. The few adults who were accompanying them, tried their best to get the marchers out of danger, but the children were too frightened, and the parade broke up in great disorder with the children crying and running in every direction.

A telephone call was sent for the reserves from the West Sixty-eighth Street station, but before the arrival of the first bluecoat, the fighters had fled.

Charles Dwyer of 311 West Sixty-seventh Street, who attempted to shield some of the children from the missiles, sustained several scalp wounds. He was attended by Dr. Botsford of Flower Hospital and went home.

BRONX ZOO STORK BUSY.

Left Baby Buffalo, Deer, and Mountain Goat There Yesterday.

There were three new arrivals at the Bronx Park Zoo yesterday. One was a baby buffalo, another a Sika deer and the third a Rocky Mountain goat. The mother of the buffalo calf is one of the Whitney heard and was born in the park four years ago.

A large crowd visited the park yesterday.

Abraham Lincoln and the Interborough

The first sentence of that familiar saying of Abraham Lincoln about fooling some of the people part of the time still has attractions for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

It has made one set of propositions to the Board of Estimate Committee and Public Service Commission and by transparently deceptive literature is making another set of propositions to the reading public.

It has added in its newspaper and pamphlet propositions 24 MILES OF ROUTES which are NEVER MENTIONED in its official propositions. These do not include many miles indicated with ciphers, which without figures before them are generally understood to stand for NOTHING.

It seeks to convince the public that these new routes are all to be built if the City accepts the Interborough proposal.

NOT ONE OF THEM CAN BE BUILT AND OPERATED UNDER THAT PROPOSAL WITHOUT AN ABSOLUTE GUARANTEE BY THE CITY INDEMNIFYING THE COMPANY AGAINST ANY LOSS OF ANY KIND—EVEN TO THE EXTENT OF INTEREST ON ITS OWN INVESTMENT FOR EQUIPMENT REQUIRED FOR THE OPERATION OF THESE LINES.

The wonder is that with such a saving clause the Company did not add a hundred miles to its pictured routes. But perhaps in that event none of the people would have been fooled any of the time. The published products of acceleration indicate that some good people have already been fooled.

But even if the 24 miles of additional routes should yet be emboided in the Interborough's formal proposition, and even if the City might be pursuaded to give the Company the guarantee of indemnity against loss which it demands, what would the people get under the revised plan?

102 MILES of rapid transit routes (including existing subways) against

120 MILES of rapid transit routes furnished under the B. R. T. plan.

$103,500,000 under the B. R. T. plan—including the extensions to be built and operated as "ORIGINAL LINES."

B. R. T.—120 MILES WITH $103,500,000 OF CITY MONEY.

But this is by no means the whole story. What is the financial return which the City will get under either form of investment?

The B. R. T. offer—a simple, honest, straightforward financial plan which assures at once full interest and sinking fund on the major part of the investment, and not a dollar of profit to the Company from the new lines until full interest and sinking fund has been earned and paid on the entire city investment. NO GUARANTEES OF ANY KIND. No operating deficits from unprofitable lines to be made up out of levies upon taxpayers. The returns from profitable lines—including all growth on existing lines—to go to support the unprofitable lines.

The Interborough offer—a complicated, uncertain financial plan under which no man living can now determine what the return to the city treasury will be. A division of receipts and expenses between existing subways and new lines which will certainly swell largely the present profits—over 17 per cent—of the Interborough and will with equal certainty fail to give to the City the benefit of the actual earnings of its new lines. A guarantee to the Company by the City against all loss in the operation of $41,000,000 worth of extensions and against the loss of interest on the Company's investment for equipment necessary to operate such extensions.

THE B. R. T. PLAN FURNISHES 120 MILES OF RAPID TRANSIT ROUTES FOR $103,500,000 OF CITY MONEY AND THE CITY PARTICIPATES IN THE EARNINGS OF THE TOTAL MILEAGE. THE INTERBOROUGH PLAN (as enlarged in the newspapers) FURNISHES 102 MILES FOR $110,000,000 OF CITY MONEY AND THE CITY PARTICIPATES IN THE EARNINGS OF ONLY 78 MILES.

Truly the thoughtful citizen or taxpayer would not hesitate long in his choice between these two offers if he were not deceived by misleading representations and fallacious figures.

Certainly the careful merchant will not fail to detect in which proposal his greatest interest lies if he studies this transit controversy with full information of the facts.

Then, if the City is to go into partnership with transportation companies, there is the question of the character and corporate history of the partner to consider. On the one side consolidation and growth have been accompanied by great scandalous and fictitious increases of capitalization (see Judge Gaynor's article in Pearson's Magazine); on the other side, by many millions of decrease in capitalization. On the one side is a shady record of juggling with corporate accounts and improper diversion of corporate moneys (see records of the Public Service Commission's investigation and of the District Attorney's office); and on the other side is a clear bill of corporate health and living (see records of the Public Service Commission's investigation). On the one side is a year's negotiation with the City accompanied by subterfuge, threat, political influence and intrigue—no yielding in terms except under compulsion; and on the other side is a three months' frank, open, honest and conciliatory conference with the City's representatives for the proper working out of the City's great problem.

We prefer to trust to the latter part of Abraham Lincoln's famous utterance—that you cannot fool all the people all of the time.

Orientals

The Largest Specialty Rug-House in America.

The Kinship of Brides

All brides are not alike—yet the sentiment they awaken is the same.

Whether she is married under the minarets of a Persian city or in New York, the homage expressed by a gift to the girl wife does not differ.

She may be a bungalow bride or a bride of glittering society—a well-chosen Oriental rug bears a meaning to her that is backed by ample precedent.

From our Western standpoint it credits her with a refinement of home-taste, and so DOES YOU CREDIT IN THE GIVING.

But it also has history back of it as a gift.

Daghestan, Turkish or Persian, its position as a gift article is unique.

It has bedecked thrones—covered the shrine—dressed the altar.

Pilgrims and princes have borne it as an offering.

Into it is woven a message of sentiment—the tree of life—a luck-speed message—the love song of the weaver.

This may not be strictly true of ALL Oriental rugs—but it is of all GOOD Oriental rugs, of the kind from which Wild's Orientals are chosen.

Then consider that the rug, always present, always useful, is one of the gifts that lasts the longest—that keeps its silken surface, like its sentiment, until the evening twilight of the heart sets in.

To one of these recognized Wild's Orientals you may fit the amount you can afford to spend—whether it be $18, $100 or $1,000.

This house is also making a specialty of country house rugs—for seaside cottages or the rambling country home.

Rugs of light domestic materials, fresh as the sunlight, which further the contrast between country and town.

Characterized by the same taste in choosing as Wild's Orientals.

CHARGE THAT MORGAN DEFEATED SHEEHAN

PLANNED TO EXPOSE DEAL

Mayor Sent Untermyer's Letter to Senator Roosevelt—Next Day, Story Goes, Deadlock Was Broken.

Certain Wall Street interests, including members of the Steel Corporation, were actively behind the insurgents who opposed the election of William F. Sheehan for United States Senator, and the long legislative deadlock which resulted in the election of James A. O'Gorman was finally broken through the efforts of Samuel Untermyer, the lawyer, and Mayor Gaynor, according to a story that excited local politicians yesterday. This history of Wall Street activity in politics was set forth in a letter which Mr. Untermyer wrote to Mayor Gaynor the closing days of the deadlock. The Mayor passed the letter on to Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt, leader of the insurgent forces, and then threatened to make it public if the deadlock was not ended.

A TIMES reported verified yesterday the fact that such a letter is in existence. So far as can be learned, it is in the possession of Mayor Gaynor. Mr. Untermyer wrote it to the Mayor, who sent it to Senator Roosevelt, and the latter returned it to Mr. Gaynor. An effort will be made to-day to have him give it out.

Senator Roosevelt, in a telegram to THE TIMES last night, said he had not received the letter until April 1, which was after the election of Mr. O'Gorman.

In the letter Mr. Untermyer names Francis Lynde Stetson, counsel to J. P. Morgan and to the United States Steel Corporation; Herbert Satterlee, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law; Charles A. Peabody, president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and George F. Baker of the First National Bank, as the men who backed the insurgents in their fight. Mr. Untermyer is said to have boasted recently that if this letter had been published at the time it was written, it would have turned popular sentiment in favor of Mr. Sheehan and resulted in his election. When the Mayor was asked about the letter, he said:

"I have nothing to say one way or the other."

Mr. Untermyer said that he did not care to discuss the matter for publication. Senator Roosevelt is said to have declared that he returned the letter to Mayor Gaynor. The history of the Senatorial fight as described in the letter is this:

Mr. Untermyer's name was suggested as a compromise candidate at the famous "breakfast conference," held at the Executive Mansion in Albany during the darkest hours of the deadlock. Gov. Dix, Charles F. Murphy, who arrived in Albany a few hours after the conference, and Senator Roosevelt accepted Mr. Untermyer as a way out of the difficulty, and Senator Roosevelt took the suggestion with apparent enthusiasm. He announced that he would vote for Mr. Untermyer as soon as the regulars could agree upon a second caucus. Mr. Untermyer was made acquainted with this situation, but remained indifferent. Later he was informed that certain interests were decidedly opposed to him. Then he learned that Roosevelt had switched entirely, and was openly opposing him. Anxious to find out the identity of the opposing interests, Mr. Untermyer went to Francis Lynde Stetson, who informed him that he, Mr. Morgan, and all the allied Wall Street and steel interests were decidedly opposed to him for various reasons, among them being his work in breaking up the Shipbuilding Trust back in 1904, his championship of the policyholders of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, following the disclosures of the Hughes investigation, and his general opposition to Morgan connections.

All these reasons Mr. Stetson set forth to Mr. Untermyer, with the remark that the insurgents would not support him, and that he might as well make up his mind to keep out of the race. After thinking the matter over and seeking the advice of friends, Mr. Untermyer conceived it his duty to end the deadlock if he could possibly do so, by "showing up" the insurgents. He did not want or expect the Senatorship, but he was anxious to let the insurgents know that he knew all about their affiliations. He therefore set down in a long letter all that Mr. Stetson had told him, and sent it to Mayor Gaynor, with the advice that the Mayor do with it as he saw fit. The Mayor thought it best to send the letter to Senator Roosevelt, and did so.

Senator Roosevelt received it on the Thursday preceding the day an election was held. When the name of Justice O'Gorman was suggested as a compromise candidate, the insurgents, headed by Senator Roosevelt, voted for him. If a candidate had not been elected on Friday it was the intention of Mr. Untermyer and the Mayor to make public the letter next day.

This is the telegram Senator Roosevelt sent explaining his connection with the letter:

> Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 30, 1911.
> THE TIMES, New York:
>
> Did not know of Untermyer's letter until April 1, after O'Gorman was elected. I returned letter to Mayor Gaynor. It is needless to say that neither this letter nor the influence of any special interest affected in any way the choice of a United States Senator.

SAYS HOSPITAL BARRED HER.

Woman Found Ill in Street Makes Charges Against Roosevelt Doctors.

Mrs. Georgiana Williams, 48 years old, of 210 West Forty-third Street, was found wandering yesterday afternoon in a dazed condition at West Sixty-third Street and Amsterdam Avenue. Patrolman Hayes of the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station took her to the station house, from which she was removed later by Dr. Botsford of Flower Hospital to that institution in a serious condition, suffering from an internal disorder. Before leaving for the hospital she received the last rites of the church from Father Hines of St. Matthew's Church.

The woman told Lieut. Austin that she had sought admission to Roosevelt Hospital earlier in the afternoon. She showed him a printed form of that institution, signed by Dr. Hart, examining physician, which showed that she had been an applicant for admission, and which, in addition to the diagnosis of her case, was also indorsed, "Recommended for rejection because remaining beds are promised." She admitted that the hospital authorities had recommended that she try at once to gain admission at some other hospital where there were beds obtainable.

After the refusal of the Roosevelt Hospital doctors to admit her she said she wandered in the streets for three hours.

In the absence of Supt. Grimshaw from the hospital no statement as to its side of the case could be obtained.

DECREE FOR HARRIMAN NIECE.

Mrs. Thurston, Daughter of New York Broker, Gets Divorce.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., May 30.—Mrs. Mary E. Thurston, niece of the late E. H. Harriman, and a prominent society woman of Boston and New York, obtained a decree of divorce in this city yesterday from Charles S. Thurston, a patent lawyer of Boston, on the ground of failure to provide.

Mrs. Thurston, since coming to Reno, has taken an active part in the social events of the divorce colony. She was married at All Souls' Church in New York City in 1904 and has no children. Her husband is at present at Saranac Lake, N. Y., and is said to be in poor health. She received permission to use her maiden name of Mary E. Simons, and will return to the home of her father, who is a Wall Street broker.

DEAD IN TROLLEY WRECK.

Rear-End Collision Between New Haven and Derby Due to Carelessness.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 30.—On a level stretch of track and in the middle of a straightaway run of nearly a mile, two trolley cars going from this city to Derby were in a rear-end collision near Racebrook Station, in Orange, late this afternoon, and one man was killed, one is dying and several were seriously injured.

The cars were running close together owing to heavy traffic all day between the two cities. The forward car, manned by a New Haven crew, had stopped to let off a passenger, when the following car with Derby men for the crew and two passengers aboard, crashed into it. The ends of both cars crumpled up, pinning the passengers in the forward car under the debris. The tracks run along the Derby turnpike, over which many automobiles were passing. Several of these stopped and picked up injured persons and took them to hospitals. One unknown man, 20 years old, will probably die.

James Malone was with his wife on the rear seat of the leading car. He was fearfully crushed and was dead when taken from the wreck. Mrs. Malone was scarcely injured. A pathetic incident in connection with the death of Malone was the fact that, of a family of five children, four have recently died and the fifth is just recovering from scarlet fever.

Robert Grannis, motorman of the second car, was arrested.

FATHER AND SON SLAIN.

Another Son and a Man Held for Iowa Murder—Third Suspect Sought.

SAC CITY, Iowa, May 30.—James and Matthew Wright, father and son, were slain at their home here at an early hour this morning.

Will White, a son of James White, and Clifford Wilson are in jail charged with the crime, while a posse under the direction of the Sheriff is searching for an unidentified man alleged to have been with Wilson at the time of the tragedy.

Will White, a son of James White, was arrested this morning for alleged complicity in the killing. It is stated to-day that Will White, his brother, Matthew White, Wilson, and the stranger were ordered out of the White home by James White, the father, who was 80 years old, shortly after midnight for creating a disturbance.

A few minutes later the aged man fell, fatally injured, and died within an hour. Matthew was shot down at almost the same time.

GOODWIN WOULD END TRUST.

Goes to California to Annul Agreement Made with Edna Goodrich.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 30.—Nat Goodwin is planning to break the trust embracing California real estate and bonds valued at $1,700,000 which he attempted to create for the benefit of Edna Goodrich and himself.

Goodwin arrived in Ocean Park to-day to begin the assault on the document prepared by his English lawyer. He has the assurance of attorneys in New York and California that the trust, as far as it applies to holdings in California, is void, because the English lawyer has attempted to create a trust beyond the lives of persons in being. Such a trust is all right in England, but the law is different in California, so Goodwin has been advised.

It is estimated that the California real estate involved in the trust agreement is worth $500,000. T. H. Dudley, Mayor of Ocean Park, was named as the trustee, the deed providing that the property should be administered for the benefit of Goodwin and Miss Goodrich, the income to be paid quarterly in equal shares to the two beneficiaries. Upon the death of either party the trustee was directed to pay over to the living beneficiary the principal and the accrued income.

Banker Convicted for False Report.

ALLEGAN, Mich., May 30.—Albert J. Shepard, the former Plainwell banker, was convicted late yesterday of intentionally making false report to the State Banking Commissioner. Shepard's defense was his alleged inability to determine between right and wrong when the report was made.

ANOTHER MAN HELD IN DYNAMITE PLOT

NONE CAN FIND $25,000 BAIL

Bender's Arrest Startles Blacksmiths' Union, Which Starts a Fund for Him—More Indictments Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 30.—Following a week of investigation and examination of witnesses, the Grand Jury called to inquire into the charges made against Bert H. Connors and J. M. Parks that they conspired to dynamite the Hall of Records, returned three indictments last night. Those indicted were Connors, A. B. Maple, a friend of Connors, and F. Ira Bender, President of Local Union No. 282, International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers. The arrest of Bender came as a surprise to the unions and the public.

Where the dynamite came from and what other persons, if any, are involved besides the prisoners, are said to be matters the Grand Jury will continue to investigate. It is known that the Grand Jury will make a second report, possibly by Saturday, concerning the present investigation, and it is believed other indictments will be returned. The theory of the prosecution is that Conners, Maple, and Bender discussed the labor troubles in which the Hall of Records was involved at that time, that Connors expressed his intention of blowing it up, and for that purpose went to the alley with the dynamite.

The name of Bender had not been mentioned outside the Grand Jury room until he was haled before the bar and notified of his arrest. The news, which did not become known until this morning, created a sensation in union circles. To-day the Blacksmiths' Union undertook to raise money to bail him out and defend him.

The three men are held under bail of $25,000 each, and so far none has been able to secure his release.

Bender was being sued by his wife for divorce in the building occupied by the Grand Jury when he was arrested. The officers had been searching for him three days.

you sure will

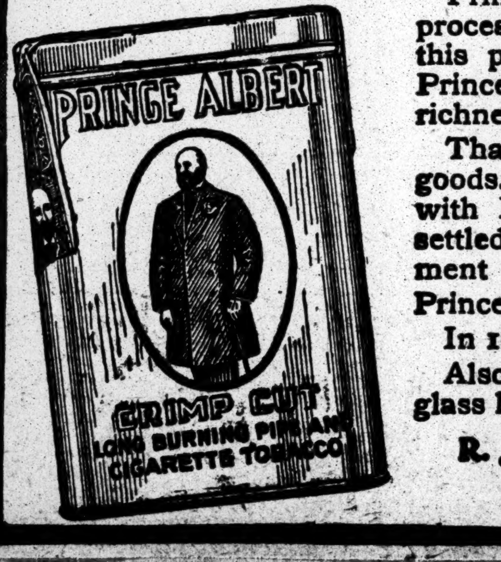
Men, here's tobacco that gives you a fresh deal in pipe smokin'. Tobacco that's all ready for your pipe, that's long-burning, holds its fire close and can't bite your tongue. Forget that old messy way of rubbing and grinding tobacco in your hands. Pour Prince Albert right from the tin and light up for the bulliest enjoyment you ever got out of a pipe smoke.

PRINCE ALBERT

has imitators, of course, with fussed-up packages and claims—but stick a pin in this fact:



Prince Albert is produced by a patented process that cannot be duplicated. It's this process that takes the bite out of Prince Albert; that leaves in all the natural richness and fragrance of the finest tobacco.

That's why no other tobacco has the goods. But try 'em. Compare 'em all with P. A. Get this tobacco question settled; then sit down to endless enjoyment with your old jimmy pipe and Prince Albert.

BRYAN'S CRITICISM STIRS UP UNDERWOOD

MAJORITY FAVORS THE BILL

As Good a Measure, Declares Underwood, as One Bryan Voted For—"Sinful," Asserts Nebraskan.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—William J. Bryan's criticism of the party leaders in the House who favor a tariff on raw wool, his warning to the Democratic members that the voters are yet to pass on the wool schedules they are to ratify, and his appeal to them not to add "hypocrisy to the sin" of voting for a revenue on wool, have caused intense feeling in the party. Notwithstanding this Mr. Underwood, as Chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, to-night was insistent in the prediction that the revenue wool bill will be approved by a big majority.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Underwood in answer to Bryan, "his statement is unjust and unfair to the members of the Ways and Means Committee and to the Democratic representatives in Congress who will support the bill.

"The Ways and Means Committee have cut in half the whole wool schedule. They have reduced the duty on manufactured goods as low as they were under the Wilson bill that Mr. Bryan voted for when raw wool was placed on the free list. In that reduction they have fallen short of $40,000,000 now raised by wool by $13,000,000 and it was necessary in order to secure this revenue to place a revenue tax on raw wool imported into the United States.

"Under the high rates of the Payne Tariff Bill the tax on raw wool was highly competitive, nearly one-half of the wool used in this country being imported from abroad. When the rates on raw wool are cut more than one-half it is absolutely at a competitive rate, leveled solely for the purpose of revenue, without any of the essentials of a protective tariff."

Mr. Underwood declared that in the tariff bill the Ways and Means Committee have gone even further than a gradual reduction in the tariff to which the Democratic Party in its last platform was committed.

"If the Wilson bill which Mr. Bryan voted for was an honest reduction of the tariff in the interest of the people, a bill that reduced the taxes on woolen goods which the people buy as low as under the bill Bryan voted for and advocated, certainly cannot be a protective measure from this standpoint. The fact that in reducing these taxes on woolen goods we have levied a small tax on the manufacturers does not in any way increase the burden to the purchasers of woolen goods."

The Democratic leader explained that the party and the committee are confronted with a deficiency in the Treasury; that the Government needs more money, and that the income tax is as yet unratified. He said the committee in reducing the tariff has to so write the schedules that they would bring at least as much revenue as under the present law. The committee contends that by reducing the rate and making the tariff more competitive more goods will come in, and thus supply the revenue. Under the Wilson bill the tariffs on wool averaged about 40 per cent. ad valorem, a figure comparing closely with the average in the bill to be made public next Thursday.

"The Democratic Party," Mr. Underwood concluded, "stands essentially for a tariff for revenue, which means we will collect from the Custom House the revenues required for the expenses of the Government. It does not stand for free trade, and I do not believe when this bill is published and the people understand the facts they will be misled by the statements which Mr. Bryan has made. I feel sure the Democratic caucus will adopt the bill by a large majority, and that it will be approved by the Democratic masses as a party measure."

In his criticism of the wool tariff made public through Representative Harrison of New York, Mr. Bryan said:

"The Democratic voters know that all needed revenue can be raised in less oppressive ways, and they know the argument that the tariff on wool is proposed as a revenue tariff is merely a subterfuge employed because those who employ it are ashamed to say that they favor protection."

The Nebraskan warned against the drift of Democrats toward a protective policy which, he said, is most marked in those Democrats who have "among their constituents influential beneficiaries of the system."

"The Republicans want protection on wool because they believe in the principle of protection," he declared. "Let no Democratic advocate of a tax on wool masquerade behind the pretense that he is voting for a revenue tariff; let him not add hypocrisy to the sin which he commits against his party."

Mr. Bryan insisted if protection was to be accepted as a Democratic doctrine that "it be accepted openly and applied to everything and to all sections." He said there is no reason for favoritism to a few sheep raisers at the expense of all who wear woolen clothing.

"Before the Democratic party is finally committed to the doctrine of protection," he declared, "it will be necessary to consult the voters of the party, and it may be well to remember that the voters of all parties are braver than the politicians. The Republican voters were brave enough to turn out a lot of Republican Aldriches. What reason have our Democratic Congressmen to think that Democratic voters are less courageous?"

TERMINAL CO. MUST PAY.

Such Concerns Are Carriers and Subject to Employers' Liability.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The Washington Terminal Company, controlling terminal facilities for all railroads entering Washington at Union Station, is a common carrier under the Employers' Liability act, according to a decision of the District Court of Appeals, which declares that the provisions of this law as to liability for injury to employés can not be evaded. The decision is expected to apply to all subsidiary corporations nominally in control of sidings or other terminal facilities.

The Court's opinion, which is by Justice Van Orsdell, says the terminal company is clearly a common carrier, despite the fact that it does not engage in carrying passengers on its own cars. The Court reverses the action of the District Supreme Court directing a verdict in favor of the terminal company in the suit of Edward McNamara, a fireman, injured in a collision in the terminal yards in 1908. McNamara obtains a new trial. He jointly sued the Washington Terminal Company and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company.

"To make it a common carrier it is not necessary that it should own a car or carry a passenger," said the Appellate Court. "It is part of a system used for commerce. The terminal company's railroad and station is for a part of the system over and through which all commerce must pass."

WANT LORIMER'S TESTIMONY.

Senate Committee Will Summon Him to Give Evidence Under Oath.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—For the first time since the bribery charges were brought in connection with the election of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois, that Senator is to be called before the Senate Committee, which investigates the scandal, and is to be required to testify under oath as to the things that happened in connection with his election.

It was learned to-day that the decision to summon Mr. Lorimer and compel him to give sworn testimony has been reached. Unless Mr. Lorimer resigns he can not escape the ordeal.

Thus far in the investigation and discussion of the Lorimer case the Illinois Senator has not been required to say a word under oath. What he has said, he has said on the floor of the Senate. And the Constitution declares that for what he may say there he shall not be called to account in any other place.

Last Winter there was much criticism because the sub-committee of the Privileges and Elections Committee, which made the investigation, did not compel Senator Lorimer to testify under oath. On account of this criticism, it has been decided in informal conferences of Senate leaders, that he must be required to testify.

TAFT GOING TO CHICAGO.

To Speak for Reciprocity Before the Western Economic Society.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—President Taft will make one of the important speeches of his campaign for Canadian reciprocity in Chicago on June 3 before the Western Economic Society in Orchestra Hall.

The President to-day assured Fred L. Rossbach, President of the Hamilton Club of Chicago, that he would receive a committee while there and listen to their invitation to him to lay the cornerstone of their new clubhouse some time in August. The National Association of Piano Dealers was informed that the President could not attend its banquet in Chicago on June 6, but that he would press a button to open its show on June 3.

President Taft will be in Chicago only a few hours. He leaves Washington on Friday night, reaches Chicago on Saturday afternoon, spends that night there, and is due in the capital again on Monday morning.

For 8 New Torpedo Boat Destroyers.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—That naval officials consider the torpedo boat destroyer one of the most effective instruments in modern naval warfare is shown by the announcement that the Navy Department will open bids on Aug. 7 for eight of those vessels, larger and more powerful than those of their type at present in the navy.

200 Postal Employes Mourners.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 30.—Two hundred employes of the New York Post Office, including seventy letter carriers in uniform and headed by Postmaster Morgan,, attended the funeral of John Washington at Staatsburg to-day. Mr. Washington was the Superintendent of the delivery branch of the New York Post Office. Postmaster Morgan and the employes marched in the funeral procession. The services were held at St. Paul's Church and interment was at Rhinebeck, N. Y.

BANKERS OPPOSE GRADY'S BANK BILL

SLIGHT ADVANTAGE TO CITY

Supt. Van Tuyl Approves Generally of Legislation Encouraging Investments in Gilt-Edge Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 30.—Conservative bankers are viewing with some alarm the provisions of a banking bill introduced by Senator Grady, which, unless Gov. Dix should act on it to-morrow, will become a law without his signature.

The bill was introduced ostensibly to make New York City bonds more readily marketable. It provides that any bank or trust company shall not be required to have the usual percentage of cash reserve to secure deposits invested in New York City bonds.

There is a companion bill, also introduced by Senator Grady and now in the hands of Mayor Gaynor, which provides that banks having city deposits shall secure these by the purchase of city bonds.

J. O. Hammitt, Secretary of the Citizens' Union, said to-day that he had received numerous letters from bankers in New York City pointing to the fallacy of the Grady plan to boost the market value of city bonds. These letters, according to Mr. Hammitt, in many instances show that the advantage to the city's securities would be only temporary at the best, that in the time of panic the stability of banks would be endangered by the exception made in favor of city bonds which would not be easy to realize upon.

State Supt. of Banks Van Tuyl, when questioned regarding the Grady bill, said that it had been passed prior to his taking office.

"In a general way," said Mr. Van Tuyl, "I should say that any measure encouraging investment in State and municipal securities which are gilt-edged would be a good measure for the reason that it would crowd out securities not furnishing as secure investments. Under the emergency currency law you can exchange such securities for emergency currency or for United States bonds against which currency can be issued in any National bank."

RAMROD SHOT THROUGH MAN.

MONOGAHELA, Penn., May 30.—The accidental discharge of a cannon here to-day sent the ramrod through the body of Charles Gibson, 27, and Earl Marshall, 16, had his right thumb torn off. Arthur Wilson, 19, Charles Steel, 18, and Joseph Marshall, were seriously burned by powder.

The accident happened in the Monongahela Cemetery when the annual sunrise salute to Memorial Day was fired. Eight shots had been fired, powder smoke hung blue about the tombstones, and the old gun was hot. Gibson was tamping the ninth charge, while Earl Marshall with his thumb plugged the firing hole in the breech. Marsall's thumb slipped and the gun went off with a roar, hurling Gibson's body twenty-five feet, tho ramrod tearing a hole through his body.

FIREMEN'S DEMANDS HEARD.

Government Mediation Board Trying to Settle Threatened Southern Strike.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Representatives of approximately 2,000 firemen on the Southern Railway, who are demanding a 20 per cent. increase in wages, together with officials of the Southern, to-day again appeared before the Government Mediation Board in an effort to effect an amicable adjustment. Both sides held long conferences with the mediators, but they announced no conclusions.

The firemen still contend they will not accept anything under the 20 per cent. increase and will strike if the mediators are not able to solve the problem. Both sides expect a settlement to-morrow.

DAUGHTER DEAD ON STAIRS.

Stepfather Finds Her with Throat Cut—He and Wife Held for Inquiry.

WEBSTER, Penn., May 30.—When John Stevenson was awakened early this morning and went downstairs to ascertain the reason he fell over the dead body of his step-daughter, Mrs. Susan Wentz, aged 28, which was lying across the foot of the stairs with her throat cut. A door leading to the outside stood ajar, but there was no trace of the supposed murderer. A physician summoned said the woman had been dead several hours.

Stevenson said that Mrs. Wentz was all right when he and his wife retired, but the couple is being held pending an investigaion.

MAY PARTY OF THE LOST.

As on every other Decoration Day in Central Park since the old ivy covered Arsenal has housed a police station, yesterday proved no exception to the rule that this is the banner day for lost children. The matron's room was turned into a municipal nursery for twenty youngsters, who took their juvenile adventures with remarkable philosophy and eventually made merry over them.

When Matron Wynne arrived on duty yesterday morning Lieut. "Paddy" Gray, on desk duty, greeted her with a good morning and laughingly said, "You know what you've got to do to-day!"

"Yes, indeed," replied Mrs. Wynne, going to her room. Presently she was hanging on the door a big painted sign which read: "Lost Children Here." And, preparing an impromptu May party, she didn't have to wait long for lost child No. 1, a pretty, 4-year-old, yellow-haired girl, who said that maybe her name was Florence Davidson or maybe it was Florence David. She had a delightful lisp and captivated the heart of Mrs. Wynne. Furthermore, she thought she might live at 1424 Lexington Avenue, and then again she wasn't sure but that it might be Lenox Avenue, and she wasn't at all sure but that 1424 stood for the telephone. But she did know that her father was the owner of a "big bake shop. And what do you think," she confided in a whisper to the matron, "my father spends every cent on me?"

This last miss was daintily dressed as a May queen, in a wonderful spangled dress, with wreaths of flowers about her head and waist. She had come to the Park as queen of a May party, and somehow, just how she couldn't remember, she had got lost. Patrolman Powers on duty in the Park found her near the baseball grounds, and she said to him:

He couldn't, so he took her to the Arsenal. The subjectless queen had only one regret to express to Mrs. Wynne, and that was that she couldn't shine as a queen. But Mrs. Wynne smilingly said, "I'll fix all that. You'll be May queen here, and we'll have a real May party, for you're going to have lots of company if you stay here long."

The second to arrive was Joseph Anthony, who said he lived at 219 Ninth Avenue. He wore a gala holiday suit, too, with a gorgeous red and white May-day hat. He was brought in by Patrolman Ryan, who found him on the Mall and to whom he said,

He was promptly made king of the May party of the lost and duly crowned by the busy Mrs. Wynne.

The third recruit said he was Matthew Horan of 352 West Twelfth Street. Gayly dressed as a flower guard, he also had wandered away and appealed to a policeman to have himself found.

Then came a black-haired little boy of 5—a roly poly chap of sturdy build—the most non-talkative child, Mrs. Wynne declared, that she had ever met in her long experience of lost children; and after him children of all descriptions and nationalities till the room was full.

Kind-hearted policemen on reserve duty joined the court of the little May king and queen. The policemen dug deeply into their pockets and soon ice cream, milk, cake, and other goodies were arranged by the matron on the big table in her room. It was a feast of plenty, and added to the happy afternoon of the little ones.

Mrs. Wynne improvised a May pole by sawing off a broomstick. It was a little short and kind of wabbly, but it pleased the children just the same.

All but two of the children were claimed by night. They were Florence Davidson, or David, and the non-talkative boy who called himself "Joe." They were taken to the Children's Society.

CRAZED JAPANESE A SUICIDE.

Hangs Himself with a Lace of His Straitjacket.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 30.—Working himself free from a straightjacket in which he had been confined at the Emergency Hospital, Ich Matu Ohashi, a Japanese, ended his life yesterday by hanging himself with one of the laces of the jacket.

Ohashi told the police that because of his relations with the wife of a friend in Chicago this "friend" had followed him to this city, and told him that unless he committed hari-kiri his relatives in Japan would be punished. The Japanese asked to be put in prison for twenty years to save his relatives. He was placed in a straitjacket pending an investigation as to his sanity.

CITY BREVITIES.

Charles Edward Russell, who has just returned from a tour of New Zealand, Australia, and South Africa, will make his last appearance on the lecture platform here for several months at Cooper Union on June 6, lecturing on "Practical Results of Modern Utopias."

Memorial Day was enjoyed by 1,500 boys in the Catholic Protectory in the Bronx yesterday with athletic sports, races, and drills. In the afternoon their parents and relatives were invited to the Protectory, and the youngest of the boys gave a minstrel show.

A strike of about 1,000 cork workers is in progress here for higher wages and a shorter workday. It is the first New York strike in this trade. Most of the shops affected are in Brooklyn, but the strike is to be extended to some of the shops in Manhattan to-day.

The News of This Last Day of the White Sale Is Very Interesting

Because this last day of the Sale will be as rich with economies as was the first. This is an opportunity—but the last one—for women who have procrastinated. So if they put off getting their Summer supplies of Undermuslins another day it simply means the loss of saving 10 to 25 per cent. of the regular prices.

Selection will be quite as large as it was at the beginning of the Sale, as we were foresighted and planned for the women whose hindsight is generally the best.

It Is Impossible to Name the Prettiest Summer Frock in Our Salons Whether the Price Is $5.75 or $25

Every one of the many styles is not only commendable, but unusual at its particular price. Those at $5.75—and at every price in between—have as much merit as those at $25.

A Lingerie Dress of allover eyelet embroidery and lace—that is, of good quality—is a rarity at $5.75. And women know it.

As one seldom finds dimity in ready-to-wear frocks, we have the opportunity to point to another unique feature of our collection. The Dimity Frocks at $10.50 are not only of delightful design, but the style is dainty. The coolness of the dimity is emphasized by a rounded sailor collar of fine white net and lace. While the most decided touch of individuality is the fluted ruffle at the top of the deep hem and around the waist panel, which gives the effect of a high waistline. White with foulard patterns in lavender, rose, navy or black.

Although we have Morning, Afternoon and Evening Frocks at prices between $5.75 and $25, one may also select from scores of styles and many prices up to $135.

Shantung Pongee Frocks Again in Vogue

This, the most ancient of silk fabrics, can never be downed by Fashion, as it is always good-looking and cool for hot Summer days. Pongee Frocks this season are mostly fashioned in demi-tailored styles, although we have some that are rather fanciful.

$11.50 to $37.50—at the latter price a model fashioned after that famous braided coat-dress by Paquin.

Summer Frocks for the Younger Set

For young women of 14, 16, 18 and 20 years—$3.75 to $25.

For young girls of 6 to 14 years, $1.25 to $15.

BOGART OF WIRELESS TO PAY $2,500 FINE

Judge Martin Says He Was "Roped In" by the Active Leaders of the Swindle.

HELPED THE PROSECUTION

Samuel S. Bogart, Vice President of the United Wireless Company, was sentenced yesterday in the United States Circuit Court to pay a fine of $2,500. The sentence was imposed by Judge Martin, who the day before gave prison terms to five other officers of the company after the jury had found them guilty of defrauding through use of the mails.

The Vice President, unlike his companions, had elected in the course of the trial to plead guilty to the indictment.

The fine was imposed in chambers after United States Assistant District Attorney Stephenson had said for the Government that there was no specific recommendation as to punishment to be made by him. Bogart's attorney, William Travers Jerome, also explained that in entering the plea of guilty his understanding was that the Government would be content with the imposition of a fine.

Judge Martin put on record his reasons for imposing a fine in Bogart's case. He said that the latter had been "roped in" by those in active leadership because of his skill as a telegrapher. He added that Bogart had had nothing to do with shaping, molding, or carrying out the scheme to defraud.

Assistant District Attorney Stephenson said that Bogart had not hindered in any way the Government's investigation into the affairs of the United Wireless Company, and that he had done all in his power to secure the return of the eighteen books of the concern which had been secreted in the interest of the other defendants, with a view to preventing their prosecution. Bogart was paroled in the custody of William Travers Jerome, and it has been arranged that he will pay his fine this morning.

The five officers of the United Wireless Company sentenced on Monday in the United States Circuit Court to prison terms of from one to three years, spent a restless night in the Tombs, where they were held preparatory to being taken to Atlanta to begin their terms.

They were not allowed to see any friends yesterday on account of the fact that it was a holiday. They, on their side, elected to be just as exclusive, and refused to see reporters, sending word to them that they had no comment to make on the result of their trial.

A batch of telegrams was received at the Tombs yesterday for the convicted men; they began coming early in the morning and continued all day. Shortly before noon two large touring cars filled with men stopped at the Tombs. They said they were friends of the officers of the United Wireless Company. When they learned they could not see the prisoners they lifted suitcases, traveling bags, and large and small packages from the machines and sent them in to them.

They refused to say who they were, except that they had formerly been associated in business with the convicted men. They also refused to comment on the verdict.

The prisoners have five days in which to make an appeal from the verdict, and if the appeal is denied they will be taken direct to Atlanta Saturday.

FIRES ON HARRIMAN ESTATE.

Shops and Stables Burned and Silver Fox Inn Has Narrow Escape.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 30.—On May 12 the carpenter and machine shops at the foot of the inclined railroad leading to the E. H. Harriman residence at Arden, Orange county, were burned. These shops were furnishing the trimming to finish the Harriman house. On Monday night at 8 o'clock the large livery stables connected with the Silver Fox Inn at Harriman were burned, and the inn had a very narrow escape.

The origin of the fires is unknown. Some time ago Mrs. Mary Harriman purchased the Silver Fox Inn property, which adjoined the Harriman estate, and the report has gained credence that the fires were started by some one having a grievance against the Harrimans. None of the managers of the Harriman estate or members of the family believe this, and no unusual precautions are being taken to guard against further fires.

There were seven blooded horses and two automobiles in the stables which belonged to Mr. Rumsey, proprietor of Silver Fox Inn, but they were saved.

Canada Confiscates Seattle Schooner.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 30.—The gasoline fishing schooner Edrie of Seattle was condemned and confiscated to the British Government by Chief Justice Hunter yesterday for fishing within the three-mile limit off Lanz Island, at the northwest end of Vancouver Island, where she was seized in February by the Canadian warship Rainbow.

Washington Town Has $150,000 Fire.

EVERETT, Wash., May 30.—Fire to-day destroyed thirty-five business buildings at Snohomish, nine miles east of here. Loss, $150,000.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 30.—The Assembly at its brief session to-day passed the Hoey fire provention bill. This measure was adopted by the Merchants' Association after the disastrous fire at the Triangle Waist Company last April, at which 148 employés lost their lives. It has the indorsement of the city authorities, of the Citizens' Union, the Fifth Avenue Association, and the Committee on Safety.

The bill does away with existing provisions in the New York City charter, under which authority to regulate for the purpose of preventing loss of life and property in fires is divided between the fire department and the building department, and leaves that authority exclusively in the hands of the fire commissioner. It provides for the establishment of a bureau of fire prevention, with a battalion chief in charge, and vastly increases his powers with regard to making regulations for the prevention of fire.

In order to render effective his powers the commissioner is empowered to order an inspection of any building in which numbers of persons work, live or congregate from time to time, to order in writing the remedying of any condition existing in it in violation of any law or ordinance in respect to fires and fire prevention, to order the installation of fire extinguishing apparatus or the construction of safe means of exit, order unsafe buildings vacated, or, if necessary, condemned, and to take charge on behalf of the department of the necessary work of repairs at the owners' or lessees' expense after proper court proceedings, in case the latter shall fail to carry out within reasonable time the commissioner's written orders in this respect.

17-YEAR LOCUSTS' EVOLUTION

ALBANY, May 30.—State Entomologist Felt, announces that the 17-year locust has appeared in the vicinity of Albany, as well as Poughkeepsie and Annandale. It is probable, he says, that the forerunners of this large brood, are now coming up here and there throughout the upper part of the Hudson valley.

"The present is an excellent opportunity," says Mr. Felt, "for witnessing the wonderful transformation accompanied by striking colorational changes from the grub-like, underground worker, to the perfect insect, with its contrasting colors of red and black.

"The pupae may be expected to appear above ground with the setting of the sun, and continue to emerge in large numbers till about 9 P. M. They climb up the trunks of trees and the stems of bushes, establish themselves, and in about an hour the skin splits down the middle and the cicada begins to appear, the head and the thorax being thrust out of the shell, followed by the appendages, and later the withdrawal of the abdomen.

The cicada is at first mostly creamy white, with the exception of the reddish eyes and the black patches on the prothorax. The limp wings gradually expand, and the veins slowly change from a creamy white to a deep red. This remarkable transformation may occupy twenty minutes to an hour, or more."

FOR GUARDING CITY'S RIGHTS.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 30.—Senator Ramsperger of Buffalo, who introduced the Barge Terminal bill and is Chairman of the Senate Committee on Canals, received a letter to-day from George Clinton of Buffalo, Chairman of the Barge Canal Terminal Commission, recommending certain amendments to the measure now pending before the Legislature, providing for a bond issue of $20,000,000 for the construction of terminals.

Objection against certain provisions in the bill with reference to the New York City terminals of the barge canal were raised the other day by Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward J. McGoldrick, on the ground that under these provisions uplands and areas under water in New York City, contrary to charter provisions, could be taken by the State through condemnation proceedings for canal terminal purposes.

Mr. Clinton now proposes that the bill be amended so as to have all the city's rights protected and have the terminals established by agreement between the Board of Estimate and the State Canal Board, with the approval of the Governor. Such an agreement under the proposed amendment would, he says, include the compensation to be paid the city, if any, and provide for the right of the city and the State to the income derived, while the management, construction and maintenance of such terminals would be left with the State.

RABIES SCARE UP STATE.

Dogs and Cattle the Victims—Talk of a Quarantine.

ALBANY, May 30.—Reports of outbreaks of rabies in Geneva and Auburn have been received by the State Department of Agriculture, and are being investigated with a view to placing the two municipalities under quarantine should the conditions so warrant. It is said that many dogs and cattle are suffering from rabies.

The State authorities say that the outbreaks of rabies this year are not as numerous as in years past.

Manufacturers Wholesalers

PERHAPS you have noticed some of the signs about town on buildings formerly occupied by manufacturers or wholesalers who have moved to the Bush Terminal. But you have not realized that the number of industries we have moved to the Bush Terminal since January last is over 40, or more industries than are located in cities the size of Worcester, Massachusetts, or Fall River, Massachusetts —cities celebrated for the extent of their manufacturing interests. You have not realized that we are moving to the Bush Terminal enough industries to support an entire city and doing it EVERY SIX MONTHS. Our present buildings are all filled—were all leased before they were completed. We are building more—we are doubling, in fact. We are building now to be finished in the late Winter and early Spring as many square feet of manufacturing buildings as we now have in our entire 200 acre plant. These new buildings will contain space enough to accommodate 120 more manufacturers and wholesalers, which means that in the next six months we have the job of moving to the Bush Terminal enough industries to support THREE CITIES. Can we do it? We believe so. So far we have always maintained the enviable record of leasing space faster than we could build it. We are now trying to catch up to the demand.

When demand exceeds supply it is business custom to either increase output or raise the price. We have increased the output and we are going to increase the price.

When the Price Goes Up

Our rental price will be increased 5 cents per square foot, to take effect not later than October 1st next. We are likely at any time to receive an executive order to put this increase into effect at once. The Sales Department has entered a plea to have the increase become effective only on October 1st, because of the number of concerns which are now on the point of closing leases at the price already quoted them. We KNOW the increase will go into effect October 1st, and we realize that it may come before. We want you to realize it, too.

We are spending a great deal of money—millions—to increase our facilities—to build more of the factors which save money for our tenants, and to still further increase their present savings. On the first of January last we reduced the rate for both steam and electric power to all of our tenants—old tenants as well as new—although the old rate was already very low and every one was satisfied with it. We concentrated on the time of fast freight shipments. We are now making third morning deliveries in Chicago, second morning delivery in Buffalo, Cleveland and Detroit. How often do YOU get this service from New York City on YOUR freight shipments?

Does it not stand to reason that enough industries to support SIX CITIES, all concentrated in one place, all having the same interests, can load enough solid cars to give a pretty nearly perfect less than car load service to the points you want to reach? All this costs money. We are providing other points of service without charge, but we are going to raise the rent.

We are going to raise our rental price. We want to give fair warning of it. We want you to know that if you sign a lease today (as many are doing) for space in our new buildings you will get that space at the present low rental. But as soon as an executive order comes through you will have to pay the higher rate—and there will be not the least doubt about it, either, nor even a hint of concession.

An Immediate Saving for You

You will investigate the Bush Terminal to see what it can save for YOUR business just as sure as the sun shines—just as sure as you live and breathe. You will investigate SOME TIME—better do it now. It may save you $1,000 to $5,000 yearly for many years—on the increased rental price alone.

Kidnapping a City

Enough industries to support an entire city have moved to the Bush Terminal since January last. The men at the head of them are big, brainy men—very successful men. They moved to the Bush Terminal for just one reason—IT PAYS and it pays very, very well. It pays in two ways—it saves a great deal of money through the economies it gives which you cannot get elsewhere, and it makes you a great deal of money through the facilities it gives which you cannot get elsewhere.

Let Us Invest Twenty Millions for You

Now, suppose you should build for yourself an ideal factory—with every equipment and facility which modern engineering and industrial science can devise—leaving the question of cost entirely out of it. Erect this factory on the water front—build great piers before it so that sixty steamship lines can call there for your water shipments. Put in a railroad twenty miles long to handle your freight cars and bring them to your door, so that every railroad line in the country is yours to ship over without the cost of cartage. Build up a big railroad organization to handle it for you. Spend a few millions for engines, rolling stock, tugs, lighters, car floats, float bridges and a great force to operate them. THEN you could run your business under perfect conditions, couldn't you? Of course you would have to make an investment of about twenty million dollars to provide these facilities and your ideal factory. Of course it would enable you to very greatly increase output at the same pay-roll cost—to increase the grade of your product at the same cost—to cut off a great many annoying expenses which you suffer now and which very greatly cut down your profit. The only difficulty is the investment you would have to make.

The Bush Terminal has made the investment for you—and far more, it has built the ideal factory for you—look at it. A number of concerns who operate just as you operate are using similar ideal factories. Look at them—see what they save—what they make by the change. The Bush Terminal gives you at the cost of a low rent the ideal factory and the facilities surrounding which it would cost you millions to build—it gives you the Bush Terminal Service.

Saving Money — Increasing Output—Improving Quality

If you want to save a great many thousand dollars from your present operating expenses, if you want to greatly increase your output at the same pay-roll cost, if you want to improve the quality of your goods, and get a higher price for them at a cost of production far lower than at present—then go look at the ideal factory or stock room or distributing centre the Bush Terminal has built for you.

Your rent may be low now—we can give you rent free through the savings we make on your present cartage bills—insurance bills—labor bills—power bills, and many other points of economy and of service. Remember, we don't merely lease you a factory space, or a stock room space, we lease you as well the Bush service, and the cost is probably lower than your present rental.

Now do you see why we have brought to the Bush Terminal since January last enough industries to support an entire City?

We Have Already Helped You

Some of these industries come from the South, some from the West—one from Canada—four from Chicago alone. Some of them were located on the Island of Manhattan. Many of these were ready to move away from Manhattan—to go to Jersey—to Connecticut—to go up the Hudson—to go to Long Island. They had found it impracticable to pay the high rents of Manhattan, to pay the very high insurance rates on goods held in buildings in Manhattan, to endure the constant expense and trouble due to the terrific congestion of the city streets which plays so large a part in the cost of cartage. They would have moved away and the revenue they give to the city would have been lost to New York. Every new industry which locates here benefits all of us. Every one which moves away injures the pocketbooks of all of us. The money which a concern pays its employees, goes to the butcher, the baker, the apartment house owner, the grocer, the clothing merchant, the department store and the banks. It comes back to each one of us, or our individual proportion of it does, because it makes just so much more business, it increases the demand for just the thing, be it goods or services, which each individual one of us has to offer.

The Bush Terminal has performed a very great industrial service to New York City by bringing these industries to New York and keeping others here. It has benefited you in this way but, most of all, it has benefited you by enlarging its own facilities for your business and reducing the cost of its service to your business.

How YOU Get YOURS

A large proportion of readers will say, "Yes, the Bush Terminal is a fine thing, but it can't serve my particular kind of business."

It CAN serve your business. We have heard scores of business men say, "You can't save money for MY business." They have signed leases, they are with us to-day, and are saving from $15,000 to $45,000 yearly. Don't let your mere SUSPICION that we can't serve you shut you out of $45,000 yearly.

Some other men have said, "I am tied up on a long lease; I am afraid you can't do anything for me now."

We CAN—we are big enough to solve your lease problem in ten minutes.

Don't you want to know HOW we are saving $15,000 to $45,000 every year for concerns in your line of business? We will gladly mail you the story of just what we are doing for them and HOW we do it, if you will write the single word "HOW?" on your letterhead and send it to us.

THE BOOK OF THE MOMENT

Final Notice---Lists Closing To-Night

As this notice goes to press it is practically certain that the first distribution of the Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica will exceed 32,000 sets. 1005 orders were registered yesterday.

Telegraphed orders will be acknowledged in the same manner, but owing to the pressure on the office staff it will be impossible to acknowledge all applications by mail on the day of receipt.

Telegraphed or mailed, no order will be included in the current lists which is dispatched after 12 p. m. (midnight) to-day, up to which hour the New York office of the Cambridge University Press will remain open.

The advantage of telegraphing or mailing your order to-day is a saving (minimum) of $14.50 per set or 50c a volume and a guarantee of the execution and delivery of your set under existing manufacturing contracts. No more copies will be printed and bound at present than those for which application shall be made before the closing of the lists.

ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

29,790 ORDERS

For the new (11th) edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica had been received up to 5 P. M. yesterday. Owing to the resulting pressure on the manufacturing department no immediate provision can be made to execute orders mailed after to-day. These will be filled, and when every application on the current lists has been filled will be accepted at an advance of 50c. per volume or $14.50 per set over to-day's prices.

Such unprecedented success is an equal tribute to the industry of the distinguished scholars who wrote the book, to the enterprise of the Cambridge University Press who published it and to the discernment of the book-buying public who have so heartily welcomed it.

The magnitude of the present issue also discharges the obligation laid on the Cambridge University Press, when they acquired the control and copyright, to place the book within the reach of the greatest number of readers by offering it at prices which have never before been possible, and which, even in the present instance, would not have been possible had not the public responded quickly.

Finally it is a proof that the high standard of previous editions has been maintained in the new 11th edition. To quote from a review in the Nation: "The editors have produced a work of transcendent merit, one unapproached by any similar publication."

While the unqualified success of the first distribution (29,790 applications registered up to 5 p. m. yesterday) speaks for itself, it has one aspect to which in this closing notice the Cambridge University Press wishes to invite attention.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica has always been a force for efficiency and progress and in its latest edition is undoubtedly destined profoundly to influence American culture. Now, while publicity in the usual sense of the word ceases with this notice, for the publishers will for the present devote their exclusive time to the manufacture of the sets sold under the terms of the current offer, the silent publicity due to the distribution of the work in so many hands may be said to be only just beginning, and will grow from now onwards.

Assuming that the new edition is incomparably the most exhaustive work of general reference in existence, as well as the only modern one, and in the new India paper format achieves a purpose to which no other encyclopaedia, however scholarly, has hitherto proved adequate, these facts are bound in time to be impressed on the reader's attention by the satisfaction, the increased efficiency, the quickened mentality, and perhaps even the unstinted praise of its possessors. There may possibly come a day when he will not only wish that he had acquired the book under the original offer but will even come to realize that he cannot do without it.

Practical foresight consists in the last analysis in accepting the probable as though it were inevitable. The reader's decision whether or not to-day---at the last moment---to avail himself of the current offer ($14.50 more favorable than it will be to-morrow) must contemplate among other things the probable consequence of everything that has been claimed by the Cambridge University Press for the new edition, proving not only true, but, as some critics are agreed who have examined the work, not half the truth. In light of the fact that, principally after it had become established in popular favor, 400,000 copies of the 9th Edition (including reprints) were sold in this country, there is no saying to what figure the sales of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica may ultimately attain. Could the reader be certain that 200,000 people would eventually acquire the book for reasons which will prove just as cogent in his own case, would he still hesitate to avail himself of the present opportunity?

Those who have already received the prospectus and specimen pages will have ample material on hand to guide them in coming to a decision. For the benefit of those who have no prospectus as well as of those who wish, so to speak, to focus sharply the essential facts concerning the new 11th Edition, there is appended to this notice a detailed specification of the work. The print is necessarily small, but all the requisite information is there for anyone who looks for it.

An order form accompanies this final notice.

SPECIFICATION OF
OF THE
Encyclopaedia Britannica

No other completely new edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica has been issued since the Ninth, the first volume of which was published in 1875, and the 25th in 1889.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica has become an international institution—a heritage of English-speaking people everywhere. In view of its unfailing usefulness in recording the knowledge gained by mankind in every department of human activity, the Cambridge University Press desires to invite public attention to certain new features of this edition which distinguish it from all previous editions and from all other works of reference whatsoever.

The new work is a fresh and original survey of universal knowledge, an adequate and authoritative exposition of all human thought and achievement. Private enterprise has hitherto been responsible for its publication, but the copyrights having passed into the keeping of the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of the University of Cambridge, it will henceforth be issued as a University publication. Cambridge is moreover closely identified with University Extension—a movement having as its object the diffusion of knowledge outside the circle of mere students.

The Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, whilst it has been edited and written on the same lines of comprehensiveness as the Ninth Edition, and whilst it maintains the high reputation of that work, is marked by several noteworthy improvements. (1) The whole of the MS.—comprising 40,000 articles—has been written simultaneously, the Editors having at the outset laid out a ground-plan for the new edition which made it possible for them to consider the literary production of the work as a complete whole, as distinguished from the piecemeal—or volume by volume—method of production. The entire contents were continuously under the Editors' view and control before a single page was sent to press. (2) All the volumes are, therefore, of even date (1910), and the information in each volume does not appear elsewhere even in a different setting. A serious defect of the 9th Edition has thus been obviated. There are no repetitions, and no inconsistencies, as the result of this unity of effort on the part of the 1,500 contributors directed by an exceptionally large Editorial staff. (3) The principle of comprehensive treatment has been combined with brevity—major subjects being subdivided into minor ones, which receive independent treatment according to their importance and in their alphabetical places. These short articles are very numerous, and lead the inquirer directly to the information he seeks, so that the Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition) will be found to be the most useful work for the purpose of quick reference that has ever been published. (4) Equally welcome will be the innovation which has permitted the use of "dictionary" headings for scientific or technical terms, and for old words having a complicated meaning, or an interesting history. The 9th Edition contained 10,000 strange words not included in any dictionary, but in the 11th Edition such words are explained either under their own headings or in the body of the text as they occur. (5) The new (11th) Edition is, furthermore, a work of international scholarship to a degree never before realized. The Editors recognized that scholarship to-day knows no nationality, and they enlisted the services of specialist authorities and practical experts wherever they could be found. The 1,500 contributors represent all civilized countries. (6) The employment of the greatest experts as contributors has secured for the work the services of men who are known to be at the top of their profession—who are themselves originators in their own fields, so that the new (11th) Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica contains information actually in advance of the day and never before published—information upon which the next generation will shape its activities and base its conclusions. (7) Another new feature is the fact that the 11th Edition gives histories of celebrated living persons throughout the world, and thus becomes, for the first time, a comprehensive handbook of international biography. (8) The literary cost alone—the sum paid to contributors, Editors, and Editorial assistants—has amounted to £163,000 ($815,000), more than twice the sum (£60,000) similarly expended on the 9th Edition. (9) The 11th Edition consists of 29 quarto volumes, including Index, comprising 27,000 pages of text, 40,000 articles, and 40,000,000 words. There are 7,000 illustrations, 450 full-page plates, 569 maps, and a large Index (Vol. 29). (10) Finally, the new Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is issued in a new format—in thin, light and flexible volumes which are easy to handle and convenient to read. The volumes of the 9th Edition were, for most persons, too cumbrous in size and too heavy to hold in the hand. But by the use of India paper (thin, but very strong and opaque), the thickness has been reduced from 2¾ inches to 1 inch, and the complete set occupies but 29 inches of shelf space. (The work is also published, for those who prefer it, on ordinary book-paper of the same quality as that used for the last edition.) In suiting the reader's convenience by reducing the size and weight of the volumes so that he may now keep them constantly on his library table, the publishers believe they have multiplied the usefulness of the Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition) to an incalculable degree. It cannot be regarded only as a book of reference; it is also a book to read simply for the pleasure it will afford.

THE CONSEQUENCES.

Nobody could possibly be such a fool as to imagine that any direct benefit will accrue to the individual consumer of illuminating oil and tobacco products from the decree of the court ordering the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company and the American Tobacco Company. It is one of the anomalies of legislation under a popular Government that the people have immensely benefited by the operation of these gigantic combinations in restraint of trade which they have now struck down by their laws. It would have been impossible for a hundred or two hundred comparatively small competing corporations to produce and supply for consumption refined petroleum at the price paid for it by the householders of the United States during the last thirty years. By reason of the vast power acquired through practices now declared unlawful, by the business and industrial genius of its chief men and its subordinate managers, by the application of time and money saving methods carefully planned and continually improved, by the economies made possible through large-scale production and distribution, by the profitable use of every by-product and by the application of its own methods to the minor industries tributary to its business, and by the command of enormous capital which alone made possible the highest beneficial use of all these methods which have long been considered the country's most brilliant example of efficiency in business, the Standard Oil Company, this great monopoly, has been able to produce and sell illuminating oil and other products of petroleum at a price of which the consumer could not reasonably complain. We do not know that it can truthfully be said of the American Tobacco Company that it has materially lowered the price or improved the quality of cigars, cigarettes, chewing tobacco, snuff, and other manufactures of the tobacco plant. But at least extortion is not the offense of which that concern has now been adjudged guilty, and it is not dissolved because of attempts to maintain high prices. In the opinion of the court nothing is said about unreasonable prices. So the Sugar Trust, which is very much disliked in this country, has never robbed the consumer. The annual household outlay for sweetening has, no doubt, been less than it would have been had the product been supplied by a large number of competing refineries. But the American people have declared that the Oil Company and the Tobacco Company must go out of existence.

Nevertheless, the maintenance of low prices cannot be held to justify, though it may extenuate, the unlawful practices of the Standard Oil Company and of the American Tobacco Company. In both these cases the court finds that restraint of trade which the statute forbids. Both corporations carried the policy of restraining competition to that undue, unreasonable, and harmful extreme which constitutes restraint of trade. They drove competitors out of business. The Tobacco Company, the court finds, in five years lost more than $4,000,000 by reducing the price of plug tobacco below cost, in order to ruin or bring to terms competitors who had refused its offer of combination. The war was successful. It finds that in 1899, and thereafter, the company spent $50,000,000 in cash or stock to buy and to close up some thirty competing corporations and partnerships. Similar acts are set forth in the record of the Standard Oil Company. This is plainly restraint of trade. Had these practices never been resorted to, had free competition not been suppressed, many moderate fortunes, not merely a few enormous fortunes, would have been acquired in these industries. The oil refining trade and the tobacco trade would have produced, let us say, five hundred or a thousand millionaires, men with a few millions, instead of some twenty-five, more or less, multimillionaires, men worth from fifty to three hundred millions each. That is what it all comes to, this prodigious fuss about monopoly and restraint of trade.

It is well that it should come to that end. The individual consumer may have profited by the operations of the great trusts, he will, in most cases, reap no benefit whatever from their dissolution. But the American people have set their faces against the accumulation of vast fortunes through the methods adopted and pursued by the organizers and chief men of the Standard Oil Company and the American Tobacco Company. They denounce, condemn, and forbid those devices of "high finance" which, by making enormous stock and bond issues an incident of combinations in restraint of trade, the securities, of course, finding their way into the hands of investors for cash, have enabled the trust magnates to pile up fortunes of tens or hundreds of millions in a few years. The people have been endlessly preached to about swollen wealth. They feel that these fortunes are not honestly or honorably come by. They feel that in some way their pockets have been emptied to fill the coffers of the multimillionaires. That is not, in all cases, true, but they believe it to be true. The vast disparity of conditions that has thus come about frets them. It supplies the text and the opportunity for the agitators who thrive by stirring up discontent. The endowment of universities or millions spent in establishing laboratories for scientific research give the people, it may be, a kinder feeling toward the multimillionaires who thus spend their accumulations in good works, but for the typical selfish multimillionaire whose only pleasure is in accumulation and who makes no return to the public from his stores of wealth they have no kind feeling at all. For all these reasons the Sherman act, designed to put a stop to the gaining of immense fortunes in other ways than those of fair and honorable business, has, as it is now interpreted and as it will henceforth be applied, the sanction and the approval of substantially all the people of the United States. Under the test of experience the ends it accomplishes will be found to be good ends. There can be no doubt about that.

But where will the prosecutions and the dissolutions stop? Men say that while the Standard Oil opinion of Chief Justice WHITE was reassuring and gave much comfort to the distressed, the Tobacco decision will "disturb business," by the fear it arouses that, if innumerable new bills are drawn by the Government, and if new decrees continue to issue, there will be such a general dislocation of great business interests that years must elapse before all the new adjustments can be made and confidence restored. We are not of that opinion, our forecast is not so gloomy. Two points determine the position of a straight line. The two points now fixed by the Standard Oil decision and the American Tobacco decision may be considered the forward sight and the rear sight of that formidable firearm the Sherman act of 1890. Any business man of good eyesight can discover whether the arm is aimed at him. If it is, he had better get out of range. There can be no hesitation, no dispute, as to the wisdom of obeying this law.

Human reason and human consideration were never more conspicuously displayed in a large matter than by the Supreme Court in the decrees it has issued in these two cases. Dissolution is not ordered to be accomplished in a harsh and brutal manner. Time is allowed, and the court points out the controlling condition by which the virtue and the success of a reorganizing method may be tested. Notably in the Tobacco case does the court show this consideration, this desire to avoid procedures which "might inflict injury upon the public." It instructs the court below that it shall hear the offenders, as it is reasonable that they should be heard, in respect to the plan of reorganization, and the object sought is clearly pointed out. It is to determine "upon some plan or method of dissolving the combination and of recreating out of the elements now composing it a new condition, which shall be honestly in harmony with and not repugnant to the law." Justice HARLAN, who cannot reconcile himself to the court's reasonable interpretation of the law, which is unmistakably the way in which Congress intended that it should be interpreted, would not so temper justice with mercy, not to the Tobacco Company, but to the public. Apparently, he would shatter the great corporation at once, and trade, business, and the public interest might look out for themselves. Fortunately, eight members of the court against his sole dissenting voice accept the light of reason as their guide. Under the terms of the mandate the court below must diligently seek out a plan not merely for dissolving the combination but for recreating a new condition which will permit the tobacco business to be carried on in conformity with the law. Any trust-hater who would ask more than that would set himself down as a being so unreasonable that his opinions should have no weight.

There are some 1,200 "holding companies" or combinations in the country, and the capital they represent exceeds $10,000,000,000. Some of them, no doubt, have been formed and are carrying on business in violation of the statute. For their guidance in bringing themselves within the terms of the law the plan to be worked out by the Circuit Court will be valuable, it ought to be sufficient. Now that the court has made the plain distinction between restraint of competition and restraint of trade, the former being innocent and permissible unless it result in restraint of trade, which can never be innocent or permissible, we presume the distinguished counsel of these "combinations" will be able to advise their managers how to put their houses in order. The work cannot begin too soon. Even in advance of the determination of the Circuit Court, methods that are manifestly unlawful can be abandoned. The language of the two opinions ought to enable any intelligent lawyer or corporation manager to determine for himself what in his own case are unlawful practices. When conditions that conform to the law have been universally established, disturbing anxieties will disappear.

The short way, the true way, is for the business men of the country to put Mr. WICKERSHAM out of business. We do not mean by that that they must put an end to his highly valuable activities. We mean that they should take such action that, in future, he will have no more need to concern himself about the great business affairs of the country than he will have to concern himself about the production of opera, the teaching of algebra, or domestic cooking. When business obeys the law Mr. WICKERSHAM will let business alone. Of course it is disturbing when the Government must be continually meddling with business, but if business obeys the law the Government will keep its hands off. If the gentlemen of the trusts persist in disobeying the law, they must reckon with the Government and with Mr. WICKERSHAM.

TAP TEN MILE RIVER.

The idea of Commissioner THOMPSON is that the short supply of Croton water will be adequate if the people will use it sparingly. What is his knowledge of the general idea of using water sparingly? The danger of a water famine has been impressed on the community. Is it true that many dwellers in flats and tenements fill their bathtubs, washbowls, and stationary washtubs to the brim every night fearing there may be no water the next day, and then in the morning, finding that the water still runs, let all their stored supply run to waste? We have information to that effect.

Chairman NICOLL of the Ashokan Dam Commission considers the situation very grave, and fears that unless there are heavy rains before Sept. 1 there will be no water for Manhattan and the Bronx. He urges a series of free lectures, illustrated with stereopticon views, to educate the people to the necessity of saving water. A better plan would be to tap Ten Mile River for a temporary supply of water immediately. The Governor, the Legislature, if necessary, should be called upon to help the city in this emergency.

THE ALBANY POST ROAD.

Assembly bill No. 22 is what is popularly known as a "grab." It is entitled "An act to amend the Highway law in relation to the laying of railroad tracks upon the Albany Post Road within the County of Westchester." It has passed the Assembly and is now in the keeping of the Committee on Internal Affairs of the State Senate. We trust that this committee will keep the bill until adjournment.

Somebody tried to get this bill through the Legislature last year and failed. The historic Albany Post Road is much traveled; it is the main highway for automobiles and carriages from this city westward by way of Albany. It is virtually a parkway for many miles of its extent. The placing of trolley tracks upon this thoroughfare is not only needless and uncalled for, it would result in imperiling the lives of passengers in cars and of the occupants of motor vehicles. The road is dedicated to vehicular traffic. The "grab" bill would repeal the law that forbids its use for other purposes.

If the County of Westchester needs trolley accommodations through the territory traversed by the Albany Post Road the railroad company is at liberty to buy a right of way through private property, as is the legal custom, adapted to the needs of public utilities everywhere in this country. The highway to Albany belongs to the public; it is used by the public more than any other highway; it should not be subject to encroachment.

THE VICTORIA MEMORIAL.

It seems that London has another disappointing public monument. The well-intentioned Albert Memorial, which, seen from a distance, always reminds Americans of a huge soda water fountain; the Achilles-Wellington in Hyde Park, the Leicester Square Shakespeare, and the various statues on the Victoria Embankment are bad enough afflictions as examples of national art in the foremost city of the world. Of course New York can match them all, and so, for that matter, can Washington. But London had hopes of the Victoria Memorial. The plaza in front of Buckingham Palace was always a barren looking spot. Something was needed there and the Victoria Memorial was a long time building. Unveiled now, it seems an "inharmonious mass." Many of the details are admirable, of course, as in the Albert Memorial, but the general effect is as uninspiring in the one case as in the other.

It might be as well for all Anglo-Saxon communities to give up the idea of trying to perpetuate fame with public statues. It seems that in nine cases out of ten they are deplorable failures. The Cromwell at St. Stephen's the Charles I. in Trafalgar Square, and a few other London statues serve to impress upon the public mind ideas of form and strength in repose, but most of them, if they exert any influence at all on the artistic taste of the multitude, serve to mislead. We may say the same thing of such public monuments in New York as the Verdi in Sherman Square. The Victoria Memorial, however, has cost the nation a vast sum of money, and, with commendable British patience and fortitude, the nation will make the best of it.

RECONSTRUCTION IN MEXICO.

The men who have undertaken to reorganize the system of government in Mexico, to revive the Constitution—men who represent the convictions of 90 per cent. of their fellow-citizens under that Constitution—will need time, and it is not well to subject them to hostile criticism at the outset. Discontent which has been growing in Mexico for ten years or more, the years of the old age of DIAZ and the strengthening of the group of crafty politicians who surrounded him, expressed itself in a widespread revolution which overturned the Government. Anarchy has not followed, as many persons thought it would follow, the disruption of the Diaz Government.

On the contrary, Mr. DE LA BARRA, now the provisional executive, has exhibited admirable firmness and directness in his management of public affairs. There will be many rumors of conspiracy, of the imminence of counter revolutions, of the dissatisfaction of various leaders of the insurrection, of efforts on the part of deposed public officers to regain power. They should not affect the world's judgment of the wisdom and strength of the provisional Government so long as Mr. DE LA BARRA and his advisers, with the help of Mr. MADERO, continue the work of reconstruction and pacification successfully.

It is promised that in less than a month the lines of the National railways will all be in working order. Business should soon be restored to normal conditions. The difficulties to be encountered in the institution of practically new electoral methods are obvious, and there is likely to be some turmoil at the time of the general elections in the Autumn. But the outlook for Mexico is bright and there is no excuse for exaggerating the problems which confront the de la Barra Ministry. Of course there are many Mexicans who want more in the way of political honor than they are likely to get, but a serious effort is making to secure majority rule, and thus far the retiring public officers, as well as MADERO, OROZCO and DE LA BARRA, have set a good example for sincere patriots to follow.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Planning a Social Experiment.

Among the bills now before the Legislature and deserving of more attention and consideration than they have yet received from the public, is one so amending our city charter as to provide the means and machinery for enabling widowed or deserted mothers to keep their children together and give them personal care instead of sending them to asylums of one kind or another.

The bill creates a Board of Trustees of Home Assistance, the members to be appointed by the Mayor from lists of nominees supplied to him by the six best-known charitable organizations, and the Trustees are expected to determine in what cases and to what extent public funds shall be used in freeing these mothers from the necessity to do outside work so prolonged and so severe that they have neither the time nor the energy properly to guard and control their offspring.

Underlying the bill, of course, are the assumptions that motherhood is a service to the State, worthy of recognition as such and of money recompense when necessary; that as a mere matter of economy the State can better afford to give its future citizens a mother's care and the influences of family life than to let them run wild in the streets while she earns a scanty wage to support them and herself; and that it is no less expedient than desirable to subject the least possible number of children to the sort of training and education given in "institutions," where all individuality and initiative are inevitably crushed out of them.

The accuracy of these assumptions is generally admitted by people who have given them any thought, but to act on them is another matter on account of the practical difficulties that lie in the way of changing old habits for new. In this country, curiously enough, we have shown a greater fear of trying social experiments than do the inhabitants of many older nations, and the first thought that arises here in regard to this Board of Home Assistance is how to prevent abusive resort to the proposed aid. That apprehension, however, ignores the fact that under the present system, too, there are many and very dreadful abuses, and that between the possibility of small evils and the certainty of large ones a choice need not be long delayed. For a time the expense involved in the new plan will be added to those already imposed upon taxpayers, but if the plan works—and it has worked more or less well in several countries already—it will be a diversion of funds rather than an increase of expenditure, and success would mean decrease of cost.

A Hunt for an Excuse.

It is rather discouraging, in view of certain recent events, to learn that Gov. DIX has already so far yielded to the pressure exerted by place-hungry politicians as to order an "investigation" of the way in which Dr. A. H. DOTY has performed his duties as Health Officer of this port.

The hope of those prompting this inquiry can only be to find—or manufacture—some colorable excuse for taking Dr. DOTY's very comfortable salary away from him and giving it to somebody else as a reward for party services. It has not been the custom to "investigate" officials on whom no shadow of suspicion rests, and against whom no charge either of negligence or inefficiency has ever been made. As it happens, everybody with any knowledge of Dr. DOTY's work enthusiastically advocates his retention of the position he now holds.

The members of the medical profession are unstinted in their praise of his abilities as a doctor and sanitarian, and point to the uninterrupted success of the measures taken by him to protect the port from infection. On the other hand, the importers and exporters of the city, and all who have to do with its water-borne commerce of passengers and freight, agree that he never makes unnecessary trouble for them, and that while implacably strict, he is at the same time reasonable and as considerate of private interests as the protection of public interests permits.

Of course, Dr. DOTY has nothing to fear from an honest investigation, fairly conducted by competent men, but New York City and the country at large have good reason to be apprehensive of one the only call for which has come from sources so suspect. The demand for Dr. DOTY's reappointment is of an origin altogether different; it is based on enlightened appreciation of the services he has rendered and is still able to render with steadily growing skill. To displace this faithful and brilliantly efficient guardian of the Nation's most important gateway would be at once a calamity and a crime, and the fact that he has held the position so long is for everybody except a reckless spoilsman the best of reasons why he should continue to hold it.

Whatever Else, Not "Trivial."

Mayor GAYNOR's speech to the promoted and newly appointed policemen would have been considerably more impressive had he not in the course of it revealed a startling lack of a kind of knowledge which nowadays nearly everybody is expected to possess. For however wise he may be in law and politics, it was not wisdom when he scolded his latest-choice-but-one for Police Commissioner for rejecting applicants for positions on the force because of such "trivial" physical defects as "flat foot" and "a murmuring heart."

As a matter of fact, these defects are not trivial at all. On the contrary, both are, or may be, perfectly adequate reasons for rejecting a would-be policeman, since either of them may make him incompetent for the performance of his duties. To be sure, all hearts do murmur more or less, but while some murmurs are physiologic, others are pathologic, and several of the latter sort mean to the practiced diagnostician that the heart from which they are heard is likely to stop working, suddenly and permanently, if circumstances compel its owner to exert himself vigorously.

And it really isn't well to have on the police force many men, or even a few, who will probably drop dead if occasion arises for them to chase a thief or fight a murderer. As for "flat foot," while that is a less serious malady for its victim, in its graver forms it is highly incapacitating. Even the milder cases decrease agility and efficiency, and what doctors call the "reflexes" of a broken down or weakened arch of bones supporting the whole weight of the body are many and troublesome.

Ex-Commissioner CROPSEY may have erred in any one of a dozen ways in his refusals to appoint and promote, but he gave pretty good explanations for some of them—explanations considerably better than the reasons given by the Mayor for rejecting them. At any rate, "flat foot" and "heart murmurs" are not "trivial."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wonder how many, even of our French-American citizens, recall the fact that May 30, Memorial Day, is also the anniversary of the death of her who occupied the same position in relation to France in the Fifteenth century that Lincoln occupied toward the United States in the Nineteenth—Jeanne d'Arc, "The Savior of France." Some may think it strange to speak of the lives of these two as analogous, for they seem to have differed as much in circumstance as they did in environment and the time in which they lived. But both Abraham Lincoln and Jeanne d'Arc are perfect examples of the right man (or woman,) coming at just the right time, to fit the need of the time—God sent. Both had to lead a great war, and both hated war and bloodshed. Both tried to secure peace and gain their ends without the awful consequences of war; and both, when they saw that this was impossible, went on inexorably—"with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in," and "the men-at-arms will fight, and God will give the victory." Both, when their task was accomplished—accomplished in heaven's sight, not in men's— were cut off, martyred, in the fullness of their life. There are many more analogies, if one seeks them. It is worth while.

Sulphured Holes in Citrus Trees.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As anything of value in the care and preservation of trees is of interest to me, my eye was quickly caught by "L. W. S.'s" advice to use sulphur in an auger hole. I hardly think it would destroy worms and bugs, but Dr. Robert T. Morris is decidedly wrong in stating that the sap would not take up the medicament, and that fungus parasites would enter the holes. Sulphur is extensively used by citrus growers for the cure of foot rot, (mal-de-goma,) a parasitic disease. No parasite will enter the auger hole while sulphur is there. Regarding the assimilation by the sap of a medicament placed in a hole, Dr. Morris errs again. A very common citrus disease is dieback. The simplest way (the best here) is to raise the bark near the base of the tree and insert a small piece of bluestone, (sulphate of copper.) This will corect the poison in the sap, and the tree will put on a new growth. A slower way is to pulverize the bluestone (one-quarter pound to a pound) and scatter around the tree. The moisture will carry it to the roots, and the tree will not be scarred as by the first method.

Foreign Papers and Water Waste.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Citizen" expresses to you a doubt whether the foreign newspapers of this city are informing their readers about the threatened water shortage. Being a constant reader of the Yiddish and German dailies, I can state that not a single day passes without their treating that subject editorially and at large. They have fully acquainted their readers with the situation from the very beginning, warning and urging them to economize in their use of water.

New York, May 29, 1911. SOL. FINE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A simple way to help the situation might be the distribution of rules concerning water waste printed in different languages, as are the ash-removal notices, and placed prominently in tenement hallways, and other buildings where owners and users may be reached.

A Warning Unheeded.

I have within three months sent letters to daily newspapers for publication in regard to human and animal life that would be jeopardied should a fire break out in that lumberyard at Manhattan Avenue and 115th Street, in connection with which there is a gasoline station which I understand stores 5,000 gallons of gasoline. Even after the Rosalind Apartment burned and two human lives were sacrificed, I wrote to Commissioner Fosdick, but my letter was ignored.

No doubt you are aware that that lumberyard caught fire and burned out on Wednesday last at 2 A. M. The people in the neighborhood were terror stricken, not so much on account of the fire, which was bad enough, as of the fact that the gasoline tank blew up.

Centre Doors "For Exit Only."

If all the centre doors of the Subway cars were marked "For Exit Only," and the end doors kept for entrance only, a great deal of the confusion and delay, not to speak of accidents would be reduced. The centre doors never were intended for entrance as they cannot be seen by the guard when attending to the end doors.

SUFFRAGE FIGHT IN ENGLAND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the possible renewal of so-called militant action by the English suffragettes, I ask you to be courteous enough to give space to an account of the suffrage movement as it stands in England at the present moment.

The Woman Suffrage bill has just passed its second reading in the House of Commons by a majority of 167—the actual vote counting 255 in favor to 88 opposed, and the Government has been asked by a deputation of the Parliamentary supporters of the bill to give the facilities necessary to enable Parliament to proceed with the bill through all its stages.

This would simply mean that the Prime Minister would be true to his word of last November, when he promised that the Government would give facilities for "effectively proceeding" with the bill in this Parliament. To insure effective procedure for a bill now means that it must be carried through its stages during the first or second sessions, for while the new Parliament bill "enables the House of Commons to drive through into law, in spite of any opposition offered by the Lords, all bills passed in the first and second sessions of a Parliament, it permits the House of Lords to delay the enactment of bills introduced in the third and fourth sessions until after a further general election."

And though it cannot be positively known that the Lords would be less friendly to the Woman Suffrage bill than the House of Commons, still the members who supported it as well as the suffragettes wish to run no unnecessary risks. They demand for their bill the same protection from the Lord's possible veto that the Government will secure for the two great Home Rule bills, the Welsh disestablishment bill and the reversal of the Osborne Judgment, which are to have right of way during the second session.

The business is light this session. There is plenty of time to consider the Suffrage bill; next year, with the four bills just named to deal with, other questions might be pushed aside with plausible reason. Mr. George Touche, M. P., said in a speech at Coxton Hall the other day:

"The Government can easily give facilities this year if they are sincere about their pledge, but the friends of the cause must let it be seen that they will stand no trifling."

The suffragettes will stand no trifling. They justly consider that if Mr. Asquith denies facilities for their bill this session he is again treating their cause with trickery and dishonor, and they will make an immediate protest by proceeding in a deputation to Westminster. If Mr. Asquith refuses to receive the deputation and if the police are again encouraged by the Government to treat the members of the deputation with the brutality of last November the same scenes will be re-enacted—to the shame of England and the Liberal Government

* * * When, when did land or nation
See without persecution Freedom born?
When did the many ever find salvation,
Till some had known the spitting and the scorn?
No Cause was ever won but first was mocked:
No Faith taught hearts to dare but first was hated:
No gate stands wide, but at one time stood locked:

THE CITY OF HOMES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am looking at the two maps, one just recently given out by the Interborough at their present Subway stations, the other given out by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit representatives at the recent meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. The Interborough seems to want the city to spend its money with theirs in increasing the subways practically in the now congested parts of the city, touching Brooklyn and Queens very lightly. The Interborough, however, provides quite an elaborate plan for taking in the outlying sections of Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond, but, mark you, it does not intend to put one dollar of its money into the building of any of these extensions. These must be built entirely with the city's money and then turned over to the Interborough to operate.

This is a delusion and snare, for if the city spends its present available money for subways in the congested part, when will it have the money to build all of these extension lines, or any of them? Real relief to the people does not come by carrying them more conveniently or quickly from one congested district to another, but by carrying them from the centre of the city to the various outlying districts where the beautiful homes can be had at small prices, and where his family can live healthy and happy, and yet to be privileged to meet them at night without numerous changing of cars and long time spent in the journey.

In this particular Brooklyn offers the greatest inducement. It has always been the city of homes. It always will be. It has the most magnificent shore front and seaside resorts in the world, where the common people can find pleasure and profit. It has magnificent parks, boulevards and drives, offering recreation and comfort to a woman with a baby-carriage, a boy with a bicycle, or a man with his automobile. It has an underlying soil of gravel and sand. The price of land is so low that any industrious mechanic can own his own home and have an additional lot for a garden spot with trees and flowers. Most of the houses are detached and semi-detached, and where they are built in rows they do not on an average cover more than 45 per cent. of the lot and are usually only two stories in height, always affording a good yard for children to play in and plenty of light and air. So great is the extent of this magnificent territory in Brooklyn that she can offer to the huddling crowded thousands of emaciated beings that can be found in tenements covering 85 per cent. of the lot, four and five families on a floor, five and six stories in height, both in Manhattan and Bronx, a home of beauty and health for less money than they are now paying. The only thing that stands in the way is the lack of transportation.

A look at the map shows that in Brooklyn and Queens, including the Coney Island routes, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit offers twelve extension lines, all to be built as one great system, with the city using the present money on hand, they providing the rest.

The Raucous Newsboys.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent who complains of newsboys and who expects Mayor Gaynor to regulate their noise should try to reform the boys himself. The Mayor has a good deal on his shoulders already.

Newspapers are sold here almost exclusively by young foreigners, whose pronunciation and whose voices are offensive. If your correspondent wants to help the boys, whose friend he claims to be, let him induce them to go to our evening schools, where American English is taught and singing lessons are given free of charge. After a few courses of each their cries may become more intelligible and their voices more agreeable.

When I hear males and females on the Paris boulevards offering Le Petit Journal, Le Figaro, Le Matin, &c., in excellent Parisian French, I enjoy the melody of their cries; here I feel like swearing at the "extras" myself.

POLICEMEN TO BE ALWAYS WITHIN CALL

CLOSER WATCH ON GANGS

Larger Patrolling Force at Night Also to be Provided—Men Approve the Changes.

One of Police Commissioner Waldo's next moves in shaping up the department in accordance with an elaborate plan of improvement he has outlined to Mayor Gaynor will be aimed to enable citizens to find a policeman when one is needed. It has often happened that those in need of help [illegible] of police assistance, and even then have failed to discover the man on post.

Commissioner Waldo has a plan for remedying this. [illegible] will be known as "fixed posts" in many parts of the city.

In a general way the plan is to have a policeman on duty at the intersections of certain streets which are of importance from a police viewpoint. The men on duty would always be within hailing distance of a person at the corner, although he would patrol each of the four blocks for one-half their length, the policeman on post at the next intersecting streets meeting him there. If the plan is put in operation throughout the city it would require more men than the present Police Department appropriations could provide. That will not be attempted.

There are several districts, downtown and uptown in Manhattan, in Brooklyn and in some of the outlying residential sections, where gangs of rowdies congregate at the corners, annoy pedestrians, and rob houses whenever they get a chance. When a fight starts, under the present conditions, a yell for help sometimes brings a policeman or two, but more frequently it does not. By the time the patrolman usually gets there the fight is over and the ruffians have gone. Under the new plan a policeman at one of the "fixed posts" would be on hand to quell the disturbance. Moreover, residents of the locality in which the trouble started would know just where to find the policeman.

It is believed that Commissioner Waldo's appointment of 86 new men to the force on Monday will be followed shortly by the appointment of [illegible] for in order to work out the plan on a small scale [illegible] department [illegible].

Directly in line with the Commissioner's plan for improving the efficiency of the patrolling force is his idea to change the platoon system in such a way that a greater number of patrolmen will be on duty at night, and a greater number on reserve duty at night, than at present. Commissioner Waldo says experience has shown him that the greater number of crimes are committed at night, and of [illegible] in the daylight hours. The Commissioner says that there now is a larger force of night men imperative to prevent robberies and other crimes [illegible] their being committed [illegible] to handle the trouble gangs, who confine most of their operations to the night hours. For this reason, he says, calls for reserves are far greater during the night hours.

In mapping out his three-platoon system the Commissioner is providing for an arrangement which will permit of having more policemen on duty after 6 P. M. and more reserves. Heretofore there has been for many years, in general use a system which would give the uniformed force eight hours of patrol duty, eight hours of reserve duty, and eight hours off. It is for a plan for a large night force that policemen have been clamoring for years, but which was not approved by Mr. Waldo's predecessors, principally on the ground that the department would not work properly.

It is to remedy this one possible defect that Commissioner Waldo is working on the "third platoon" plan. He hopes to put either plan into effect, however, without first sounding the men in the department to make sure of their approval.

Commissioner Waldo has adopted a policy, since taking office, that is distinctly at variance with the policies of his predecessors. It is to make such changes as are beneficial to the rank and file of the Police Department, providing the changes tend to increase, rather than to weaken, the efficiency of the force. The new Commissioner believes that the best work can be obtained from the men if they realize that their chief is in sympathy with them and is ready to make them comfortable and secure in the knowledge that good work will be rewarded. Commissioner Waldo has already "made himself solid" with the men in the department by his [illegible] of several old-timers at Headquarters.

"He has done more in a better [illegible] than any other Police Commissioner we have ever had," said one of the [illegible] at Headquarters. "The men of the force will work their heads off for Commissioner Waldo if there is need for it."

In the Fire Department Commissioner Waldo found that kindness to his men tempered with a degree of severity in dealing with those who deserve punishment, tended to increase efficiency. Even before he was appointed Fire Commissioner, it is said, he learned that lesson while he was in charge of the Aqueduct police of the Board of Water Supply.

There was a report at Headquarters yesterday that Commissioner Waldo would put Inspector George McClusky in charge of Inspectors to succeed Chief Inspector Max Schmittberger. This could not be verified as the Commissioner was away from Headquarters all day. [illegible] spread the report said that McClusky's promotion would be agreeable to Mayor Gaynor. McClusky, who is in charge of the Traffic and Bridge Squads, will probably continue to make his walks across Brooklyn Bridge.

The appointment of Arthur O'Keeffe as First Deputy Commissioner to succeed Clement J. Driscoll, who resigned on Monday, is expected to be announced to-day.

A Young Man Needs Aid.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Charity Organization Society appeals for $50 to provide an artificial leg for a young man of 34. He is now using a wooden leg which he made himself. It does not fit well, and he is unable to work. He has a wife and child and his aged parents are partially dependent upon him for support.

Contributions may be addressed to the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be acknowledged.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions in response to former appeals in THE NEW YORK TIMES: "S.," $4; "F. K.," $1; "M. A. T.," $3; "Architect," $5; "W.," $10; Henry B. WORK HORSE PARADE LARGER THAN EVER

1,900 Animals in Line to Contest for Prizes Given by the Women's League.

APPLAUSE FOR FIRE STEEDS

The fifth annual Work Horse Parade, given under the auspices of the New York Women's League for Animals, was held yesterday under more satisfactory conditions than ever before, with more horses, better horses, more prizes, perfect weather, and a shorter time for the parade.

There were 1,900 horses in line yesterday, to 1,500 the year before, and the time of passing the grand stand was at least an hour less. In other years Mrs. James Speyer, President of the league, and her assistants and guests have been on the reviewing stand at the Worth Monument, Madison Square, from 10 A. M. until nearly 4 P. M. Yesterday the parade had passed before 2 o'clock.

This was arranged by having the ribbons awarded where the horses were judged, on the side streets in the vicinity of Washington Arch, from which the procession started. The horses then wore their decorations throughout the parade, and at the grand stand the envelopes containing the money prizes for the men, the brass wheel harness decorations for the blue ribbon winners, and the Speyer silver medals were handed out with little delay.

There was apparently only one disgruntled driver in the whole parade yesterday. He was No. 621, Frank Murry, who drove Ned and Dan, two handsome horses owned by the Columbia Shade Cloth Company. The team received only the white ribbon for "Highly Commended." The money awards which go with the ribbons are $5 for the blue ribbon driver, $3 for the red, $2.50 for the yellow, and $1 for the white. When Driver Murry found that he had only a white ribbon he was wroth. It may have been the heat, for the sun beat down with uncompromising rays upon the paraders, but, whatever it was, it made a deep dent in his temper. He took his envelope when it was handed to him in front of the flag-draped reviewers' part of the stand and drove off, but before he had passed that part of the stand given over to the ordinary visitors, he pulled up his horse, and threw down his envelope in wrath.

"Pick up your envelope," cried some one in the crowd; "that's money for you."

"I don't want it," cried Murry, wrathily; "here's a horse that has been working for eleven years, and all he gets is 'highly commended'!"

A band and a squad of mounted men led the parade, the mounted squad from the Police Department being in as seekers for prizes as well. The mounted men lined up in front of the reviewing stand and went through manoeuvres before the blue ribbon men received their prizes, silver medals presented by Mrs. Speyer. There were four classes of these men, and the winners were Patrolman John Smith, who also won last year; Sergeant John Schofield, a last year's winner; Sergeants William Cavanagh, Dominick Hooks, and William Irving, and Patrolmen Charles Langfield, Lowery Mead, John McManus, George Darrow, Edward Plaage, and Philip McCahill. In the Fire Department classes Engines 16 and 7 took blue ribbons and Speyer silver medals, and Hose Wagons 16 and 30 took blues and medals from Mrs. Speyer. Water Tower 50, with a fine pair of iron grays, took a blue ribbon amid a lot of cheering from the crowd in the stands and the big mass of people on the Madison Square side of the avenue. Other city departments showing were Bellevue and the Allied Hospitals, the Street Cleaning, Health, Park Department and Corrections Department.

The man who received the greatest amount of applause in the parade was Robert Braddick of the Veteran Driver Class. He has been driving for 55 years, and for the American Hard Rubber Company for 31 years. He has driven the horse he now has, Sargent, for 10 years. He took first prize, as he did last year, and got a money award of $25. Second prize, $20, went to Frank Francis of the Wright Lumber Company, and third to George Blakeley of the Denison Manufacturing Company. Francis has been driving 25 years, and Blakeley 26 years. Longest service with present employer and length of service of horse were taken into consideration together with harness and condition of horse.

The nearest the judges could agree as to the finest horse in the parade was Jim, a twelve-year-old dry goods truck horse who has been in every parade. He is a dark seal brown. He was second the first year and has won first prize every time since, including yesterday. He is owned by J. Goldberg's Sons. Perhaps the handsomest animal from the point of view of looks alone was Prince, a sorrel with a whitish-brown mane and tail. He was a blue ribbon winner. He is 15 years old and is owned by J. E. Ferris. He is a dry goods truck horse, not very heavy, but very strong and clean limbed.

The oldest horses that took blue ribbons yesterday were Baby and Pony, 26 and 25 years old, driven by John J. Timas for James H. Dykeman, and Jack, driven by Joseph Brown, 25 years old and also a blue ribbon winner. Among the entries Charley, driven by Henry Rose, and Billy, driven by John Coleman, were each 36 years old.

One of the yellow ribbon winners who attracted attention was Tom, driven by Richard Maudsley for James Foster. On his back with his four feet placed firmly to hold on was a small Irish terrier who barked vigorously as he passed the reviewing stand.

The small horses aroused interest in the first part of the parade. They were Shetlands, one team of the little fellows drawing a cart, two single ponies with carts, and one little fellow no larger than a dog who was led. He belonged to the Pony Circus and received a special prize, as did the other little horses.

The league had invited owners of "hero dogs" to contest this year, and three dogs were in line. Their pictures were taken with Mrs. Speyer and the ladies with her. Bum, the Twelfth Precinct police dog, wore his dress-up collar, a broad leather band set with police buttons and tied with a big red, white, and blue bow to which was added his blue ribbon. Bum has many deeds of heroism to his credit. An ambulance came tearing down Fifth Avenue yesterday after he had received his ribbon and had retired to the shade on the other side of the street to rest, and notwithstanding the heat he started off on a gallop after it to give his assistance.

Mahout, the second dog, is a fox terrier, owned by Robert Shackleton of Meadow Brook. Mahout saved the lives of his owners by rousing them when the house was on fire. Trixie, a spaniel, belonging to James Harcourt of 1,848 Coney Island Avenue, awakened the first day of last February, smelled smoke, and roused the family just in time.

Blinders have been discouraged by the league, and there were fewer of these in the parade yesterday than in years previous, and also fewer dangling head ornaments which might interfere with a horse's vision, or annoy it. All horses with docked tails, sick, lame, thin, galled, out of condition or unfit for work were excluded from the procession.

General B, a six-year-old brown horse, who won a first prize for dry goods truck horses, was a sensation of the afternoon through wearing a bitless bridle, invented by Thomas F. McCarthy, a member of the league and one of the judges yesterday. There is no bit, the horse taking his direction from a tightening of the reins on the nose and under each ear. General B has run away three times under the old-fashioned bit, but wore the new bit yesterday with evident relief and was not a bit scared by music, cheers, or the crowds. The crowd broke through the police lines to look at it, and old-time drivers asked scores of questions about it. Great hopes are entertained for it in relieving horses from the brutal old-time bit and curb.

Among those on the stand with Mrs. Speyer were Mrs. C. C. Cuyler, Mrs. B. K. Cutter, Miss Elsie de Wolfe, Dr. Darlington, Mrs. Gordon Knox Bell, First Vice President of the league; Mrs. Charles R. Flint, Mrs. Grenville Barker, Mrs. Cadwalader Jones, Miss Beatrix Jones, Mrs. Clifford B. Harmon, Miss Elsie Janis, Mrs. Charles E. Procter, Mrs. Parker, Miss Daisie Parker, Miss Maria de Barril, Miss Emma Frohman, Mrs. Foxhall Keene, John D. Crimmins, Mrs. Archer M. Huntington, Street Commissioner Edwards, Mrs. Frank Steinhardt, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Wagstaff, Col. Wagstaff, and Mrs. Hans Winterfeldt.

AUTO ENDS POLICE DOG.

Jim, the police dog of Central Park, was killed yesterday morning by an automobile. Jim, a fox terrier, had been attached to the Arsenal Station for four years or more. At odd moments he performed tricks with Hattie, the elephant, in the Central Park Zoo.

Jim strayed off the reservation yesterday morning. He was scampering along Sixty-fifth Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, when an automobile struck him and broke his back. One in the crowd which ran to Jim's assistance noticed that his collar was studded with police buttons. They notified the Arsenal police, and Capt. Carson and Policeman Mulvey hastened out. Tenderly they lifted Jim and carried him to the menagerie, where Head Keeper Bill Snyder was consulted. Then they carried Jim to a lonely place in the Park and shot him, much to the sorrow of the whole Arsenal staff.

Jim was one of the most intelligent dogs in town. During the recent police parade he seemed to feel his importance for a while, helping the policemen keep back the crowds along Fifth Avenue. But when the other police dogs came along, marching with the men, Jim seemed to be humiliated. The men of the Arsenal Station said Jim seemed to realize that the dogs which had been regularly assigned to march in the parade had the best of him. He wore a hangdog look the rest of the day.

HURT BY AUTO THAT FLED.

But Its Number, Telephoned Ahead, Results in Arrest at St. George Ferry.

John J. Dixon and A. C. Perry, who live at 234 Eighth Avenue, Jersey City, were returning from a day's walking trip through Richmond Road, near St. George, S. I., last evening. Richmond Road is very narrow and has no sidewalk. When Dixon saw an automobile coming toward him down the hill he stepped to one side and was struck by another car, which was going up the hill behind him.

Dixon was knocked down and his right leg was broken. The car which had hit him went on at full speed. Dixon was carried to the Smith Infirmary in a passing automobile. Witnesses had caught the number of the car that struck Dixon and word was telephoned to the St. George Ferry to have the car stopped. When an automobile, belonging to Charles Mazio of 219 Reid Avenue, Brooklyn, reached the ferry with Mazio and four other men in it. Mazio was arrested and locked up in the Stapleton Station on a charge of having run over Dixon. The number of his car was said to correspond with the number caught by witnesses to the accident. Mazio denied the charge.

FINED FOR HIS AUTO SMASH.

Constable Arrested Irate New York Man After His Car Had Been Run Into.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 30.—L. H. Gutterman of New York, was in an automobile wreck here to-day which was followed by an argument with S. O. Ealy, whose car ran into him, and then he was fined, $17.50 by a Pleasantville Justice of the Peace.

As Gutterman swung into the Shore Road from Washington Avenue and Ealy was entering from the opposite direction, their cars came together in a head-on collision. The occupants of the cars were pitched out, but none was seriously hurt.

Gutterman wanted to know who would pay for the damage to his car. They were having warm words when both were arrested by the town contable and taken before a Justice of the Peace, who fined each of them equally.

TROLLEY AND AUTO CRASH.

Narrow Escape of Five Port Jervis Residents Near Middletown.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 30.—In a collision between an automobile and a trolley car in this city to-day a party of prominent Port Jervis residents had a narrow escape from death. E. F. Mapes, Mr. and Mrs. John Clancy, Mrs. E. T. Nolan, and Eugene Slater were in the automobile, which was going up North Street Hill when a trolley car was coming down.

The chauffeur tried to swing out of the tracks and the car skidded and crashed into the trolley car. The running board of the trolley mounted the automobile but did not strike any of the occupants, who leaped out.

The automobile was wrecked and the trolley car had to be jacked up before it could be released.

TO ENLARGE NAVAL ACADEMY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 30.—Congress will be asked to appropriate something like half a million dollars toward the enlargement of the Naval Academy when the Board of Visitors, whose presence adds an official touch to each "June week" at the institution, makes its report to the law makers of the country.

The proposed appropriation will go to the purchase of several city blocks within Annapolis which now form a rectangular break in the shoreward side of the Government reservation here.

The final standings of the seven star members of the graduating class at the Naval Academy, with their four years' ratings on all studies, was announced today as follows: F. S. Hatch, New Hampshire, 705.16; H. B. Bouson, South Carolina, 697.81; W. W. Webster, North Dakota, 691.98; B. S. Bullard, Wisconsin, 691.05; O. O. Hagen, Minnesota, 684.63; R. M. Griffin, Virginia, 683.29; R. H. Skelton, Wisconsin, 681.96.

Miss Thompson to Wed C. C. Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Thompson announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Mary Thompson, to Calvin C. Hill of Boston, Mass., at a dinner which they gave last night at their home, 217 West Seventy-first Street. Miss Thompson is an only daughter. No date has been set for the wedding.

MALLWYD NED IS SHOW CHAMPION

A. Albright, Jr.'s, English Setter Gets Highest Award at Brighton Beach—650 Entries.

SOCIETY SEES THE JUDGING

With the holiday throng in addition to the regular followers of canines the tenth annual bench show of the Long Island Kennel Club, which was held yesterday at the Brighton Beach racetrack, proved to be the greatest one-day exhibition in the East. Starting at early morning with twelve judging rings, 650 dogs, and 1,160 entries, the competition kept up continually until nightfall. Most every type of show dog was represented in the competition and every class more than met with the approval of the officials.

The judging rings were scattered all about under the old grand-stand, in front of the clubhouse and out in the open. Many of the entries were the property of prominent families of Long Island and Manhattan, and in consequence society was well represented despite the many counter attractions.

After the long programme of scheduled classes were decided, with practically all of the decisions of the judges satisfactory, the task of determining the best dog in its respective class either the king or queen of them all was approached. Special judges for these occasions were selected and much comment was aroused when their decision was given to Mallwyd Ned, an English setter belonging to A. Albright, Jr. The judges for the class were C. G. Hopton, G. Muss Arnolt and J. W. Lewis. Mr. Hopton was strongly in favor of the Airedale, Prince of York.

Pomeranians, although not as well represented as they might have been, occupied a prominent place and the outcome of the class was well met by the numerous onlookers, who were mostly women.

Mrs. William Caner Wiederseim scored the greatest victory of the day when, after capturing the honors in the class for bitches, with her Champion Afon Gem, who was a trifle off coat, was also victorious in receiving the honors for the best "Pom" in the show. Pomland Dainty Nigger, a cute puff ball of the jet black type, was considered a dangerous factor to Afon Gem when he won the class for dogs, but the judges lost little time in placing Mrs. Wiederseim's Champion in the first rank.

Howard Gould made a clean sweep in the class for Irish terriers, and in addition to capturing the honors for both sexes, went out with a brace and annexed the blue. Miss H. G. Parlett, who is one of the greatest exhibitors of English Toy Spaniels, occupied a prominent place in the division for that breed of dog, and after getting a winner for bitches with Rosemary Lady Calvert, entered her best dog, Champion Rosemary Rival, and took the ribbon for the best in the show. In the competition for the best spaniel, Miss Parlett's entry was victorious over the famous entry of Mrs. James Doig, Cleveden Tory.

All the larger types of dogs were given a deal of attention, most prominent being those of Mrs. Tyler Morse.

Among the prominent persons present were Miss Elise Ladew, Harvey S. Ladew, Miss Mary Henderson, W. S. Gurnee, Otto Fuchs, Udo M. Fleishman, Mrs. D. P. Foster, Dr. de Mund, Grant Notman, Alfred B. Maclay, Miss Maud Kennedy, Theodore Offerman, Dorothea van Hensen, Mrs. William Wiederseim, Mrs. Ralph C. Stewart, Kingsley Swan, Mrs. A. L. Reynolds, A. Albright, Raymond Belmont, Mrs. F. P. HELD FOR ILLEGAL MARRIAGE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 30.—Charles H. Roth of Yonkers, N. Y., and Miss Clara Riske, whom he is said to have married illegally, were arrested here shortly before midnight. The charge against them will not be determined by the City Attorney till Monday.

Complaint was made by the police at Roth's home of his elopement with Miss Riske, who is a cripple. He was found in a boarding house on Elm Street and admitted his identity. He says that he is a grocer and gave his age as 45 years. He says that he married Miss Riske last night. It is not yet certain whether he will be tried here or sent back to his home for trial. He admits having another wife.

Mrs. Charles Roth of 620 Valley Avenue, Yonkers, caused her husband's arrest. She complained to the police in Yonkers yesterday that her husband had left home the day before and that she had reason to believe he had been married to Miss Riske in New Haven.

Mrs. Roth told the police that the parents of Miss Riske told her of the wedding. The girl, a cripple who has to be pushed around in a wheel chair, was ill about three weeks ago and went to visit friends in Peekskill, thinking the change might benefit her.

For a time she wrote to her parents regularly, but when they failed to get a letter from her on Monday they went to Peekskill, only to learn that a short time before Roth had taken the girl away in an automobile, saying they were going to be married in New Haven. Miss Riske's friends did not know that Roth was married already, and offered no objection.

Miss Riske's parents, on their return to Yonkers, hurried to Mrs. Roth with the story which she repeated to the police, and word was sent to New Haven asking for Roth's arrest.

WOMAN DEAD IN THE YARD.

Couldn't Have Fallen from Above and Surgeon Believes She Was Struck Down.

The police of the East 104th Street Station are trying to determine how Miss Kate Nagle, who lived on the second floor of the tenement at 170 East 113th Street, met death in the rear yard of the tenement at 10:30 o'clock last night. The woman was alive when Frederick Wahlheim, the janitor, found her in the yard, but she was dead when Dr. Donnelly, whom Wahlheim summoned, arrived from the Harlem Hospital.

Wahlheim was closing the house for the night when he found the woman lying just outside the cellar stairs in her night clothes. He and Policeman Guick, whom he called, thought at first that she had fallen from the window of her flat. Guick climbed the dumbwaiter shaft and got into the flat, only to find that the rear windows were closed and locked.

Miss Nagle was known to have suffered with asthma, and tenants suggested that she had gone to the yard for air. The door of her flat was locked, however, and she did not have a key with her.

Dr. Donnelly could find only a bruise on her forehead over her right eye and said that she apparently had died of a fractured skull. Had she fallen from the roof, whither she might have gone for air, she would have been crushed. The surgeon told the police that he believed the woman had been struck on the head and killed. He did not believe her death was accidental, he said.

Miss Nagle was about 53 years old and was understood by fellow tenants to be worth $40,000 or $50,000 left to her by her parents.

RUNAWAY DASHES INTO BAND.

Five Musicians Hurt, One of Them Receiving a Fractured Skull.

The band which headed the parade of the Italian Brewers' Association had just turned into Second Avenue from Twelfth Street yesterday afternoon when a horse attached to the bakery wagon of Christopher Gross of 120 Second Avenue became frightened at the music and dashed into the musicians, injuring five.

Gross, who was driving, was thrown out. Neil McEven of 43 Vanderbilt Avetwo raids on gambling houses in the theain an automobile, kept his car beside the runaway, and at Twenty-third Street forced the horse to the pavement.

Only one of the five persons knocked down by the runaway was seriously injured. He was Joseph Addezzone, a 38-year-old musician of 410 East Thirteenth Street. He was taken to Bellevue with a fractured skull.

BEACH SQUATTERS ARRESTED

For the third successive year a realty company which owns lands at Rockaway Point, known as Neponset, caused the arrest yesterday of squatters there. Three men who were living in tents were arrested by Policeman Ryan of the Rockaway Beach Station. William M. Greve, President of the realty company, first asked the men to vacate the beach, and when they refused applied to the police for help.

The prisoners were Thomas Mooney of 187 Schaeffer Street, William Kern of 104 Elm Avenue, and Peter M. Wilson of 422 Bleecker Street, all of Brooklyn and Queens. Mooney and Wilson were bailed out.

Trouble with squatters has been a yearly occurrence since the company bought the land, and last year its title was fought by squatters in the United States Circuit Court in Brooklyn.

GREEN ROOM CLUB UPSET BY ELECTION

BY-LAWS NOT FOLLOWED

Successful Candidates Neglected to Have Names of Five Proposers on Ticket—George Cohan Prompter.

Because of a protest made at the annual election of officers of the Green Room Club, one of the principal theatrical clubs of the city, on Sunday, a special meeting of the Board of Governors will be held to-night to decide whether the election of the independent ticket will stand. There has not been so much excitement in the club in years and several of the candidates on the independent ticket threaten to resign from the club if a decision is not given in favor of their ticket.

The trouble developed when Frank Russell, formerly play-reader for Henry W. Savage, contested the election of the independent or pink ticket, which won by a narrow margin, on the ground that the ticket did not bear the names of five proposers, as provided by the by-laws, but only that of Frank B. Arnold, Chairman of the Nominating Committee. The clause of the constitution on which the protest is made reads:

> Any five members may nominate other candidates for the same office, but the names of all such candidates with the names of their said five proposers shall be posted upon the "Call Board" for ten days before the said election, and no person shall be eligible to office unless he has been nominated and posted as aforesaid.

Included in Mr. Russell's protest is the charge that different colored tickets, white and pink, were used this year, while at former elections tickets of only one color were allowed. This was done, it is said, so that a tally could be kept of the tickets, and thus it could be learned which way the members voted. Mr. Russell's protest, indorsed by a lawyer, will be laid before the Governors or so-called supers.

Two members of the Board of Supers, Franklin Bien and Walter Vincent, are on both tickets, while George M. Cohan is on both tickets as Prompter, Hollis E. Cooley as Call Boy, and Frank G. Stanley as Copyist. The successful or independent ticket consists of George M. Cohan, Prompter; Hollis E. Cooley, Call Boy; Henry B. Harris, Angel; Frank G. Stanley, Copyist; Board of Supers: Franklin Bien, Sidney Wilmer, Francis X. Hope, Martin Herman, Frank B. Arnold, Martin Cody, Chester De Vonde, George Stegner, John C. Boas, James Lackaye, and Walter Vincent. Trustees: For two years, Harry B. Thearle; for three years, Harry Harwood, James O'Neill, Herbert Corthell, Lignon Johnson and William A. Brady.

John C. Peebles was up for election as Angel on the regular ticket, and the following for the Board of Supers: Henry B. Harris, Franklin Bien, Sidney R. Ellis, George W. Lederer, Meyer S. Bentham, Milton Nobles, Charles H. Yale, Sargent Aborn, Philip Mindil, Thomas W. Dinkins, and Walter Vincent. These were the "regular" candidates for Trustees: Harry B. Thearle, William A. Brady, Lignon Johnson, George J. Cooke, William F. Courtleigh, and William H. Crane.

The independents were anxious to consult with George M. Cohan before taking any action, but Mr. Cohan is on tour with the Friars' Frolic, and Hollis E. Cooley, the present Prompter of the club, has sent out a call for a special meeting.

"I have called a meeting of the board for to-morrow night," said Mr. Cooley last night, "and the matter will be thrashed out then. The whole dispute is in the hands of the board, of course, and I don't know what action it will take."

Dingle to Dance in "Follies of 1911."

Thomas Dingle, whose eccentric dancing was one of the hits of the Friars Frolic at the New Amsterdam Theatre Sunday night, has been engaged by F. Ziegfeld, Jr., to appear in "The Follies of 1911" this Summer and in Anna Held's new play next season. Up to last Sunday night Mr. Dingle had never appeared before a Broadway audience, but had been seen in popular price vaudeville theatres only. Fanny Brice, who was with "The Follies of 1910" last season, has also been engaged by Mr. Ziegfeld for this year's production.

HIDDEN MARRIAGES REVEALED

Freeport and Flushing Couples Tell of Ceremonies Long After the Events.

A Freeport, L. I., couple and another in Flushing, L. I., suprised their parents yesterday by announcing that they had been married. The Freeport pair were far ahead of the other two for, while they kept their secret two years and a half, the Flushing man and wife revealed their secret in three months.

Mrs. John Searles of Bedell Street, Freeport, jokingly asked her daughter yesterday, when she intended to be married. The daughter, Charlotte M. Searles, went to her room, and returned with a local newspaper published in Union Course, L. I. From it she read to her mother a short account of how she and Ellsworth Mead Jennings, also of Freeport, had been married by the Rev. Charles S. Gray, pastor of the Shaw Avenue Methodist Church of Union Course, on Dec. 11, 1909. Mrs. Jennings explained to her mother that she and her present husband had gone to Union Course to visit friends, and while there they decided to be married and keep it secret until Jennings's income was sufficient to start housekeeping. This will now be done.

Miss Doris Kime of Linden Avenue, Flushing, and Harry J. Klein of 6 Leavitt Avenue, were married on Tuesday evening, Feb. 26, at the Chapel of the Incarnation, Manhattan. The Rev. Joseph Peck Robinson officiated. Yesterday they could keep their marriage a secret no longer. They planned an extended wedding trip, and when they were ready to go, told their parents about the wedding.

MR. GATES SAILED ASLEEP.

So His Son Charles Informed Waiting Reporters on Kronprinzessin Cecilie.

John W. Gates sailed for Europe yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, accompanied by his wife and son, Charles G. Gates. Just before the Kronprinzessin Cecilie sailed Charles G. Gates appeared on deck and told reporters his father was asleep in the cabin, as he had been up very late the previous night.

"What about the cut in steel prices by the trust and other companies?" the son was asked.

"That won't worry father," he replied.

"Will he go before the House Committee again?"

"He gave them about 150 pages of testimony," replied Mr. Gates, Jr., "and that ought to hold them for a while."

Obituary Notes.

Col. JAMES BRADY, commander of the First Pennsylvania Light Artillery throughout the civil war, died at the age of 87 years at Atlantic City on Monday.

A. H. ENGLEE, a telegraph operator in the employ of The Associated Press in this city, died, after a nervous breakdown, at Ocala, Fla., on Sunday.

ALFRED C. LEWERENZ, a civil engineer of the United States Navy, retired, died at Detroit, Mich., on Saturday, according to a message received at the Navy Department. He was 41 years old. Mr. Lewerenz entered the naval service in 1899, serving at the New York Navy Yard. He was retired in 1911 owing to disability incurred while in the line of duty.

JOHN H. O'ROURKE, head of the firm of John H. O'Rourke & Co., builders and contractors of Brooklyn, died on Saturday at his home, 337 Fifty-fifth Street. He was 60 years old. He had been engaged in the building business in South Brooklyn since 1874, and was active in Democratic politics. Mr. O'Rourke was Treasurer of the Brooklyn City Savings and Loan Association, a Director of the Borough Bank, and a Director of the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum. He leaves a wife, a son, and one daughter.

HOWARD T. FARNUM, senior member of the hat manufacturing firm of Farnum & Fairchild, at Bethel, Conn., died at his home in Danbury on Monday. He was 38 years old.

MILTON BRADLEY, widely known as a manufacturer of children's games and toys, died in Springfield, Mass., yesterday, at the age of 75 years. Mr. Bradley founded the firm bearing his name in 1864, and until a few years ago was its active head.

The Giants continue to bounce in and out of first place in the National League race like a rubber ball. Humiliating the Brooklyns twice yesterday on the Hilltop, New York again scaled the pennant heights and are galloping ahead in the exhilarating strife for the coveted streamer. The Cubs were twice spiked by the Pirates and that helped some to put McGraw's clan half a dozen pegs in the lead. The race this season is becoming the most exciting in years, and if the seesaw progresses in this palpitating manner, the annexation of the ribbon will not take place until after the final inning of the last game of the season next October.

Brooklyn raised no havoc yesterday. The morning game was won by the Giants 4 to 1, and the afternoon scramble resulted in a whitewash for the Dodgers by a score of 3 to 0. That the population of the island is more or less interested in the affairs on the plateau seems probable when you look over the gay holiday crowds which hurried breakfast and luncheon to subway to the Broadway hill. In the morning more than 8,000 saw the tussle, and in the afternoon another overflow gathering caused the management to leave disappointed people outside the gates. Nearly 25,000 stormed the stands in the afternoon, and if a few more had budged their way in the fences might have been pushed over.

The Dodgers in the afternoon game got but three hits off two New York pitchers. Arthur Raymond gave one in five innings and had them waving their bats hopelessly all that time. In the fifth inning some ice cream which Raymond had devoured for luncheon gave him an acute pain just southwest of the fourth rib and he had to hurry to the clubhouse for an ice plaster. They're good for a pain like that. The heat and the sweet strawberry sundae mixed badly and Bugs got a bit foggy in the upper story. It begins to look as if ice cream is another dish which Bugs will have to cut from his menu.

Red Ames tok up the flinging in the fifth and manifested the glad fact that the hoodoo is now in the hands of the undertaker. Ames allowed two hits wide apart, which were harmless. Nap Rucker started in with all the assurance in the world that he would make the Giants toe the mark. Napoleon did well until the fourth inning, when the day calm broke into a tempest.

Fletcher started the stanza by aeroplaning to Coulson. Snodgrass got a pass. Red Murray sent an eye-opening quiver up the crowd's spine with a slashing two-bagger to the right field crowd. Merkle bounded to Rucker, who tossed Snodgrass out at the platter. Murray and Merkle started to rip off a double steal. Tex Erwin, the Dodger catcher, made a lurid toss to second and Murray scored with Merkle safe at second. Bridwell then whizzed a liner to centre which sent Merkle home.

Rube Marquard held the Brooklyns at bay in the morning game and gave them only a single run. The score was 4 to 1. Marquard was very much at home on the hillock and he baffled the enemy from across the bridge with a versatile assortment of curves. Fred Merkle was the mightiest swinger of the bat and smashed both Scanlon and Bell with equal facility.

Brooklyn broke into the scoring game in the second inning. After Hummel fanned, Manager Bill Dahlen objected to Marquard's feet, in relation to their position on the rubber. Dahlen kicked so hard that he was chased from the landscape. Davidson singled and Coulson jammed a single to right field for three bases, scoring Davidson. The Giants got the run back immediately. Murray doubled to left field and went to third on Merkle's out. Bridwell carromed a grounder off the shins to Stark and the Dodger shortstop made such a bad throw to the plate that Murray scored.

New York went to the front in the third inning. Marquard singled and Devore walked. Fletcher dumped a bunt down and filled the bases. Bergen gathered a foul from Snodgrass. Stark muffed Murray's rocket and Marquard scored. A quick double ended the inning. The third run came in the fourth session. Merkle started with a single to left. Bridwell bunted and Zimmerman's throw, to cut Merkle down at second, was late, Stark dropping the ball to make him doubly safe. Devlin struck out, Wilson jammed a single to right, sending Merkle home.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

Spirited lawn tennis marked the opening of the Nassau and Queens County championships on the courts of the Great Neck Hills Country Club, at Great Neck, L. I., yesterday. Thomas Tuehy, Jr., of the Great Neck Club; M. Johnson of the Douglaston Country Club, and R. Holt of Jamaica won their places in the semi-final rounds of the singles.

Men's Singles—(First Round.)—A. R. Parsons defeated W. A. Powell, 6—0, 6—1; F. J. Mapp defeated P. J. Lawrence, 6—4, 1—6, 6—1; J. B. Richardson defeated A. Edwards, Jr., 6—4, 6—4; Thomas F. Tuehy, Jr., defeated W. A. Kissam, 6—1, 6—1; H. L. Watts defeated W. Wright, 6—1, 6—3; M. Johnson defeated C. C. Vaughan, 6—1, 2—6, 6—2; R. Holt defeated H. B. Wright, 6—4, 1—6, 8—6; P. Fcerster defeated R. M. Field, 6—4, 3—6, 6—2.

Second Round.—Thomas Tuehy, Jr., defeated J. B. Richardson, 6—1, 6—0; M. Johnson defeated H. L. Watt, 6—3, 6—0; R. Holt defeated P. Foerster, 7—5, 6—1.

Doubles—H. B. Wright and R. M. Field defeated H. L. Watts and W. A. Powell, 6—1, 6—3; F. J. Mapp and C. H. North defeated F. J. Magee and M. D. Dorland, 6—4, 6—3.

The Seventh Regiment defeated the team of West Point yesterday on the United States reservation courts overlooking the Hudson River by 5 matches to 1. The series of four singles and two doubles was the annual meeting of the regiment experts and the players of the Military Academy. The summary:

Singles.—Col. W. A. Bethel, West Point, defeated A. S. Cragin, Seventh Regiment, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1; King Smith, Seventh Regiment, defeated Col. L. C. Holt, West Point, 6—4, 6—3; R. T. Bryan, Seventh Regiment, defeated Lieut. E. C. McNeil, West Point, 6—4, 6—1; M. S. Clark, Seventh Regiment, defeated Lieut. H. E. Mitchell, West Point, 6—1, 6—3.

Doubles.—R. T. Bryan and M. S. Clark, Seventh Regiment, defeated Col. W. A. Bethel and Col. L. C. Holt, West Point, 6—1, 6—1; A. S. Cragin and King Smith, Seventh Regiment, defeated Lieut. E. C. McNeil and Lieut. H. E. Mitchell, West Point, 6—1, 6—3.

M. L. I. Galvao, the German expert, defeated William B. Cragin, Jr., the Long Island champion, 6—4, 7—9, 8—7, defaulted, and thereby won his place in the semi-final round of the Felipe Challenge Cup singles yesterday on the courts of the New York Lawn Tennis Club, 123d Street and Manhattan Avenue. The last set was played in the twilight, and at the end of the fifteenth game Cragin asked for a postponement. The umpire decided that the match be played to a finish, so that Cragin defaulted rather than continue. The summary:

Men's Singles.—Second Round—R. L. Baggs defeated H. H. Bassford, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3; H. S. Roberts defeated A. D. Hammett by default. Third Round—S. H. Voshell defeated Dr. W. Rosenbaum, 6—2, 6—2; W. M. Hall defeated W. C. Grant, 7—5, 3—6, 6—2; G. C. Shafer defeated L. Reimer, 6—1, 6—1; M. L. I. Galvao defeated W. L. Pate, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4; W. B. Cragin, Jr., defeated R. L. Baggs, 6—2, 6—0; H. S. Roberts defeated R. J. Sommers, 6—1, 6—3.

Fourth Round—M. L. I. Galvao defeated W. B. Cragin, Jr., 6—4, 7—9, 8—7, defaulted.

Manhattan Championship Men's Doubles.—First Round—L. E. Mahan and T. R. Pell defeated E. L. Blumenschein and partner by default; O. H. Hinck and Harry Torrance, Jr., defeated A. I. Hoe and H. H. Bassford, 6—4, 6—0.

Second Round—W. C. Grant and Arthur Friedman defeated Paul Martin and H. N. Balch, 7—5, 6—2; O. M. Sternfeld and E. A. Gunther defeated O. C. A. Child and partner by default.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 30.—Playing a superb defensive game back of strong pitching, the world's champion Athletics materially improved their position in the league race to-day by taking morning and afternoon games from New York. In the series of five games the champions captured four. Holiday crowds were in attendance at both battles, the estimated attendance being placed at 32,000.

In the morning Krause opposed Brockett, and the local left-hander showed his best form of the year by shutting out the Yankees. Only six scattered hits were made by the Chase aggregation, and they never had a chance to score, much less to win. Brockett also pitched well, but was found at opportune times. Both pitchers received errorless support.

The afternoon contest was over in two innings, so far as the Athletics were concerned. The champs jumped Ford, the Yankees' prize pitcher, in the opening session, took another fall out of his curves in the second inning, and when the two rounds were added the Athletics had eight runs, sufficient to win easily. Coombs, winning from New York on Monday, was sent in to repeat, which he did, despite the fact that Plank came to his rescue in the ninth inning with one out. Sensational fielding gave the big crowd ample opportunity to enthuse in the afternoon.

Rain made its appearance in the fifth inning, and fell during the remainder of the game, but not hard enough to stop the battle.

Russell Ford, the best flinger on the Yankees' staff, who beat the champions on Saturday, was on the mound in the afternoon. His presence did not alarm the Athletics. After the second inning, when it was too late, he pitched in his usual form, hits being hard to get and no runs being scored. Coombs pitched good ball outside of the first and last innings. He got a poor start and made an equally poor ending, but Plank's substitution in the ninth inning saved the day for the Athletics.

The star individual play was credited to Oldring in the fourth inning, when he made what was classed as an impossible catch from Hartzell's bat. It was a line drive that went over Barry's head at a mile a minute. Oldring came in at the crack of the bat. Running at full speed, and seeing that he could not get both hands on the ball, he made a leap forward and threw out his ungloved hand, and, to the amazement of the big crowd, he clung to the sphere and maintained his balance. A mighty shout greeted his wonderful effort.

Oldring's sensation was not the only fielding stunt out of the ordinary. Twice Lord captured flies after long runs, while Wolter took Oldring's foul in the third while under top speed. In the fourth Roach went in the air and pulled down Davis's line drive. Twice Blair made excellent catches of fouls close to the stand. Roach, Johnson, and Knight also executed superb stops and throws. The new line-up of the Yankees was materially affected by the absence of Sweeney and Gardner, the former being out of the game for a short time by reason of an injured finger, while the latter is confined to his bed with an attack of tonsilitis, Roach subbing for him at the second bag.

Seventh Regiment Escapes Shut-Out.

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 30.—With the grand stands packed to their utmost capacity and the crowd seated on the grass completely around the field, making ground rules necessary, the Cadets defeated the Seventh Regiment, N. Y. N. G., here to-day by a score of 9 to 1. The game was uninteresting and long drawn out, the Cadets taking the lead in the second inning with two runs. The Guardsmen scored their run in the fourth inning, when a wild throw placed MacGuire on first, Knox singled, and Sadtler's error let MacGuire reach third and score on Ayres's fly to Lyman. After the game the Cadets gave a special dress parade in honor of the visiting Guardsmen. Score:

Baseball Graves Decorated.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 30.—The grave of Harry C. Pulliam, late President of the National Baseball League, in Cave Hill Cemetery, was decorated, according to annual custom to-day by a local representative of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Mr. Pulliam was a newspaper man before he took up work that aided so much in the final development of baseball. A floral wreath from the owners and members of the Philadelphia American League team was placed on the grave of Dr. Mique Fowan.

GEORGETOWN BEATS FORDHAM FOR TITLE

Southerners Capture Catholic College Baseball Championship.

Pitching masterly ball, O'Connor, Georgetown's star twirler, led his teammates to victory over Fordham in an exciting game played yesterday on Fordham Field. With the 5 to 2 victory went the championship of the Catholic colleges, the title passing, for the first time in many years, from Fordham's custody.

With a band playing their college songs and a great crowd shouting encouragement, the local collegians endeavored to retrieve the game by a desperate ninth inning rally. In that period, with one down, O'Reilly got a scratch hit off O'Connor, who up to this time had been a complete puzzle to the Fordham batsmen. Flanagan went in as a pinch hitter in place of Sharkey and made good by lining out a single to left centre. O'Reilly took second on the play and reached third on Fury's error. Lynch fanned. Barrett, the next batter up, hit safely to centre field, scoring O'Reilly. With two runners ready to cross the plate Gargan hit a hot smash down the first base line. It looked good for two bases, but Umpire Jack O'Neil declared it foul. On the next attempt the maroon third baseman ended the game by grounding out to Coogan.

Georgetown found Kehoe to their liking, and in the second inning cut down Fordham's one-run lead by scoring two tallies. Coogan reached first on a scratch single. Fury followed with another safety, and both runners scored on Sitterding's three-base hit.

The visitors added two more runs to their count in the fifth inning. Hunt was passed and took third on Coogan's long single. Poor work by Fordham on Sitterding's wallop allowed both men to reach home.

In the last inning Donnelly singled to Scanlon, who fumbled the ball long enough to allow the Georgetown batter to make second base. O'Connor then drove him home on a single to centre field.

Fordham scored the opening tally in the second inning through a series of misplays by the visitors. Scanlon was safe at first on Coogan's error, went to second on a passed ball, and tallied on O'Connor's wild pitch.

McCaffery played a brilliant game at short for Fordham and Fury's accurate throwing to second helped Georgetown to victory. The score:

Cornell Wins Long Game.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 30.—Cornell defeated Pennsylvania 6 to 5 in a twelve-inning battle to-day. The game was nearly a repetition of last Saturday's game with Yale, O'Connell getting the hit that won the game. With none out in the twelfth and Wagner on third, he slammed a hit to the clubhouse that would have been good for three bases, ending the game. Nesbit started to pitch for Cornell, but was driven from the box in the second, and Hightower pitched a great game. The score:

Angry Crowd Menaces Umpire.

BROCKTON, Mass., May 30.—The police had to interfere for the protection of "Hi Henry" Labelle, who made his first appearance as a New England umpire, in the game which Worcester won from Brockton, 5 to 4, in ten innings to-day. When the game was finished, sticks and stones were hurled at the umpire on account of a close decision, and the police guarded Labelle for a while in the locked clubhouse. When they attempted to escort him to the railroad station a crowd of 1,500 men and boys made a demonstration. On arrival at the station, Labelle was shut into the baggage room until a Boston train arrived, when he was escorted on board. He was formerly a New England League pitcher.

Here's an idea, more or less brilliant.

So the man who wants to cut his week-end baggage to a minimum should wear a blue serge suit and pack simply white flannel trousers.

After all, how could most of us get through a Summer without a serge suit?

It's only natural that we should take most unusual pains to see that all our serges will give satisfaction.

MECHANICIAN DICKSON KILLED

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—Ray Harroun driving a Marmon car won the 500-mile International Sweepstakes to-day at the Motor Speedway. Ralph Mulford at the wheel of a Lozier was second, and D. Bruce-Brown in a Fiat was third. The winner's time was 6 hours 41 minutes and 8 seconds. More than 80,000 enthusiastic spectators shouted encouragement to the forty pilots that started the race, and with unflagging enthusiasm cheered the leader in the last laps of the contest and watched the cars travel around the course to decide minor honors.

The death toll of the race was one mechanician, while several were badly injured. The most serious accident of the day was in the thirtieth mile of the race, when S. P. Dickson of Chicago, mechanician for Arthur Greiner, driving an Amplex, lost his life. The accident occurred on the back stretch, when one of the front wheels of the car flew off. The car twisted and hopped about the track, hurling Greiner and Dickson from their seats. Dickson was thrown against a fence 20 feet from the car and terribly mangled. He was killed instantly. Greiner was knocked unconscious, but escaped with a fractured arm.

Throughout the thrilling contest a series of succeeding accidents kept the immense crowd in a state of fearful expectancy and kept thousands of eyes strained on the track for a fatal collision that seemed imminent whenever several cars flashed close to each other. Considering the rapidity with which the accidents followed during the early hours of the race it was surprising that more serious trouble did not follow. The men injured in the mishaps were as follows:

John T. Glover, Knight's mechanician, body bruised.

The race was for a purse of $25,000 offered by the Speedway management, and nearly $15,000 in special prizes from various manufacturing firms. Harroun won the first prize of $10,000, and several of the other special prizes, including the Dorian Rim purse, offefred to the winning driver if his car was equipped with Dorian rims. In all, Harroun's winnings will aggregate nearly $15,000. Among the other special prizes were those given by the Remy Electric Company, Bosch Magneto Company, and Columbia Lubricants Company.

The crowd was too big to be controlled by a company of militia, and hundreds of special policemen were posted about the grounds. The spectators swarmed across the infield when Dickson was killed and pressed close about his body and that of the unconscious Greiner. Soldiers had to club their guns to clear a space for the surgeons when the ambulance arrived. The throng went wild with excitement after the first accident, and rushed back and forth over the field when the other accidents were reported from one point or another around the two-and-one-half-mile track. In the stands the men and women were on their feet for hours, cheering their favorites and exclaiming with apprehension when cars scraped each other or ran off the inner edge of the track.

A new record was established by Bruce Brown at the 150-mile mark, when his car was timed in 1:59:12, as against Dawson's old mark of 2:01:09. Harroun took the lead in the 190th mile. Then cars began to cast tires, burned out by the fierce grind over the brick pavement. Steering gears began to give way. In front of the grand stand Jagersberger's Case car got away from him and switched back and forth across the track. Wood, the machanician, leaped out and fell. The car passed over him. The other cars were rushing on him, but all swerved safely by as he rose and staggered from the track, except Harry Knight's Westcott. This car plunged to the inner fence, threw out Knight and Glover and careened against Herbert Lytle's Apperson, turning it over.

When the race was half over Louis Disbrow's Pope-Hartford threw a tire at the entrance of the home stretch and swerved in front of Tetzlaff's Lozier. In the collision the rear wheels of Disbrow's car were torn off and the Lozier turned turtle. Tetzlaff's mechanician was caught under the car and his leg broken. The other racers settled to more fixed positions in the grind and the roar of the motors belching flame and smoke from the exhausts of the scorched engines aroused the cheering multitudes in the grand stands and bleachers to a high tension. A woman in a box fainted and fell from her chair. The incident almost caused a panic in the nervous crowd. Hysterical screams of women started another small stampede in the grand stand when Burman's Benz cast a tire into the air and over the retaining wall.

As the race proceeded, however, accidents almost ceased, and the spectators became hardened to the excitement. Harroun kept in front, earning shouts of encouragement. When he swept into the homestretch on his last lap and Starter Wagner gave him the finishing flag, the speedway enclosure rang with applause that drowned the loud barking of the seemingly ceaseless motor explosions.

A study of the complete score card for the race shows that not more than eight of the forty cars were in the lead at any stage of the long grind. These were Ray Harroun, Marmon; Ralph Mulford, Lozier; David Bruce-Brown, Fiat; Spencer Wishart, Mercedes; Ralph De Palma, Simplex; Fred Belcher, Knox; John Aitkin, National, and Teddy Tetzlaff, Lozier. Of these Aitken and Tetzlaff were forced to withdraw by accidents.

At the end of the first 100 miles Bruce-Brown led, Mulford second, and Tetzlaff third. At 150 miles Harroun had come up from the trailers to second place. At 190 miles Harroun took the lead, which he held to the end. At 200 miles Bruce-Brown was second and Mulford third. At 300 miles Mulford was second and Bruce-Brown third. At 400 miles, at 450 miles, and at the finish it stood Harroun, Mulford, and Bruce-Brown. But in between these last three points Bruce-Brown and Mulford see-sawed for second place until not even the Judges were certain until the last lap who would take it.

Bruce-Brown and Mulford were at all stages of the race contenders for the lead, and a delay of more than tire changing time by Harroun would have meant certain loss of the contest. Toward the end of the race the three leaders were little more than thirty seconds apart. All three handled their cars in masterly fashion. Mulford lost considerable time through tire trouble, and Bruce-Brown was off the track more times than Harroun.

As a curtain-raiser Bob Burman was crowned as the "Speed King." The crown presented by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company was of elaborate workmanship, made out of solid gold and lined with purple velvet.

Name.	Car.	Prize.
Ralph Mulford	Lozier,	5,000
D. Bruce-Brown	Fiat,	3,000
Spencer Wishart	Mercedes,	2,000
Ralph de Palma	Simplex,	1,500
Charles Mertz	National,	1,000
W. H. Turner	Amplex,	800
Harry Cobe	Jackson,	700
Hughie Hughes	Mercer,	500
Total		$25,000

In addition to this sum, in gold, the leading ten drivers shared in a distribution of side prizes, given by accessory makers, amounting to nearly $15,000. The drivers of the ten leading cars will also receive bronze plaques from the speedway management.

Used Motor Cars advertised in The Times have the added attraction of reliability. See next to last page.

Referee—Joshua Crane, Boston.

Conditions—Best two out of three games.

Time of Starting—4:30 P. M.

Time of Each Game—Eight periods of 7½ minutes each. Three minutes intermission between periods. Seven minutes intermission between fourth and fifth periods.

Scoring—The teams change ends after each goal, thus alternating in attack and defense north and south. A goal is made when the ball goes over and clear of the line between the goal posts, which are 24 feet apart or above the top of the goal posts between the centre line of the posts. After a goal has been scored the game shall be restarted from the centre of the field. A goal counts one. A safety counts minus one-quarter. A foul counts minus one-half, and such other penalty as the referee may impose. Penalties are deducted from the score of the offending team during the game. Whenever a player drives the ball over the end line outside the posts of the goal he is defending, it shall be deemed a safety. A player shall not crook his adversary's mallet unless he is on the same side of the adversary's pony as the ball, or in a direct line behind, and his mallet is neither over nor under the adversary's pony. The mallet may not be crooked unless his adversary is in the act of striking the ball. The ball continues in play after the seven and a half minutes signal is sounded until it hits the sideboards or goes out of bounds. Such overtime is deducted from the subsequent period.

Size of Field—900 feet by 450 feet.

Prices for Seats—West Stand—Boxes, seating six, for entire series

Two sections nearest center	$200
Other boxes	$150
Grand stand seats—series	$10

Admission to enclosure—east side of grounds	50c

Parking space for all vehicles outside of grounds—none inside.

Seating Capacity—West stand, 7,000; east stand, 5,000; standing room, 15,000.

How to Get There—Long Island R. R. By special trains from Pennsylvania station, 33rd street and 7th avenue, direct to grounds, and by regular trains to Hempstead, Merrick, Garden City and Westbury. Fare, round trip, $1.25.

By ferry service between Rye, N. Y., and Sea Cliff, L. I. Boats for passengers and automobiles leave Rye at 10 A. M.; 12 M.; 2 P. M.; 4 P. M.; 6 P. M.; 8 P. M. Boats leave Sea Cliff at 9 A. M.; 11 A. M.; 1 P. M.; 3 P. M.; 5 P. M.; 7 P. M.

Automobile Routes—By Fifty-ninth street, Queensboro Bridge, from the city to new viaduct into Hoffman Boulevard, or turn sharp right over the old viaduct into Hoffman Boulevard, to Hillside avenue, to Jamaica. At intersection of Queens Road and Hillside avenue one may go via the Jericho turnpike to Krugs Corner and turn sharp through Mineola to the Fair Grounds, where a sharp turn is made on to the Old Country Road, and this may be followed to Merrick avenue, sometimes called Verneck avenue. Turn sharp right on Verneck avenue, run under the parkway and pass entrance to the Meadow Brook Lodge of the motor parkway. A few yards from this entrance a crude wagon road leads diagonally across the meadows under railway tracks to the entrance of the Meadow Brook Club. Those wishing to go by way of Hempstead should leave Hillside avenue at its intersection with Queens Road, run through the town of Queens, pass Belmont Park on the left, continue straight on through Fulton street, Hempstead; cross the main street, Hempstead, and pass the L. I. R. R. station on the left. One and three-tenths miles from the railroad station a sharp turn to the left is made leaving Fulton street, then turn diagonally across the meadows toward the northeast to the entrance of the club. Those entering from the Hempstead side will observe the polo grounds and new grand stand on their left to the rear of the club house. Those entering from Mineola will turn into an entrance road marked "for motors," and run around the club house to the grand stand in the rear.—Bureau Tours A. C. A.

SLICK LEADS MOTOR BOATS.

Thirty-seven Motor Craft in Races of Clason Point Yacht Club.

One of the most successful motor boat competitions ever held on Long Island Sound was decided yesterday afternoon at Clason Point-on-the-Sound under the auspices of the Clason Point Yacht Club. The race was of ten miles over a triangular course the length of which was two miles. The race was a handicap affair, the handicaps being given according to the speed of the motor boats. The handicaps ranged from twenty minutes to one minute.

In the morning elimination trials were held so that the handicaps could be arranged. Lang before the time set for the race to begin, the dock on which Quinn's boathouse is situated and from where the races started was crowded with spectators. The water in the vicinity of the boathouse was crowded with craft of all sorts and varieties, canoes, rowboats, pleasure and working motor boats. The race was closed to pleasure and working craft and of the thirty-seven boats that started in the race there was not a racing boat to be seen. Eleven boats were lucky enough to survive the disqualifications of the judges and as there were eighteen prizes to be given out the judges had to add seven of the lowest penalized boats to the list of prize winners. The prizes consisted of silver cups. The race was keen, both in the elimination trials that were held in the morning and the ten-mile final in the afternoon.

Slick, a fast motor boat owned by U. H. Doll, a member of the Westchester Rowing Club, was the first launch to pass the judges' stand at the end of the fifth lap. Doll's boat did the distance in 54:45. Jessie Lenhart's boat, Jodie, was second, cevering the distance in 48:50. J. D. E. Lord sent his boat, Daisy, home third in 54:32. The order of finish and time of the boats are as follows:

First—Slick; V. H. Doll, owner, Westchester Rowing Club. Time—54:45. Second—Jodie; Jess Lonhart and Strauss, owners. Time—48:50. Third—Daisy; J. D. E. Lord, owner, unattached. Time—54:32. Fourth—Eastern Star; Finch, owner. Time—54:47. Fifth—Unknown boat No. 40. Time—57:25. Sixth—Anna H.; L. Hashagen, owner, Bronx River Yacht Club. Time—51:16. Seventh—Netty; A. G. Brown, owner, unattached. Time—45:21. Eighth—Emily L.; F. Luecke, owner, Clason Point Yacht Club. Time—48:26. Ninth—Bonita; G. Stredeley, owner, Clason Point Yacht Club. Time—1:02:29. CAVALRY OFFICERS IN LONDON

LONDON, May 30.—The American cavalry officers who are to compete in the international jumping contest at the horse show at Olympia, London, from June 12 to June 24, arrived here to-day on board the Atlantic Transport Line steamer Minnetonka.

The officers were met by Major S. L. H. Slocum, the American Military Attaché at London, and the officials of the horse show. The horses were taken directly to Olympia where they will be stabled until and throughout the show.

The American horses stood the sea voyage splendidly and arrived here in good condition after being for a fortnight on trains and the steamer. It will be necessary, however, to give them gentle exercise for a few days before they are ridden in the ring.

Major Frederick S. Foltz of the Fifteenth Cavalry, quickly disposed of the exaggerated stories published in some English newspapers of the high prices for which some of the horses were bought especially for the International Horse Show.

The American officers already are the recipients of many invitations to social entertainments.

Seawanhaka-Corinthian Regatta.

The feature of the special regatta of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, sailed off Oyster Bay yesterday, in which thirteen yachts took part, was the winning in Class P of Commodore William H. Childs's 31-footer Joyant, built to sail for the Manhasset Bay Challenge Cup as the representative of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. Her competitor was the Corinthian, owned by a syndicate of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club, and also built this year to contest for the same trophy. Both are Herreshoff boats, the Corinthian is of normal type, while the Joyant is larger in every way. The yachts sailed in a fresh breeze from the southeast, over a course of ten and three-quarter miles, and the Joyant won by 1 minute 12 seconds. Of the seven New York Yacht Club 30-footers that started Johnston De Forest's Nepsi proved the winner. Clinton McKenzie's Thelema won in the 15-foot class. The Summaries:

HONORS DIVIDED IN HARLEM REGATTA

The New York Athletic Club and the New Rochelle Rowing Club divided honors yesterday in the forty-fifth annual regatta of the Harlem Regatta Association, each club winning three firsts of the fourteen events. Other winners were the Harlem and Hudson Boat Clubs, with two firsts, and the Nonpareils, Nassaus, Columbia University, and the Fairmount Rowing Club of Philadelphia, each with a single victory. The New York A. C. won both the junior and intermediate eight-oared events and the association singles. The New Rochelle Club carried off the honors in the senior and junior singles and also in the junior quadruple event.

Ideal weather and fairly calm water favored the clubs, and the regatta proved one of the best held on the river in years. The usual morning programme was dispensed with, and all the events crowded into the period between 12:30 and 5:30 o'clock. They were all run off with smoothness and dispatch and almost on schedule time. The only deterring feature of the regatta was the fussiness of the referee, who discouraged the work of the committee by his unnecessary complaints and absurd announcements. Lieut. Mott of Launch 1 of the Police Department lent considerable valuable aid to the committee in making the regatta the success that it was.

Some remarkably close finishes marked several of the events. The two victories scored by the New York Athletic Club in the junior and intermediate eight-oared races were gained by the narrow margin of two feet over the Columbia freshmen eight, one quick sweep, back and fourth, of the judges' flag marking the finish of the rival crews.

The senior double scull race proved one of the prettiest of the day and almost resulted in the defeat of the Harlem veterans, Fred Fuessel and Fred Shepard, by the Nonpareil team, F. P. Crowley and G. Waldo Smith. For the greater part of the one and one-quarter miles the Harlem pair trailed their less experienced opponents, and they went into the last quarter of the race apparently defeated. The Nonpareils, however, did not stick to a straight course, and the necessary turn to bring them back to the course cost them the race. They followed the Harlem team about two feet when the latter crossed the finish line.

While rowing to the starting line for the intermediate single scull race John B. Kelly of the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia was overturned, but was soon picked up and after a short delay took his place at the starting point. He put up a strong fight again M. C. J. Doyle of the Hudson Boat Club, but finished one-half a length behind.

The races were all over the usual course of one and one-quarter miles, beginning at Highland Bridge and finishing near Fordham Bridge. Hundreds lined the banks of the river along the Speedway, and all the boat houses along the course held capacity crowds. Many more viewed the races from boats along the shore.

REDBANK, N. J., May 30.—The opening regatta of the season of the Red Bank Yacht Club was held this afternoon over the regular club course, starting from the club house on the north shore of the North Shrewsbury River, sailing down the river as far as Oceanic and returning, a distance of twelve miles. There was a wholesale breeze blowing from the southeast, and at times the yachts were keeled over, making an exciting race. The craft were of the knockabout style, length about twenty-eight feet, all of the same model. The starters were Clinton R. James's Undine, John Gillig's Katharine, Frank James's Maywin, and yachts belonging to Bashiel and William LaBarre. The yachts got away well bunched and they sailed throughout the race close together. The Undine family finally gained a lead and won by a small margin over LaBarre's yacht by fifteen seconds. The corrected time of the Undine was one hour and fifteen seconds. Maywin was third, only a few seconds behind the second yacht. The prizes were silver cups for the winners.

KOHLEMAINEN WINS RACE.

Although only six out of twenty runners scheduled started in the twenty-mile race held at McNulty Field yesterday afternoon, nevertheless the six who did compete furnished a fine race. Bill Kohlemainen, a Finnish lad, without apparently showing the gruelling contest in the slightest, completed the circuit of twenty miles in 1:57:25, exceeding Gus Guerrero's American mark of 1:58:35 4-5, made at Philadelphia on May 5, 1887. Guerrero was the timer at yesterday's race and saw his own record eclipsed.

Hans Holmer and several other long-distance stars were carded to start, but by the time for the pistol came but six men were on the line. These were Tom Longboat, Jim Crowley, Bill Kohlemainen, Gus Ljungstrom, Henry St. Yves, and Joe Travis. Longboat was the favorite of the crowd and he was picked to finish laps ahead of any of the other contestants. But instead of making the brilliant showing that was expected of him, he began to give out in the ninth mile, and in the tenth retired, giving as a season that blisters on his feet made it too painful to continue running. After Longboat, Jim Crowley was next in the favor of the 3,000 persons within the field, but he, too, disappointed them, being completely outclassed and was more than two miles behind Kohlemainen at the finish. As it turned out, Gus Ljungstrom, running in fine form, gave Kohlemainen the hardest fight, though when the race was called after the winner finished, Gus was six laps behind. The final order of the four men to finish, St. Yves dropping out early in the race, were: Kahlemainen, first; Ljungstrom, second; Crowley, third, and Travis a bad fourth.

QUEAL BEATS ABBIE WOODS.

William N. Queal, the American champion distance runner, continued his winning career yesterday at the annual sports of the Wanamaker employees held at Washington Park, Brooklyn. He defeated Abbie Woods, the sterling little Canadian champion, in a ten-mile race, the time being 54.58 4-5. Queal let the finish go almost too long, and got home by three yards. Woods led at alternate points, the principal being at the five-mile mark, where his time was 26.48.

Other events were wrestling bouts between Will Bingham and I Niflot in which the former attempted to throw Niflot in 15 minutes and failed. Two Japs were beaten at Jiu Jitsu by Bingham in short order. The Wanamaker baseball team beat the Namm nine in a good game by 4 runs to 0.

Interscholastic Half-Mile Record.

ANDOVER, Mass., May 30.—A new England interscholastic record for the half mile was established by W. J. Bingham of Exeter here to-day in the nineteenth annual dual meet between Phillips-Exeter and Phillips-Andover Academies, which the former won by the score of 57 to 37. Bingham made the distance in 1:57 2-5, beating his own record made at last year's dual meet of 1:58 4-5. Exeter men took eight first places in the twelve events.

K. O. Brown Knocks Out Allen.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 30.—Knockout Brown of New York knocked out Johnny Allen, the "Butcher Boy," of Philadelphia, in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout at the North End Athletic Club here to-night. Allen was substituted in place of Tommy Maloney of New York, who, it was stated, was unable to meet the weight requirements of 133 pounds, ringside. Brown was originally guaranteed $2,000, but accepted one-third of that amount, as the attendance was small.

Greenman Navy's Crew Captain.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 30.—William G. Greenman of New York was elected Captain of the Naval Academy crew this morning. Greenman has never rowed regularly on the first eight, but has done fine work as stroke of the second eight, though he weighs only about 150 pounds.

NATIONAL YACHT CLUB'S REGATTA

The National Yacht Club gave its first open regatta of the season on Gravesend Bay, yesterday. The new name evidently lent an additional attraction to the lower bay Corinthians, for an unusually large number of craft reported at the starting line. For the first time in years power boats were taken into consideration, and four of the screw-driven craft were sent off on a 29¾-mile contest. The course took them down to Sandy Hook and return. Sim Too, the property of Vice Commodore A. C. Soper, was the first to finish, but on corrected time the principal prize was captured by Robert Henke's Suis Moi.

Interest in the regatta centred principally in the four new boats of the lower bay racing flotilla, which held their second race of the season, yesterday. The absence of Grayjacket, champion Q boat of 1910, took away a little of the interest in the 25-foot division. However, Alice and Suelew, two new yachts, and Soya, an old boat, had a splendid scrap. The yachts were sent once around one of the new lower bay courses, and to the delight of all the course gave them a splendid thrash to windward for the greater part of the voyage. Alice did better on the weather leg, and won by 2 minutes and 27 seconds.

Cyric, the property of Dr. C. L. Atkinson, again led the new S boats, over a shorter course, beating Wink, a new Herreshoff racer, by more than 7 minutes. The other winners included Aries in the New York Canoe Club class; Skylark, among the Gravesend Bay knockabouts, and Miana, which won the percentage division on corrected time. The large sloops of Class N were sent over an outside course of 21 miles. Gardenia was the first to finish, but as the other yachts did not have their ratings, the winner was not known. The summary:

New Speed Boat Record.

PEORIA, Ill., May 30.—George E. Smith, in his twenty-foot motor boat Pronto, broke the world's speed record for boats of the twenty-foot class at the races of the Illinois Valley Yacht Club this afternoon. In the free-for-all race and against a large field of competitors he drove his craft at the rate of 28.12 miles per hour. The world's record has stood at 27.19 miles per hour.

Motor Boat Possum Wins.

HACKENSACK, N. J., May 30.—The Hackensack Boat Club opened its season this afternoon with a motor boat race, which was won by Godley's Possum. Lester De Loynes was second, with Daisy L. The distance was five miles. The winner received a silver cup.

GRANDGERARD RUNS WELL.

Clan McLeod of Jersey City held its annual athletic games yesterday at Schuetzen Park, Union Hill, under A. A. U. auspices, with the result that a number of New Yorkers journeyed over the river in an endeavor to win the prizes. In the main they were successful, as several of the boys of the East Side House made their presence felt in the handicap events.

By far the best-contested race was the 300-yard handicap, which showed C. P. Grandgerard the ultimate winner. He started from scratch, and soon had the near mark men. He had his troubles getting to G. Loewring of the Tenth Regiment, who was in receipt of ten yards, and made the most of his allotment. Grandgerard finally nailed him at the last turn and won at the tape. The summary:

100-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by A. Garretson, East Side House (4 feet); C. P. Grandgerard, E. S. House, (scratch,) second; A. E. Ford, St. Mary's (scratch), third. Time—0:10 2-5.

220-Yard Run, Scholastic Handicap.—Won by F. Langoing, Berringer H. S., (9 yards;) E. Ritz, West Hoboken H. S. (6 yards), second; J. Deigler, Berringer H. S., (scratch), third. Time—0:27.

300-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by C. P. Grandgerard, East Side House (scratch); G. Loeharing, Tenth Regiment (10 yards), second; A. Bowman, L. J. A. C. (11 yards), third. Time—0:41.

One-Mile Race, Handicap.—Won by R. Stanwood, Jr., unattached, (60 yards;) L. Wentz, St. Mary's A. C. (110 yards), second; M. Foster, Putnam A. C. (95 yards), third. Time—4:46 2-5.

Ahlgren Wins Fifteen-Mile Run.

Leading all the way from the start, A. Ahlgren, unattached, won the premier honors of the fifteen-mile road race yesterday at Brighton Beach under the auspices of the Seaside A. C., covering the distance in 1:35:07. The team prize was captured by the Glencoe A. C., having the first five men to finish. The run was a good test for the athletes, as it was contested over the sands, boardwalk, and on the roads, which proved to be a trying chase. The order of finish:

A. Ahlgren, unattached, 1:35:07; H. Southouse, Yonkers Y. M. C. A., 1:36:34; G. Strobino, South Paterson A. C., 1:36:35; W. Galvin, unattached, 1:39:59; M. Nelson, Glencoe A. C., 1:40:32; E. H. Cooperstown Defeats Taconics.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., May 30.—Cooperstown polo players, composed of C. D. Beadleston, Malcolm Stevenson, C. C. Rumsey, and S. S. Vonstadt, defeated the four poloists representing the Taconic team this afternoon on the field at Gracefield at Great Neck, by a total score of 17 to 10 goals. Philip Boyer, W. McClure, Hamilton Hadden, and Walter Goodwin played on the Taconics. The regular Great Neck polo tournament has been postponed until September, owing to the absence of members of the team.

Bayside Yachtmen's Regatta.

The Bayside Yacht Club went into commission yesterday with the usual ceremony. Commodore G. Waldo Smith was in charge of the club-opening ceremonies, and the programme went off in splendid style. The club's burgee was hoisted by the Fleet Captain, and many of the members had their boats at anchor off the clubhouse. The early part of the afternoon programme was featured by a regatta. In the one-design class Rowdy, owned by James A. Dayton, won, defeating Kiddo, owned by Arthur Andrews, by 1 minute and five seconds. Adios, owned by I. Willard, was third; Edna J., owned by A. Nesbitt, fourth, and Mary Jane, owned by W. Banks, fifth.

Atlantic Yacht Club Opening.

With the usual ceremonies the Atlantic Yacht Club was placed in commission yesterday. All day long the home at Sea Gate was thronged with members and their friends. At high noon the burgee was mastheaded on the big flagpole on the club lawn, and as it was broken out on the stick that had once been the mast of the Shamrock of America's Cup fame the colors were saluted by the yachts at the anchorage. Commodore Barnard presided. During the afternoon there was a reception on board the flagship Sagamore. Rear Commodore Francis M. Wilson also entertained, as did the other officers and boat owners of the club. There was no racing.

regular stock tires on his Marmon, won the National sweepstakes, averaging a speed of nearly seventy-five miles an hour. Three of his original Firestone tires were still running in perfect condition at the finish. Bob Burman on Monday broke all world's speedway records for quarter and half mile, kilometer and mile, at a speed of 107 miles an hour, with Firestone regular stock tires. Firestone tires outclass all others in durability and speed.

THREE MORE MARKS AT CELTIC PARK

Henry Does 0:12 1-5 for 125 Yards—Eller Breaks Hurdle Mark and Ahearne Hop-Step.

Three more amateur athletic records were made yesterday at the Memorial Day games of the Irish-American Athletic Club at Celtic Park. Gwinn Henry, who ran as an unattached performer, captured the premier honors in the 125-yard special race, covering the distance in 12 1-5 seconds, and displacing the former best figures of 12 2-5 seconds, made in 1889 by Charles H. Sherrill, now United States Minister to Argentina.

Still another mark of the vintage of 1889 was removed from the annals when Jack Eller of the Irish-American A. C. ran 250 yards over ten low hurdles and did 29 1-5, which wiped out George Schwegler's best performance at the distance of 31 4-5 seconds.

Father Time had another fall taken out of him when Dan Ahearne, another wearer of the Winged Fist "lepped" 50 feet 11 inches in the hop-step, which will set aside the previous best mark, his own, of 49 feet 7¾ inches, made a year ago.

Ten thousand persons witnessed the events, which bristled with the keenest competition, aside from the record-breaking performances. Matt McGrath got the 16-pound hammer out the highly creditable distance of 173 feet, and won the contest. Warren Fielding of the N. Y. A. C. leaped 5 feet 11 inches in the high jump, but had to be content with second place. The one-mile relay was a somewhat hollow victory at the end for the Irish-American quartet, which started from the 11-yard mark and did the smashing performance of 3:22.

In the 125-yard special invitation race the men got away to a beautiful break, all leaving the mark as one man. Henry was the quickest to find his running, and he led at 25 yards by about a foot. Each succeeding fifth of the aggregate distance saw the Texan drawing further away, and at 100 yards it only looked a question as to how far he would win by, and he eventually got home by 5 feet in 0:12 1-5, the fastest piece of sprinting ever done in America. One watch-holder made the time 12 seconds flat, and the other two 0:12 1-5. It is said that there is not a question as to the record being accepted, as every condition was lived up to in the making.

Bobby Cloughen of the I.-A. A. C. was not allowed to start in the "125," as his name was not on the programme.

George Bonhag failed to beat the two-mile record through being badly advised that he had plenty of time to come down the stretch. At the last quarter his time was 8:19 3-5, which left him 65 seconds in which to do his final 440 yards and get the desired mark. He was advised that he had plenty of time in the final stretch, with the result that he overdid his tardy action and did not beat 9:29. The summary:

100-Yard Dash—Novice.—Final heat won by J. W. Stahl, Yonkers Y. M. C. A.; E. Beyer, Roselle A. A., second; J. Weisheit, Pierce's A. A., third. Time—0:11 1-5.

Two-thirds Mile Run—Handicap.—Won by Frank Riley, Q. A. A. (30 yards); B. Freeman, Xavier A. A. (50 yards), second; B. McCherry, Xavier A. C. (70 yards), third. Time—2:41 4-5.

220-Yards Running Handicap.—Final heat won by J. McCole, Trinity Club (9 yards); W. Fisher, I. A. A. C. (6 yards), second; F. W. Cording, I. A. A. C. (5 yards), third. Time—0:23.

125-Yard Dash—Invitation Scratch.—Won by Gwinn Henry, unattached; A. Lauer, N. Y. A., second; J. M. Rosenberger, I. A. A. C., third. Time—0:12 1-5.

Five-Mile Bicycle Race.—Won by W. Raleigh, N. Y. A. C.; H. R. Brown, N. Y. A. C., second; J. Townsend, I. A. A. C., third. Time—14:53 2-5.

250-Yard Hurdle Race—Handicap.—Won by J. J. Eller, I. A. A. C. (scratch); W. C. Robbins, Egward Lyceum (4 yards), second; L. B. Dorland (2 yards), third. Time—0:29 1-5.

One-Mile Relay Handicap.—Won by Irish-American A. C. team made up of H. Shapp, A. R. Kiviat, W. Sheppard and J. M. Rosenberger (11 yards), Irish-American A. C., second, team made up of B. Dewar, F. N. Riley, A. E. Parkhouse and A. Pepis (31 yards), second; Flatbush A. C. team, made up of J. Hardmeyer, R. Rorkes, C. Teevan and H. Bolcom (84 yards), third. Time—3:22.

Two-Mile Steeplechase—Scratch.—Won by J. J. Daly, I.-A. A. C.; T. E. Nelson, I.-A. A. C., second; T. Duzer, Mohawk A. C., third. Time—12:04 4-5.

Two-Mile Run—Handicap.—Won by G. V. Bonhag, I.-A. A. C., (scratch;) M. B. Sheridan, National A. C., (90 yards,) second; T. J. Collins, I.-A. A. C., (20 yards,) third. Time—9:29.

Hop, Step ,and Jump—Handicap.—Won by T. J. Ahearne, N. Y. A. C., (3 feet,) with 48 feet 1¾ inches; Dan F. Ahearne, I.-A. A. C., (scrtach,) second, with 50 feet 11 inches; J. B. Wilkinson, I.-A. A. C., (5 feet,) third, with 44 feet 1¾ inches.

Throwing Discus—Handicap.—Won by A. J. Raich, I. A. A. C. (30 feet), with 112 feet 10 inches; H. Klages, N. Y. A. C., (25 feet), second, with 113 feet 9 inches; A. J. Sheridan, I.-A. A. C., (15 feet), third, with 125 feet 11 inches.

Throwing Sixteen-Pound Hammer—Handicap.—Won by M. J. McGrath, N. Y. A. C., (scratch,) with 173 feet; A. McDougalls, I.-A. A. C., (85 feet,) second, with 133 feet 10¼ inches; P. Ryan, I.-A. A. C., (5 feet,) third, with 153 feet 10 inches.

Putting Sixteen-Pound Shot—Handicap.—Won by H. C. Klages, (18 inches,) with 42 feet 11¼ inches; T. L. Matsukas, I.-A. A. C., (5 feet,) second, with 38 feet 9 inches; S. P. Gillies, N. Y. A. C., (4 feet,) third, with 38 feet 9¾ inches.

Running High Jump—Handicap.—Won by C. Martens, Mott Haven A. C., (4 inches,) with 5 feet 9 inches; W. Fielding, N. Y. A. C., (scratch,) second, with 5 feet 11 inches; J. Price, St. George's A. C., (4 inches,) third, with 5 feet 7 inches.

Rutgers Defeated by Stevens.

The dual track meet for the secondary intercollegiate championship of New Jersey between the track athletes of Rutgers College and Stevens Institute, held yesterday at Castle Point Field, Hoboken, went to the Stevens team after a hard struggle by a score of 56½ to 47½.

All the events were closely contested, and as a result several Stevens records were broken. Lawrence of Stevens broke the college record for the two-mile run in the time of 10 minutes and 22 2-5 seconds. Harris, Stevens's star performer, jumped 21 feet 7 inches in the broad jump. The Stevens record for the 880-yard run was broken by Bell of Stevens, who ran the distance in 2 minutes 6 seconds. Adams broke the college shot put record, throwing the ball 37 feet 1½ inches.

Havens of Rutgers scored the largest number of points. He won the two sprints and the two hurdles, making a total of 20 points. Harris of Stevens put 18 to the credit of his college in the jumps and high hurdles.

New Yorkers Win at Stamford.

STAMFORD, Conn., May 30.—W. J. Kramer, the cross-country champion, won the three-mile run at the games of St. Peter's Council, Knights of Columbus, here to-day in 14:47. Running from the thirty-yard mark, Joyce of the Mohawk Athletic Club, was second. C. P. Slattery of the Twenty-second Regiment, New York, won the 100-yard sack race in 0:15 3-5. A New York Athletic Club team, running from scratch, beat Brooklyn Central and Eastern District Branches of the Young Men's Christian Association in the mile relay. Kelley of the Mohawks won the 100-yard race from scratch, and F. E. Holloway, unattached, won the 300-yard handicap. Meeks of the Long Island Athletic Club won the three-quarter-mile run. Schwartz of the Pastimes won the mile walk.

Colgate Athletes Win Honors.

ROME, N. Y., May 30.—Colgate University athletes won the annual track and field meet of the New York State Intercollegiate Athletic Union here to-day, scoring more than twice as many points as Union, their nearest competitor. In the 120-yards hurdle Colson of Hamilton equaled the world's collegiate record of 15 1-5 seconds. In three other events the New York State Intercollegiate record was broken by Stitt of Colgate putting the shot 41 feet 10¾ inches; by Baker of Colgate, in a 440-yards dash in 51 1-5 seconds, and by Baker of Union with a broad jump of 22 feet 4 inches. The standing of the four universities competing in the meet was as follows: Colgate, first, 70 1-3 points; Union, second, 33 1-6 points; Hamilton, third, 29 points; Rochester, fourth, 10 1-2 points.

Witter Best All-Around Athlete.

The School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance, a branch of New York University, held its annual field day exercises yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field. In the morning there were a number of impromptu tennis matches and a baseball game between the juniors and freshmen. The freshmen walked away with both the tennis and the baseball games, winning the former in two straight sets, 6—2, 6—0, and the latter by the score of 16 to 12. In the afternoon the track events were held for the all-around championship. This was won by G. P. Witter, with a tally of 22 points, against a total of 15 for W. M. Lesher.

Fifty-four Yachts Take Part in Annual Races.

In a light breeze and in smooth water, fifty-four yachts sailed a fairly fast race yesterday afternoon over triangular courses on Long Island Sound, in the twenty-ninth annual regatta of the Harlem Yacht Club. It was the first championship race of the season on the Sound, and the fleet of spick and span yachts made an extremely pretty picture as their skippers battled for windward berths at the start.

There were three courses, eleven, nine and six miles, respectively. The larger classes had the Parsonage Point buoy for their first turning mark, and Week's Point buoy for their second. The smaller classes rounded the Scotch Caps and Mott's Point buoys.

A feature of the races was the first appearance of the new Gardner boat, Watko. She was built for a Russian owner and will be sent to that country at once. The yacht was sailed by Robert Jacob and she proved speedy under all conditions. She defeated the next boat in her class—the Scylla—by six minutes 20 seconds, sailing the nine-mile course.

Ten new boats sailed their first races in this regatta. J. A. Crowley's Ediana, the winner in Class P, was one that attracted much favorable attention and so did the Zingara of the same class. She is owned by Newton Brothers. There were five new one design boats in the star class, owned by well-known racing men. They are the Snake, the Twinkle, the Gold Bug, the Little Dipper and the Ceti. W. Lindeman's Mile. Boss of the new Manhasset Bay class and the Dolly of the fourth division handicap class are also new boats. The summary:

STEIN DEFEATS MELLODY.

Joe Stein, the local welterweight, filling the substitute roll for Ted Nelson of Australia, gave Honey Mellody of Boston the beating of his career in the ten-round feature bout at Brown's Gymnasium last night. Mellody was billed to fight Nelson, but refused to take the Australian on because he was a few pounds over weight. The club proposed Stein as a substitute, and the change was satisfactory to Mellody, but it proved a big disappointment to the Bostonian as the bout wore on. He appeared to advantage in only one of the ten rounds and left the ring badly beaten.

For the first six rounds the so-called welterweight champion fought like a novice. He was a target for vicious left hooks to the body and head, and landed but one hard blow on his opponent during the six rounds. His strong physique enabled him to take the punishment, which was showing new traces on his face in each succeeding round. Mellody's eye was almost closed in the fourth round, and his face was badly cut in the sixth. In this round Stein landed a terrific right hook on Mellody's jaw and floored the Boston boy.

In the seventh round Stein began to tire from the terrific pace he had been setting, and as soon as he slowed down Mellody began to get his second wind. In the seventh Mellody was floored twice, but only for a short time on each occasion, and he landed enough hard blows on his opponent, who was forced to cover up to hold him even for the round. In the eighth round Mellody, although he did no sensational work, gained the honors, because Stein was too tired to do anything. Stein rallied, however, in the last two rounds and gained the honors in both. He had Mellody bounding against the ropes in the final round, but was not strong enough to put him away.

A crowded house witnessed the bout, in the number being two patrolmen in uniform.

SUNSTAR DERBY FAVORITE.

EPSOM DOWNS, England, May 30.—With twenty-seven profitable starters the field of to-morrow's Derby, England's classic turf event, will be the largest since Hermit gained his memorable victory over twenty-nine opponents in 1867. Only twice within the last thirty-one years have there been more than a score of starters. One of these occasions was in 1901 when the late William C. Whitney captured the prize with Volodyovski, beating twenty-four other starters. His son, Harry P. Whitney, has a candidate in the race to-morrow, All Gold, but a repetition of the victory of 1901 would be more than a surprise to racegoers here.

John Madden's Adam Bede, which is running under the colors of Louis Winans, and which earlier was thought of highly as the probably winner, has dropped out of the betting, having since been beaten by his two stable companions in trial.

J. B. Joel's Sunstar remains the favorite in the betting this evening at 5 to 4 against. The odds against King William are 8 to 1 while the betting against all of the other entries reaches double figures.

Cricketers Show Form Reversal.

A totally unexpected reverse at the hands of the Kings County was suffered by the Brooklyns, champions of 1910. It was the first encounter between the two teams in the Metropolitan League championship series this season, and was played at Prospect Park yesterday, the margin of victory being 50 runs. The score—Kings County, 158; Brooklyn, 108.

Richmond County won its championship game with Bensonhurst at Ulmer Park. The visitors were 68 runs ahead of the home eleven after each side had played an innings, and as time prevented the Staten Islanders from going in the second time, the contest was decided on the result from the first innings. The totals—Bensonhurst, 64 and 160; Richmond County, 132.

A remarkable reversal of form was shown in the championship game, second section, between Brooklyn and Kings County at Prospect Park. After being 51 runs to the bad on the conclusion of the first innings, the Brooklyns disposed of their opponents in the second innings for 39 runs, and were left with 91 runs to win the game. Although but little more than an hour of playing time was left the score mounted up so rapidly that 122 runs were put on before time was called, the margin of victory being therefore 32 runs and 4 wickets to spare in the full game.

Manhattan easily defeated Prospect Park in a league game at Prospect Park by a margin of 134 runs. Thanks to a good innings on the part of E. E. Gittens, who ran up a score of 65, not out, the Manhattans reached the second century before all their wickets fell. The totals—Manhattan, 200; Prospect Park, 66.

The Germantown British Americans traveled from Philadelphia to try conclusions with the West Indians at Prospect Park, but were compelled to acknowledge defeat by a margin of 82 runs on totals of 181 to 99.

National Car Wins in Denver.

DENVER, Col., May 30.—In the Denver Motor Club's automobile races at the new speedway at Sable, Col., this afternoon McMillan, in a National, won the 200-mile event; Thorney, in a Ford, was second, and Jackson, in a Michigan, was third. Time—3:30:30. Another event, a twenty-mile race for non-stock cars, was won by Ford, in an Overland; Dawson, Overland, second; Fitzpatrick, Stearns, third. Time—27:02.

AMERICAN GOLFER BEATS BRITISHER

LONDON, May 30.—Nearly all the interest in to-day's play in the amateur golf championship of England at Prestwick focussed on the match in which "Chick" Evans of Chicago took part. Having drawn a bye in the first round and secured a walkover in the second, he met Capt. F. A. Stephens to-day in the third round, and the American player won by 5 up and 3 to play, and was never extended. Evans did not start any too well, for he took three puts on the first green and lost the hole, but he squared the match at the third hole, and took the lead at the fourth, where he played one of the finest shots of the day. He tried to take a short cut to the green across the bunker and was trapped. He had to stand about a foot above his ball to execute the shot in hazard, but with the iron he landed the ball on the green and secured the hole in a perfect 4. He was 1 up at the turn, but took the next two holes, and proceeded to a comfortable victory. An English golfing correspondent says Evans is obviously a splendid golfer with his iron clubs. He hits the ball with rare precision, and is as good a judge of distance and strength as any one could imagine. His driving is moderate, and, indeed, it is almost qualified to be called bad. He was in some sort of trouble off nearly every tee going out, and must have been in eight or ten bunkers on the outward journey.

P. W. Whittemore, another of the American representatives, made a plucky fight in the second round against E. A. Lassen, the amateur champion of 1908. Whittemore started badly; in fact, on the first green he took three putts from the distance of a yard when he sent his yard putt fully five feet past the hole. He smiled broadly, as the humor of the situation appealed even to the man who had suffered from it. Whittemore was defeated by 2 and 1.

DEAL GOLF COURSE RECORD.

The records for the course of the Deal Golf and Country Club were broken by J. F. Shanley, Jr., in a four-ball match yesterday. With Willie Norton, the club's "pro" for a partner. Shanley went out in 39 and then reeled off the shorter homeward journey in 33, getting a total of 72 for the round. This breaks the best previous mark held by W. V. Connover by two strokes. That conditions were right for low scoring was shown by the fact that Norton went around in 73, which is within two strokes of the professional record of 71 made by J. J. McDermott.

There were sixty entries in the 36-hole handicap, selected eighteen to count, and it resulted in a victory for Shanley with a 63 net. The ball sweepstakes was won by Alfred Nathan with 84—14—70, while there was a tie for the second share between J. T. Hettrick, 94—23—71, and Shanley, 76—5—71.

GOLF ON OTHER COURSES.

A medal play handicap at thirty-six holes was the feature at the Apawamis Club yesterday. There were prizes for the best net and best gross scores, the former being won by E. J. Laidlaw with 175-30-145 and the latter by W. R. Thurston, with 160 gross.

Class A and B handicaps were in progress all day yesterday at the Ardsley Club. A. F. Prescott, with 82, 11—71, had both the best gross and net, winning in the premier class, while E. L. Johnson, with 92, 24—68, was successful in Class B. Over sixty took out cards.

In the flag competition at the Canoe Brook Country Club yesterday the winner, who carried his flag to the nineteenth green, was Solewell. Nine more of the members went to the eighteenth green and were tied for second prize—Lumley, Walker, Naulty, Ripley, Pingston, Allen, Whittlesley, Hoffman, and Moore. There was a tie for first and second in the four-ball competition between Rearick and Ripley, 81, 12—69, and Gee and Solewell, 79, 10—69. Toppin and Hoffman were in third place, with 79, 9—70. There was a large field in each competition.

A four-ball competition in two classes was the feature at the Englewood Country Club yesterday, H. M. Coxe and John Naething being the winners in the Class A division with 72, 6—66, while W. E. Webb and Dr. W. D. Douglas took the honors in the second class with 82, 16—66. The pairings for the club championship, the qualifying round of which was played last Saturday, have been announced.

There were 103 players on the course of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club yesterday in the qualifying handicap round at thirty-sxi holes for the prize given by William C. Freeman. The sixteen to gain eligibility will keep on at handicap match play. The club prize for the best net, a bronze statuette of a golfer, was won by Lewis F. Losee, and the prize for the best gross, an elaborate traveling bag, was won by Marshall Whitlatch with 162, from scratch, but he withdrew from the match play.

Besides the finals in a three-day tournament in three classes at the Inwood Country Club yesterday a special Decoration Day handicap for all members who were not finalists in the various classes was run off. More than eighty players took part in the tournament. H. A. Steiner won in Class A, H. Fried in the second division, and Dr. S. W. Dandler in the third. S. A. Mayer was first in the special handicap with 96-25-71.

Gardiner W. White, with a handicap of three finished fifth in the annual Memorial Day handicap competition of the Oakland Golf Club yesterday. C. B. Beckwith, with a handicap of eighteen, won the match, returning a card of 85-18-67. He was awarded a cup donated by W. B. Donnell.

Baltusrol golfers had a parade of their own yesterday. It was probably the longest one in the club's history, for the members trooped off from the first tee as early as 7:15 in the morning and kept it up without cessation until 5:30. In the Baltusrol handicap C. E. Van Vleck won, with a 73 net, while the gross score prize went to Dr. L. W. Callan, with an 83. Van Vleck won the sweepstakes with 84, 9—73 and T. T. Watkins came in second, with 91, 15—76. In the four-ball competition Howard Giffin and W. G. McKnight won, with a score of 71. First and second rounds for the Baltusrol Cup were also run off.

Members of the Montclair Golf Club qualified in two classes for the June tournament yesterday afternoon for prizes presented by D. W. Cooke for Class A and by the club for the Second Division. M. M. Singer led the field in the first set, with 76, 9—67, while J. R. Mitchell was the leader in the B Division, with 90, 21—69. The four-ball foursome at 18 holes, combined scores, one-half of the combined handicap to count, played in the afternoon, was won by F. L. Dyer and F. W. Dyer, with 163, 10—153. A club handicap at 18 holes in two classes, was run off in the morning, M. M. Singer and T. W. Stevens being the winners of the A and B Classes respectively.

Tourist Club Scouts Busy.

The road scouts of the Touring Club of America were out in force yesterday warning automobilists of speed traps and cautioning tourists to obey the traffic regulations and State motor vehicle laws. The cars were out early locating the points where undue discrimination was in evidence, and the police expressed entire satisfaction upon having the co-operation of this progressive organization. The main trunk lines on Long Island were patroled and on the popular roads in Westchester County the activities of the T. C. A. were very much in evidence. One of the scouts was found at the approach to the Fort Lee Ferry at 130th Street, another at the top of Fort Lee Hill, while two scouts were stationed on the Hackensack Turnpike warning motorists of a speed trap, and many drivers were saved from annoyance and possible arrest.

Sharkey Club's Ten-Round Bouts.

Two ten-round bouts will feature the entertainment of the Sharkey Club to-night, besides there will be three other bouts. Dick Peters will tackle Henry Meyers of the United States Navy in one of the ten-round bouts. In the other ten-round affair Richy Ryan will box Joe Farmer.

CHAMPION KRAMER BEATEN.

NEWARK, N. J., May 30.—In an exciting finish, Joe Fogler won the three-cornered match race here this afternoon at the Velodrome bicycle track, beating out Frank Kramer and Jackie Clarke in a final sprint to the tape. Fogler kept in the rear of the pacemakers until next to the bell lap, when he started a sprint that carried him so far to the front that neither Clarke nor Kramer could catch him.

Another sensational win was that of Fred Hill, who captured the B. M. Shanley handicap race, when his team mate, Joe Fogler, pulled him up to the front markers in the latter part of the race and then dropped out, leaving Hill far ahead. The summaries:

B. M. Shanley Handicap, One Mile, (Professional.)—Won by Fred Hill, Boston; Frank Kramer, East Orange, second; Jackie Clarke, Australia, third; Martin Ryan, Newark, N. J., fourth. Time—1:50 4-5.

Two Miles, (Professional.)—Won by Menus Bedell, Lynbrook, L. I.; Floyd Krebs, Newark, second; Chris Scheller, San Francisco, third; W. L. Mitten, Davenport, Iowa, fourth; Jumbo Wells, New Zealand, fifth; Jack Mazin, Newark, sixth. Time—4:47 4-5.

One-Mile Handicap, (Amateur.)—Won by Frank Cavanagh, Newark, (120 yards;) Alvin Loftus, Providence, R. I., (40 yards,) second; William Pittit, Rockville Centre, (80 yards,) third. Time—1:56 4-5.

Special Match Race, (Professional.)—Won by Joseph A. Fogler, Brooklyn; Jackie Clarke, second; Frank Kramer, East Orange, third. Distance, 5 miles. Time—10:23.

Aeroplane Beats Automobile.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 30.—The feature of the aeroplane meet at Charter Oak Park today was a race between a biplane and an automobile for a distance of five miles around the track. J. Clifford Turpin was the driver of the airship and Frederick W. Dodd of this city drove the automobile. Turpin easily outdistanced Dodge, circling around him twice. The time was given as 7 minutes and 59 seconds. A second interesting event was a race between Turpin and Oscar Brindlay in their biplanes for a mile around the track. The men were in the air eleven minutes, Turpin attaining an altitude of 700 feet, while Brindley arose to a height of 300 feet. The flying will continue through to-morrow.

Aviator Moore Has Lucky Escape.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., May 30.—Henry Moore of Union Hill, N. J., flying in a Curtiss type biplane, fell over 150 feet this evening and by almost a miracle his only injury was a few scratches and bruises. His machine was almost a total wreck. Moore had climbed a cross-country flight and was between 150 and 200 feet in the air when his motor suddenly stopped. He fell like a shot to the ground, landing in a cabbage field. His wrecked machine was taken to his hangar at Nassau Boulevard. Moore says he will try to fly again.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Warm weather continues in the Gulf States and Tennessee. At Vicksburg, Miss., the highest temperature of record at that point, 96 degrees, occurred Tuesday. Temperatures of 95 degrees were also recorded at Meridian, Miss., and Fort Worth, Texas, and 98 degrees at Shreveport, La. Except in the region hereinbefore referred to moderate temperatures prevailed Tuesday night in all parts of the country.

There were local showers during the last twenty-four hours in New England, the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio and Upper Mississippi Valleys, and at widely scattered points in the plains States. Elsewhere throughout the country the weather remained fair.

No storm of importance is charted in any part of the United States.

The indications are that the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday throughout the country except that local thundershowers are probable in the Middle Atlantic and New England States and the Ohio Valley.

High temperatures will continue in the South and moderate temperatures will prevail elsewhere Wednesday and Thursday.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday, except probably local thundershowers; light, variable winds, mostly east.

New England—Threatening in south, fair in north portion Wednesday. Thursday probably local showers; light, variable winds, mostly east.

6 A. M.	61	72	6 P. M.	61	68
9 A. M.	65	74	9 P. M.	59	66
12 M.	74	77	12 P. M.	56	65

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 72; for the corresponding date last year it was 66; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 64.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 72; at 8 P. M. it was 66. Maximum temperature, 80 degrees at 1:50 P. M.; minimum, 65 degrees at 10 P. M. Humidity, 73 per cent. at 8 A. M., 76 per cent. at 8 P. M.

Income

One of the best means by which to obtain the highest rate of income compatible with safety is to diversify your investments. For example, invest part of your money in high-grade bonds having a broad market; part in high-grade bonds of more or less limited market, and the balance in preferred stocks of high standard. The more you consider this question of diversification, the more you will appreciate its many advantages.

Write for our Circular No. 820, "Judicious Investment," which is accompanied by a diversified list of sound investments yielding an average return of about 5½ per cent.

CITY CAN REDUCE ITS COST OF LIVING

YIELD OF INTENSIVE TILLAGE

Some Crops Will Produce as Much as $1,000 an Acre Per Year on Land Valued at Only $100.

H. B. Fullerton, Director of the Agricultural Department of the Long Island Railroad, believes that enough garden truck can be raised on the vacant land in this city, if properly cultivated, to bring about a very considerable reduction of the cost of living here.

Mr. Fullerton has written a letter to the Congestion Commission setting forth this view and showing how much profit can be taken from this vacant land by intensive farming. The statement has caused much surprise among members of the commission. The whole tenor of Mr. Fullerton's letter is that though farm land is usually rated to be worth $100 an acre and is held by speculators for advancement due to the city's growth, it can, by skillful cultivation, be made to be worth much more to the owner and to the State.

"Few are the potato growers on Long Island," writes Mr. Fullerton to the Congestion Commission, "who do not get from 150 to 200 bushels per acre annually, which are sold, practically always, at 50 cents or more per bushel, and the price as a rule runs from 65 cents to 90 cents, and a yield of 300 bushels is common and 400 bushels per acre is occasional.

"Market gardening in this country is in its infancy. Americans, as a rule, know practically nothing of intensive gardening. The market gardeners about New York City are mainly foreigners, the greater part of them Germans, with some French, some Belgians, some Hollanders, some Slavs, and even Chinese and Japanese. Some of these men make the soil return as much as do the most expert of market gardeners who are situated in the evirons of Paris and who, on three acres, have raised $3,000 worth of crops in one year. This yield of $1,000 per acre has been surpassed many times in this country in fruit, in berries, in asparagus and in many other single crops.

One hundred dollars can be netted from one acre by even ordinary farm methods with such a crop as potatoes. Easily handled and always readily sold, requiring no artificial methods for their preservation, they can be planted, cultivated and dug by use of the simplest and cheapest tools, no machinery whatever being necessary, and hence this cheap and certain crop pays a big interest on a $1,000 assessment and a normal interest on $2,000, and yet farm prices are $100 per acre.

"Long Island's waste land is much of it held now by speculators who pay no taxes to speak of and in many cases absolutely none at all. They can afford to wait for the natural rise in land value that must invariably come to every square foot lying near New York City and especially rapid will be the increase on Long Island, because of its climate tempered by the great bodies of salt water that surround it, and the soil, which, contrary to tradition and science, our experimental farms have proved to be three feet in depth."

This practice of holding land out of use, Mr. Fullerton writes, forces both European and American seekers for market garden plots to go to hilly, rocky or sandy territory not at all suitable for the best results in raising miscellaneous crops.

His statement of the net yield for different crops on Long Island has made some consumers wonder, the Congestion Commissioners say, why the investor puts in sewers, sidewalks and streets and talks transit instead of raising vegetables.

Mr. Fullerton says that potatoes yield an average gross return per acre of $225, a net profit of $169. Cauliflower nets a profit per acre averaging over $200. One grower of cabbage netted $935 from three acres. The net profit from celery varies from $300 to $1,000 per acre, according to the care given the crop. The net yearly returns for ten years on asparagus averaged over $550 per acre.

The high cost of living, he concludes, is one reason why the average family income barely makes both ends meet. Yet within the city limits, he declares, a large portion of the garden truck used in the city could be raised.

MAY ESCAPE $100,000 FINE.

If Texas & Pacific Runs Trains on Time the State Will Relent.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Tex., May 30.—The railroad commission to-day tentatively agreed to have the attorney general dismiss the suits against the Texas and Pacific Railroad for penalties aggregating $100,000 for failure to run its passenger trains on time.

The commission will not issue the order for the dismissal of the suits until the railroad demonstrates that it can live up to its schedules. The penalty suits against the same road for failure to receive certain lumber shipments from the cotton belt will also be dismissed.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

6,805. HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS IN EUROPEAN CITY—An American Consul reports that, according to plans recently prepared, the harbor of a European city is to be materially enlarged and improved. One plan, which includes the construction of new quays, is estimated to cost about $6,834,000. A second plan contemplates the construction of new harbor facilities, the building of canals, construction of quays, etc., at an estimated cost of $6,030,000.

6,806. RARE MINERALS AND PETRIFICATIONS—A business man in Germany has requested an American Consul to announce that he would be glad to correspond with persons who collect, sell, or exchange rare minerals and petrifications for museums or private collections.

6,807. STEAM SHOVELS—An American Consular officer reports that two firms that have secured contracts for excavations on the route of a new railroad in a European country are in need of an up-to-date steam shovel for their work, and are studying the merits of various machines at present.

6,808 MACHINES FOR MAKING PAPER TUBES AND CONES FOR TEXTILE TRADE—A report from an American Consulate in Russia states that a firm in his district which makes paper tubes and cones for the textile trade would like to hear from American manufacturers of machines for the making of such tubes and cones.

6,809. AMERICAN SHOES—A business house in Germany writes that it is greatly interested in American leather boots and shoes for men and women, and would like to secure the names of a few first-class American shoe manufacturers without branch houses in Europe. Offers from first-class manufacturers only will be considered.

6,810. AGENCY FOR AMERICAN GOODS IN ENGLAND—An American Consul reports that an American who has settled in England is desirous of securing the agency for the sale of American products in a British city. He has had business experience in the United States.

6,811. TURPENTINE OIL AND OIL OF ROSIN—A report from an American Consul in Germany states that he has been requested by a local business man to secure for him the names of American firms exporting turpentine oil and oil of rosin, with a view to the immediate importation of these articles.

6,812. AMERICAN CARRIAGE NUTS AND BOLTS—An American Consul in the United Kingdom reports that a business house in his district has written him that it is in the market for a large quantity of American carriage bolts and nuts, cut thread, sizes ranging from 1x¼ inch to 6x⅜ inch, in all five thousand gross.

6,813. PORTLAND CEMENT, MACHINERY, ETC.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from a business house in Latin-America requesting to be put in touch with American manufacturers of Portland cement plain and corrugated galvanized sheets, oakum and woodworking and hulling machinery.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

LONDON, May 30.—Money was plentiful and discount rates were quiet to-day.

The stock market was steady and cheerful, with Canadian Pacific again the feature. Home rails and oil shares were active and dearer.

The Supreme Court decision in the American Tobacco case was practically ignored in the American section. First prices ranged from ⅜ above to ½ below parity, and during the forenoon prices continued to move irregularly. The cut in steel prices in New York caused weakness in United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper, but railroad shares advanced, under the lead of Canadian Pacific. The latter was very firm and gained 3 points, while Union Pacific advanced 1½ on buying orders from New York. Later, trading slackened and Canadian Pacific lost a point, but the rest of the list hardened and closed steady.

Money, 1¾ per cent.; rate of discount in the open market for both short and three months' bills, 2 1-16 per cent.

PARIS, May 30.—Prices were generally steady on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, May 30.—Prices were irregular on the Boerse to-day. The cut in steel prices in New York caused weakness in domestic steel shares. America securities closed higher.

AMERICAN BONDS IN LONDON.

Big Demand for Oregon-Washington Issue—1½ Per Cent. Premium.

LONDON, May 30.—Subscriptions for the issue of $12,500,000 bonds of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Company were closed here to-day within an hour after they were opened.

The bonds were quoted at 1½ per cent. premium.

Embroideries Must Pay 60 Per Cent. Under the Tariff of 1909.

The interpretation to be given the Tariff act of 1909 as it relates to embroideries forms the subject of a decision by the Board of United States General Appraisers. Under the act of 1897, usually referred to as the Dingley tariff, numerous decisions were handed down in an almost endless litigation. The controversies were of such a character that when Congress came to revise the former law, modifications were made in the present statutes to conform as far as possible to the decisions of the board and Federal courts.

The outcome of the changing of the phraseology in the present act is the test suit brought in the name of M. H. Frank & Co. of this city. The decision of the board, which is against the contentions of Frank & Co., carries with it the application of a 60 per cent duty to all importations covered by the decision, against a rate of 45 per cent., claimed by the importers. The probability is that the importers will take the issue into the Customs Court and attempt to convince the tribunal of last resort that the board erred in its decision.

The articles in question consist of table [illegible], doilies, tidies, and articles of a like nature, of linen fabrics, from the surfaces of which threads have been drawn in different parts of the fabrics. The threads from other and different fabrics have been introduced and interwoven, which are so intertwined and grouped as to form embellished figures and decorations, adding to their beauty and value. The articles are described in the report of Collector Loeb as "drawn thread articles of flax, cotton, or vegetable fibre, in imitation of lace or embroidery."

Duty was accordingly collected on the merchandise at the rate of 60 per cent. under the provisions of Paragraph 349, which deals with embroidered or fancy goods. The importers alleged that the Government's classification was erroneous and should have been at the rate of 45 per cent. as "all woven fabrics," under Paragraph 358 of the present law. This contention, Judge Cooper, in his decision for the board, denies, and affirms the Collector.

A part of the decision is set apart to the omission of a comma in a paragraph of the law, and of the interpretation to be given such omission. Judge Cooper reaches the conclusion that the construction of the law renders it plain and unambiguous, and that its meaning harmonizes with the evident intention of Congress, as such intention is shown by the paragraph itself, that is, the Act of 1909 as shown by other paragraphs, and the act of 1897. After reviewing various court decisions arising under the Act of 1897, the Judge says:

"There is a preponderance of evidence to show that the articles in question are imitation laces, or could be styled as such, and the fancy looping and intertwining of foreign threads into the original fabric in such a way as to produce the ornamental figures may even bring them under the class known as embroidered articles as connected by Paragraph 349. As indicated in another part of this decision, neither of these classifications is necessary to bring them under the provisions of the paragraph.

"Beyond any question the articles are embellished and decorated ornamental openwork, and as such dutiable under Paragraph 349 of the Tariff act of 1909. The interpretation we have given Paragraph 349, we think, makes it a consistent and harmonious whole, removes from it redundancy, repugnancy, or absurdity, and clearly reflects the legislative intent. The protest is overruled and the decision of the Collector affirmed."

Gamblers Held for Examination.

Some seventy-five members of the sporting fraternity were in the West Side Court yesterday morning to get a sight of the "stool pigeon" who caused the two raids on gambling house in the theatre district on Monday afternoon. He gave his name as John Freuenthal of 240 Centre Street, Police Headquarters. Six men were arrested in West Forty-sixth Street, and they were held in $500 bail each for examination on Thursday morning next. The place raided, the Winham Club, had also been raided on May 18, and some of the present prisoners were arrested at that time. Five men taken in the rail in Forty-second Street near Broadway were also held for examination.

Deere & Company are the largest manufacturers of steel plows in the country and are also important producers of other farming implements and vehicles.

1. Business in successful operation for over 60 years.
2. Since 1868 the Company and its predecessors have never had an unprofitable year and dividends have been paid without interruption.
3. Average annual net earnings for five years ended June 30, 1910, were $3,103,673 and net earnings for year ended June 30, 1910, were $4,857,342. Preferred dividend requirements are at present $1,670,767. In pursuance of a conservative policy the Company plans to retire $1,125,000 Debentures and Notes per annum out of earnings.
4. The funded debt of the Company consists of $500,000 Serial Debentures, all maturing within 6½ years, and $5,000,000 Notes maturing $1,000,000 per annum from August 1, 1912, to August 1, 1916, inclusive, but callable. No additional bonds or mortgages may be placed on the property during the life of the notes.
5. The Company and its subsidiaries own unencumbered real estate valued at $6,400,000 and important equities in other real estate.
6. Net quick assets of the Company are in excess of $10,000,000, and total assets amount to $46,066,094.
7. The present management has increased the value of the properties out of earnings $12,000,000 in the past nine years.
8. The Company employs 2,000 operatives, and with its subsidiary companies transacted a gross business in the year 1910 of $30,000,000.

WHAT CITY HAS LOST IN OBTAINING WATER

Engineering News Figures Ten Mile River Supply Would Have Saved $100,000,000.

OBJECTIONS ONLY LEGAL

Ways Suggested of Overcoming Obstacles—Rights of Property Versus the Rights of the Public.

Charles Whiting Baker, editor of the Engineering News, in an editorial to be published to-morrow, declares that New York City could have saved from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 in the cost of the Catskill Aqueduct if it had utilized the waters of the Ten Mile and Housatonic Rivers for its new water supply. He says it would have obtained a supply of equal quantity, pressure, and purity in half the time. In other words, if the work had been started when the Catskill system was begun, four years ago, we would have the water now and and there would be no talk of a famine in Manhattan and the Bronx.

It was Mr. Baker who started the recent agitation for using the Ten Mile River for an emergency supply to tide over the present shortage. He obtained estimates to show that contractors of the highest responsibility stood ready to install the necessary pumping plant and lay the pipes in ninety days. The opponents of the plan then brought forward the argument that insuperable legal obstacles would prevent its consummation. The Engineering News, in its forthcoming issue, will take up this phase of the subject. It will contain a legal opinion prepared by Carmen F. Randolph at the request of the Merchants' Association when that organization was considering the Ten Mile River project.

Mr. Randolph notes that some advance in the definition of principle has been made since the opinion was written, but that a comprehensive definition is still lacking and the practical questions are for the most part hardly touched.

After a thorough going review of the subject in its various legal phases, Mr. Randolph finds it possible for one State to take advantage of inter-State streams by agreement, if Federal control in regard to navigation is not involved, or by a suit in equity. He holds to the theory that the State through which the water flows first has the right to divert a portion of it, such portion in each case being a matter for the courts to determine according to the particular facts. This theory he believes, arguing from various precendents, the courts would uphold.

The Legal Phaze of It.

"Taking for illustration," he says, "the Ten Mile River, which rises in Connecticut, runs its principal course in New York, and returns to Conneticut, I am of the opinion that the State of New York can establish a right to divert a substantial portion of this stream upon such equitable conditions as the Supreme Court shall determine. Assuming that the Supreme Court would frame its decree upon a comprehensive view of the relative needs of the States in controversy, it is not impossible that New York could substantiate an equitable claim to practically the entire flow. I have sought only a legal solution of the inter-State water problem. My opinion goes no further than this—the City of New York has lawful opportunities for obtaining an additional supply from inter-State waters."

Commenting on the legal difficulties involved in the recognition of individual riparian owners as against the public need, Mr. Baker in his editorial says:

"There can be no more forcible illustration of the enormous loss resulting from our blind adherence to the ancient law of riparian rights and our failure to remedy the conflicting control over inter-State streams than the work now in progress to provide an additional water supply for New York City.

"How many taxpayers of New York City realize that the city is paying $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 more to secure a new water supply from the Catskills than it would have had to pay to secure a supply of equal quantity, equal pressure, and equal purity from the upper Housatonic River, in the State of Connecticut? Not only might New York City have saved this enormous sum, but the supply from the Housatonic could have been obtained in little more than half the time that is necessary to secure the supply from the Catskills.

No Dispute Among Engineers.

"Engineers were agreed that the Housatonic River was by far the most economical and most readily available supply for New York City, but the proposal to secure it was condemned by the lawyers employed by the Merchants' Association on the ground that there was no possible legal procedure by which the rights of riparian owners on the Housatonic River in Connecticut could be subjected to the law of eminent domain in order to enable New York to divert any substantial part of the waters of that stream. In view of this opinion, no further attention has since been paid to either the Housatonic or Ten Mile River. The Burr-Hering-Freeman commission, which investigated the whole matter of additional water supply in 1903, confined its work to the streams flowing into the Hudson River and located in New York territory.

"While New York City suffered an actual loss of from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 or more through its inability, because of the impotency of the law, to go across a State boundary for an additional supply of water, it should be noticed that no corresponding benefit was reaped by the State of Connecticut or its inhabitants. The Housatonic River flows onward to the sea to-day as it has for centuries past, unused save for such trifling uses as may be made by the farmers living along its banks and the development of water power at three or four sites where a fall occurs in the stream. But any and all of these uses are insignificant in public benefit and value compared with the utilization of the river to furnish a potable water supply for a great city. That city could have well afforded to pay ample damages to every resident of Connecticut having a riparian right in any way affected by the city's diversion of the water, and would gladly have done so had any legal method been open by which the compensation could have been made.

Rights of the State.

"The question of inter-State rights in flowing water is important in many other places than New York. Already a considerable number of these cases have been before the courts and have been carried to the Supreme Court of the United States. To-day there are cases not a few where engineering enterprise is greatly impeded and hampered because of conflicting jurisdiction over water due to international or inter-State boundaries.

"It is becoming more and more necessary that the law should recognize the principle that the higher use of water should take precedence over the lower; that the use of water for power, for example, should take precedence over its use for navigation; that the use for irrigation should take precedence over its use for power, and its use for municipal supply should take precedence over all other uses.

"These principles must be embodied in the statute law; and in the organic law if necessary, or more lasting and serious injury to the public welfare will be done than has already occurred. Further than this, the principle that a higher use of water takes precedence over a lower must be made to extend across State boundaries. It is unthinkable that cities and towns shall be compelled to suffer for lack of water-supply or to be put to enormous and needless expense in obtaining it simply that a river may continue to run through green meadows and fertile pastures to be applied to no higher use than watering cattle.

"It is unthinkable that private property rights should continue to stand in the way of public welfare. The lawyers have so magnified the rights of private property that instead of awarding the owner 'just compensation' when his property is taken for public purposes, the public has to submit to legalized blackmail.

"A great assemblage of lawyers in New York City last month, among them the President of the United States, convened to consider the reform of gross abuses in our criminal laws. We have gone so far in protecting the rights of the accused criminal that we have overlooked the rights of the public.

"There is, we believe, equal need for the reform of our civil laws, where the law's delays likewise result in miscarriage of justice and where the right of private property, guaranteed by the constitution, has been so distorted that the rights of the public have been well-night forgotten."

WANT A MILLION FOR WATER.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 30.—Water that has been supplied to a number of industries on the Connecticut River above this city is valued at a million dollars, according to the allegations in a suit entered by the Northern Connecticut Securities Company against the Connecticut River Company, the papers in which are returnable to the Superior Court in June.

Yesterday the Supreme Court of Errors gave an opinion in favor of the Connecticut River Company, which controls water rights in the Windsor Locks Canal, in a suit brought by minority stockholders who have formed the Northern Connecticut Securities Company.

The Securities Company in its suit against the Connecticut River Company alleged that the Directors for years have permitted the sale of water at wholly inadequate prices in violation of their duty to the company.

URGES TECHNICAL JUDGES.

Hand of Federal Court Would Take Points from Germany.

Judge Hand in a decision on two bills in equity brought by the Parke-Davis Company against the H. K. Mulford Company asking for an injunction for alleged infringement of two patents for an extract from the suprarenal glands of living animals, after discussing the issues involved, says:

"I cannot stop without calling attention to the extraordinary condition of the law, which makes it possible for a man without any knowledge of even the rudiments of chemistry to pass upon such questions as these. The inordinate expense of time is the least of the resulting evils, for a trained chemist is really capable of passing upon such fact, e. g., in this case the chemical character of von Furth's so-called 'zinz compound,' or the presence of inactive organic substances.

"In Germany, where the natural spirit eagerly seeks for all the assistance it can get from the whole range of human knowledge, they do quite differently. There the Court summons technical judges to whom technical questions are submitted and who can intelligently pass upon the issues without blindly groping among testimony wholly out of their ken. How long we shall continue to blunder along without the aid of unpartisan and authoritative scientific assistance in the administration of justice no one knows, but all fair persons not conventionalized by provincial legal habits of mind ought, I should think, to unite to effect some such advances."

Despite this comment Judge Hand apparently considered himself sufficiently competent to act in the present litigation, for in concluding the decision he says: "Let a decree pass upon the claims as above indicated; no costs."

MERCHANTS URGE INTERBOROUGH OFFER

WILLIAMS QUESTIONS FIGURES

Declares He Heard That Several Signers of Petition to City Officials Found They Had Been Deceived.

Nearly a score of leading merchants who have stores south of Times Square, and chiefly on the west side, in a communication sent yesterday to the Mayor, the Board of Estimate, and the Public Service Commision, make a strong plea for the Interborough Subway plan, as opposed to that of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. It is pointed out that the Interborough proposal is virtually the plan of the old Rapid Transit Commission, and that it "seems to offer the greatest possible extension of rapid transit facilities with a single 5-cent fare without unreasonable investment of the city's money."

Col. T. S. Williams, President of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, after reading the communication, said that the figures quoted were not entirely correct. He said that he did not know where the communication came from, but he thought that it was similar to statements contained in literature recently sent out by the Interborough. Mr. Williams said he had heard that several signers of the document had declared that they had been deceived by the figures contained therein, when it was first presented to them, and that they had tried to have their signatures withdrawn. This is the communication that was made public at the City Hall:

New York, May 29, 1911.

To his Honor, the Mayor of the City of New York;
The Honorable, The Board of Estimate and Apportionment;
The Honorable, The Public Service Commission of the First District of the State of New York:

The immediate building of extensions of the existing city-built Subway north on the east side and south on the west side, thus making two direct through routes north and south. This was the plan of the old Rapid Transit Commission, and it seems to offer the greatest possible extension of rapid transit facilities with a single five-cent fare without unreasonable investment of the city's money. These extensions can probably be completed within two years, and, with needed additions to the elevated roads in Manhattan and the Bronx, would go far to solve the rapid transit situation in those boroughs.

The offer of the Interborough to furnish $133,000,000 for extensions and equipment against the city's expenditure of $68,000,000 seems reasonable, while the offer of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to contribute $65,000,000 for construction and equipment against more than $156,000,000 of the city's money is certainly less attractive from a financial standpoint. The city is safer in advancing $68,000,000 than in advancing $156,000,000, and its safety is obviously increased by dealing with the successful tenant of its own existing Subway.

We see no hope of getting relief in transportation within five years, or of getting a single comprehensive five-cent fare through the offer of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and we are convinced that the transit interests of Manhattan will be furthered by dealing with the Interborough. We respectfully represent that the Borough of Manhattan pays more than 70 per cent. of the taxes of Greater New York. It therefore necessarily bears the larger part of the risk in the building of new subways with city money, and we ask that the interests of the Borough of Manhattan receive proportionate consideration.

Mayor Gaynor was not at the City Hall yesterday and a copy of the petition was mailed to him. Copies were also mailed to the members of the Board of Estimate and of the Public Service Commission. Borough President George McAneny, who went to Lake George several days ago to prepare the report of the Board of Estimate committee, of which he is Chairman, regarding the subway offers, will return to-day. It is said that he has finished his report, but that it will not be made public until Saturday. It will not be presented to the Board of Estimate at the regular meeting on Thursday.

Answering the statements of the Interborough regarding the cost of building new subways and the number of miles to be built, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company summed up its opposition yesterday in this wise:

"The B. R. T. plan furnishes 120 miles of rapid transit routes for $103,500,000 of city money, and the city participates in the earnings of the total mileage. The Interborough plan (as enlarged in the newspapers) furnishes 102 miles for $110,000,000 of city money, and the city participates in the earnings of only 78 miles.

"Then, if the city is to go into partnership with transportation companies, there is the question of the character and corporate history of the partner to consider. On the one side consolidation and growth have been accompanied by great scandalous and fictitious increases of capitalization; on the other side is a shady record of juggling with corporate accounts and improper diversion of corporate moneys. On the one side is a year's negotiations with the city, accompanied by subterfuge, threat, political influence, and intrigue—no yielding in terms except under compulsion, and on the other side is a three months' frank, open, honest, and conciliatory conference with the city's great problem."

To be reserved for future issue, under restrictions, only for additions and improvements to the mortgaged property.............. 14,000,000
Total authorized.............. $30,000,000

Application will be made to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

From the letter of W. C. Brown, President of the New York Central Lines, (copies of which can be obtained at the offices of the undersigned,) we summarize the following:

Payment of the principal and interest of the bonds will be guaranteed unconditionally by endorsement upon each bond by MICHIGAN CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY, which owns all the capital stock of the Detroit River Tunnel Company. The net income of the guarantor for the year ending December 31, 1910, above operating expenses, taxes, rentals, and all its interest charges, was $1,717,330.84.

The bonds will be secured by a first lien on all the present and future property, real and personal, of the Tunnel Company, including (1) its double tube tunnel and approaches, 2.42 miles in length, under the Detroit River, with the electrical locomotives and other equipment for the operation thereof, now completed and in successful operation, such tunnel and equipment having cost upwards of $9,000,000; (2) the extensive and valuable terminal property in the City of Detroit, acquired and to be acquired by the Tunnel Company, for a Union Passenger Station and for other modern terminal facilities, such terminal property, exclusive of improvements made and to be made thereon, being of the value of upwards of $3,500,000; (3) the Union Passenger Station and other modern terminal facilities now in process of construction on such terminal property at a further cost of about $5,500,000; and (4) the rights of the Tunnel Company in the lease in perpetuity to the Michigan Central Railroad Company, mentioned below.

The Michigan Central Railroad Company has leased in perpetuity all the tunnel and terminal property, agreeing with the Tunnel Company to maintain and operate the property and to apply the net earnings, so far as necessary, to the payment of interest on all the bonds of the Tunnel Company from time to time outstanding, and guaranteeing that the net income shall be sufficient to pay maintenance and operating expenses, interest on all the bonds, and not less than 4% per annum on the $3,000,000 of stock of the Tunnel Company.

SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE AND CHANGE IN PRICE, WE OFFER THE ABOVE BONDS AT 102 AND ACCRUED INTEREST.

THIRD: The names of the general and special partners interested in said partnership, all of whom are of full age, and their respective places of residence are as follows: Arthur Lipper, who resides at 137 West 78th Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City; Harry F. Louchheim, who resides at 56 West 71st Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City; Harry S. Behal, who resides at 2,005 Park Avenue, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Milton W. Lipper, who resides at 258 Riverside Drive, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, are the general partners, and Theodore W. Myers, who resides at Plaza Hotel, Fifth Avenue and 59th Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, is the special partner.

FOURTH: The amount of capital which the said Theodore W. Myers, as special Partner, heretofore contributed to the common stock, and which has been actually and in good faith paid in in cash, is the sum of Two hundred thousand Dollars ($200,000); such contribution and payment were made by the said special partner at the commencement of the limited partnership now being renewed and continued; no part of said sum of Two hundred thousand Dollars ($200,000) has been withdrawn by, or paid or transferred to, the said special partner, but the whole amount thereof remains invested in the said limited partnership wholly unimpaired, and the whole amount thereof, namely, Two hundred thousand Dollars ($200,000), is contributed by said special partner to the common stock of such renewed and continued limited partnership.

FIFTH: The time at which the limited partnership hereby renewed and continued is to commence is the 1st day of May, 1911, and the time at which the said limited partnership is to end is the 30th day of April, 1913.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto set our hands and affixed our seals this first day of May, 1911.

To the Unemployed

¶ The people who cannot get work are of three kinds:

1. Those whose labors are without a market.
2. Those who do not want to work with their full intelligence and effort.
3. Those who do not follow with diligence this page of The New York Times.

¶ To use an Effective advertisement on this page and to read the advertisements of others is to utilize a great opportunity.

ADVERTISEMENT.

$1,500,000 Worth of Goods Daily.

TODAY—the day this newspaper is dated—the 1,500,000 families who buy The Ladies' Home Journal are spending upwards of $3,000,000.

About half of this, or $1,500,000, they are spending TO-DAY for goods that are advertised or could be advertised.

Tomorrow those families will spend the same sum, and the day after tomorrow, and the day after that—$1,500,000 every day in the year, for goods that are advertised or could be advertised.

The women who largely have the spending of that money form the largest single group of well-to-do women buyers in the world.

Yet there is no group of women buyers in the world that can be reached so economically and so surely.

The contribution of The Ladies' Home Journal to the modern science of advertising is that it has reduced to known terms the factor in advertising that has been indefinite and experimental, namely the buying power and responsiveness of its readers.

If the other factors in your advertising are sound

If your advertising copy delivers your message—

Then there is no safer or richer venture in business today than advertising in The Ladies' Home Journal.

TELLS JEWS TO PUT NO TRUST IN RUSSIA

RISK SIBERIAN SENTENCES

Unless They Have Obtained Formal Releases for Allegiance to the Czar—Those Hard to Get.

Joseph Mandelkern of 1,919 Seventh Avenue, who recently returned from Russia, said last night:

"I wish to warn American naturalized Russian Jews against venturing back to Russia under the terms of the recent assurances issued by the Russian Government under representations from the American State Department. I have learned that a number of my own acquaintances are contemplating visiting Russia in the near future, and from my own experiences know that American naturalized Russian Jews entering Russia without having first procured a release from their obligations as Russian subjects are likely to be arrested and sentenced to Siberia or prison terms for treason.

"I have read the statement of the new assurances very carefully and find nothing in them which abrogates the Russian law that a subject who forswears his allegiance and becomes a citizen of another nation is guilty of treason. I was myself arrested in Bialystok, my native city, an dwas not freed from surveillance, even after I had been released from custody, until a telegram was received from St. Petersburg that my certificate of release as a Russian subject was genuine.

"The Russian Government holds that the children of a native Russian, even though naturalized as an American citizen without first obtaining a release from his allegiance to the Czar, are themselves Russian subjects, so that an American passport will not protect them, and they are subject to military service and to fines if they visit Russia. A Jew born in any other country but Russia, including the United States, of non-Russian parents, may visit Russia on an American passport for any period up to four months, if his passport is properly viséd by the Russian Consul General of the locality from which he comes. But this formality is only performed by the Consul General when proof is presented that the Jew is traveling for business purposes, and is himself a person of responsibility or represents responsible people. The reason Oscar Hammerstein, a native German, and naturalized American Jew, couldn't get into Russia on an American passport, was that he failed to present this proof and neglected to have his passport viséd by the Russian Consul General in New York.

"Ninety-nine per cent. of the Russian Jews who come to New York take out their first papers, applying for American citizenship, immediately. This in itself is a bar against their returning to Russia so long as the Government of that country insists that a Russian subject cannot free himself from the allegiance of the Czar without the Czar's permission.

"In addition to this, many of the Russian Jews who come to America have neglected to get a foreign passport authorizing them to leave Russia. Now, the Russian Government issues two kinds of passports, one of them good for the interior of Russia, and which every citizen must have to travel, and one for foreign travel. On the internal passport Jews are restricted to certain cities. The foreign passoprt, which is in the form of a little book, is good for a year, and is necessary to cross the frontier on the return of the holder. If the Government officials find out that the the subject has forsworn his allegiance in his absence, the passport will not and does not protect him.

"I have been back to Russia eight times. But I did not return to Russia, which I left twenty-four years ago, until after I had obtained my release from allegiance in 1905. I applied for this release in 1903. It cost me 800 rubles, or about $400, to get it. Dozens of my friends have applied to me to help them get their releases, offering in some cases $2,000 for these documents. But they have been unable to satisfy the conditions.

"The applicant for a release must show that he has either performed the compulsory military service exacted of all male Russians coming of age, or a release from such service under an exemption. I hold a ticket of examption from military service, because I was an only child and my mother was a widow. I had to file that with the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, with my application for release. The applicant must also have a clean record, free from any connection with the revolutionary or socialistic parties in Russia. He must never have been convicted of any crime, or have been through bankruptcy. For six months, advertisements are inserted in all the official papers of the Government, at the expense of the applicant, calling upon Governors, Police Chiefs, and others to state if they know of any blot on the applicant's record. In addition, the applicant must pay a fine for being absent from Russia. If there is no objection from the police or officials, the Minister of Foreign Affairs reports to the Czar, who signs the release, and notice is given to the Consul General of the locality of the applicant's residence, who then issues the certificate of release from allegiance.

"I obtained my release on Jan. 17, 1905, or Jan. 30, 1905, according to our reckoning. It is signed by Count Ladishensky, who was then Consul General. Although I had paid my 800 roubles, it was not until I wrote a letter to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Sviatopolsk-Mirsky, that I received my release. I inclosed an editorial from THE NEW YORK TIMES praising his selection to Ministry, and appealed to him either to return my 800 roubles or to send my release. I got the release in less than three weeks. It was worded thus,

> To Mr. Joseph Mandelkern;
> Matter of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
> In accordance with a commission received from the Second Department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, dated Dec. 29, 1904, No. 18,898, the Imperial Consulate General of the Cxar of Russia has the honor to inform you that his Imperial Majesty, the Czar of Russia, looking over the commission of the ministry of Nov. 19 last, graciously gave permission to release you, Joseph Mandelkern, citizen of the City of Bialystok, with your children, Elizabeth, Margaret, and Israel, from allegiance to his Imperial Majesty, and an imperial ukase has been duly issued. I have the honor of requesting that you send an acknowledgment of the receipt of this document.

"This cost me about 130 roubles for myself and 275 roubles for my children, two of whom mentioned in the release, Margaret and Israel, were born in the United States.

"I want to warn American naturalized Russian Jews to beware of the practice so common among many who visit Russia of crossing the frontier on an American passport and then traveling on a Russian passport obtained by some relative on payment of a few roubles. Blackmailers thrive on betraying such travelers, and they may never return to America if an American passport is found on them, or the circumstances of how they crossed the boundary become known. They run a special danger if they have evaded military service or have been connected with socialistic bodies.

"It will not help them in such a case for them to plead that they have had their passports vised by the Consul General in New York. The Consul General will not knowingly vise the passport of any Russian subject who has become an American citizen without first obtaining a release from allegiance. I was arrested in 1906 in my native city of Bialystok, although I carried an American passport vised thus:

> The Imperial Russian Consul General vises this passport to the citizen of the United States of North America, a Jew, Joseph Mandelkern, going to Russia three months for business purposes, as a representative of the Star Skirt Company, for which he is a buyer of woolens, for ladies' suits. The Star Skirt Company is registered according to the law of the United States of North America in the district for which I am commissioned as Consul General.

"With this passport I visited my mother in the City of Bialystok. I played at billiards in a club there with the Chief of Police. I noticed he became curious at the greetings given to me by old friends whom I had not seen for eighteen years, and finally he said to me:

"'I got your passport as an American citizen. How is it? Were you a native of this city that all these men know you? How did your passport get vised in America?'

"I explained without mentioning the release and the next day I was arrested and brought to police headquarters, although I was not treated with any discourtesy. Then I produced my release. The chief said:

"'I have never heard of any such thing in my twenty-two years' of service. Nevertheless I shall release you, because this furnishes a reason why your passport was vised in America.'

"He kept me under surveillance, though, until he received a message from St. Petersburg that the release was all right and then calling on me, he said, apologizing for my arrest:

"'I take off my hat to you for teaching me something new.'

"On the seven other visits I made to Russia I have had no difficulty, for now it is generally known that my passports are regular. But I always carry my release and my certificate of exemption from military service as a precaution."

WASHINGTON, May 30.—A resolution, introduced to-day by Representative Harrison of New York, directs the Secretary of State to inform the House whether Russia has made any overtures looking to its modification of the discrimination against the American passport in the hands of the American Jew.

"My fear is," said Mr. Harrison, "that the reported new policy at St. Petersburg is put forth only to quiet the just indignation of the American people against Russia's treatment of our Jewish citizens. Even if the report is true it should in no way interfere with our determination to secure an abrogation of our treaty of 1832 with Russia."

GIRL KILLED BY FOUL BALL.

Struck on the Head, She Recovers, but Falls Dead Five Hours Later.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 30.—When a girl friend of 15-year-old Edna Thumm tried to dissuade her from going to a baseball game at Recreation Park today Edna said: "I'd rather die than miss it." To-night she is dead in her home, 751 Clarissa Street, as a result of having been at the game. She was seated directly behind the catcher when a foul tip caught her flush on the forehead, knocking her unconscious. Two girl friends who were with her were seized with hysterics.

After a physician had revived her Miss Thumm insisted upon occupying her seat in the grandstand. Two or three times foul tips came her way again, but she laughed and caused the crowd to laugh with her. After the game she romped with her friends and was the life of the party.

Five hours after the accident and when her friends were saying good-night to her, she dropped dead as she entered her home. Two of the girls fainted and had to be carried to their homes near by. She was a daughter of J. P. Thumm.

MOTHER TOLD SON TO FIRE.

Mrs. Hopson Held as Accomplice in Murder of Mississippi Farmer.

MERIDIAN, Miss., May 30.—"Surely, you cannot expect me to discuss such a thing," was the only answer made to repeated efforts to interview Mrs. Carrie Hopson, in jail here as an accomplice in a murder case. Mrs. Hopson is 40, refined, member of an old Southern family and mother of two grown sons. One of them is with her in jail. He is Woodruff Hopson, 20 years old, and is charged with the actual killing.

According to the allegations, Mrs. Hopson stood over the youth and told him to shoot a second time after S. B. Stuckey, a farmer, 73 years old, was already dead from the effects of a load of buckshot, fired at close range.

$1,500 Verdict for Four Fingers.

A verdict of $1,500 in favor of Oswald Bachmann, Jr., 15 years old, who lost four fingers of his right hand in an embossing machine, was returned yesterday by a Supreme Court jury before Justice Goff against Little & Preuss, sign manufacturers. Bachmann's suit, brought through his father as guardian ad litem, was based on the theory that an embossing machine is a dangerous device of the character on which the labor law of 1906 prohibits the employment of boys under 16 years of age.

MR. ELWELL HAS BE[illegible]

F. Edwin Elwell, the sculptor, is at his home, 12 Hudson Place, Weehawken, recovering from a slight cerebral hemorrhage which came upon him last Thursday. He was so much better yesterday that he was able to talk about it, and he made light of it.

"I preferred Weehawken to Heaven," said he.

Mr. Elwell, his friends, and h[illegible] physician attribute his illness to the str[illegible] of his domestic difficulties, which h[illegible] found their way through the New Y[illegible] courts. Mrs. Elwell brought suit for [illegible]aration. He brought a counter suit. Justice Greenbaum decided that the [illegible]ter was one for the New Jersey cour[illegible]

Mr. Elwell was rejoicing, howeve[illegible] the assurance of his physician that, wi[illegible] the hemorrhage over, he would be in better condition mentally and physically than before.

SAILS WITHOUT MUSIC.

Owing to delay caused by the customs officials on the pier in inspecting its instruments, the band from the Little Hungary restaurant was unable to play a farewell to Max Schwartz, the proprietor, who sailed yesterday with Mrs. Schwartz on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie.

A Customs Inspector told Leader Feher that he must see the instruments before the band went on the pier, in order that they could be recognized on the return to the gate after the ship had gone. About 300 friends in twenty-five automobiles went to see [illegible] Mrs. Schwartz off, and were disappointed that the band did not play as the vessel moved off.

PATERSON, N. J., May 30.—George Booth, 9 years old, was wading in the Morris Canal, near here, this afternoon, and soon found himself in deep water. His cries for help were promptly answered by his 7-year-old brother Douglass, who, heedless of danger, rushed into the deep water. He, too, was soon struggling for his life. Neither boys could swim.

George Brill plunged in after Douglass. The boy was alive when taken to the bank, but died soon afterward. The body of George Booth was found half an hour later.

Laundry Workers' Strike Extends.

A strike in 300 laundries on Monday on the east side for the renewal of an agreement between the Laundry Workers' Union and the laundry owners, expiring on May 24, was extended to fifty more laundries yesterday in Manhattan and to several hand laundries in Brooklyn. In Manhattan the strike affects the laundries from Cherry Street to Fourteenth. Several of the east side unions have decided that their members shall have their laundering done at home until the demands of the strikers are granted. A settlement committee which was appointed before the strike started, reported last evening that 150 employers had already yielded.

JAIL[illegible] UNPAID BOARD BILL.

[illegible] to give $200 bail yesterday in t[illegible] Orange Police Court, Mrs. Eliza[illegible] Burch, who said she was the wife [illegible] T. Hamilton Burch of 130 West [illegible] Seventh Street, New York, was [illegible]tted to the county jail charged with [illegible]ting to defraud James H. Brennan, [illegible]etor of the Hotel Clinton, of this [illegible] out of a board bill of $12.50.

[illegible]ore being sent to Newark Mrs. Burch [illegible] a telgram to Henry L. Parker of 1 [illegible]wam Street, Worcester, Mass., ask[illegible] him to send $200 cash bail, but re[illegible]ved no reply up to the time she was [illegible]ken to the jail in the patrol wagon. [illegible]e explained that she and her husband [illegible]parated nine years ago, but she de[illegible]lared she was in regular receipt of $200 a month from him, and expected a check for half that amount on the coming Thursday.

Brennan explained that he had caused her arrest because of suspicions aroused by an anonymous telephone message from a detective agency warning him against her. She had gone to his hotel, he said, saying that she intended to stay through the Summer and that her baggage would follow her. It never turned up.

No Out-of-Date and Inefficient Plan of Rapid Transit

"It's the old, old struggle that I have seen over and over again on this very Board of the out-of-date and comparatively inefficient system resisting the advance of the modern and efficient.

"I want, now, to register on the records of this Board that I am opposed to this elevated loop plan, among other reasons, becauce I do not intend to have any part in bolstering up any private corporation at the expense of The City of New York.

"If the old City of Brooklyn gave away hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of street franchises and has nothing to show for it except an overgrown and undeveloped railroad system, I see no reason why this Board should be forced to come to the rescue. We have built subways for Manhattan and the Bronx that are the best that money can buy, and we purpose doing as much for Brooklyn; our opponents propose that we patch up an ineffectual system with another piece from the same old material.

"Let us not assist in perpetuating a great error. Let us build a modern system and at least do our part toward remedying the blunders that have been made in the past in Brooklyn."

The Interborough offers to extend its MODERN SYSTEM which Vice-President Starin described. This will make it possible to go from one part of the City to any other part for one five-cent fare, which Mayor Low said was necessary for the unification of the City.

Judge what you may hope for by what you have.
